DALADIER FIRES POLICE CHIEF, THREE QUIT CABINET

OUSTED OFFICIAL SENT TO MOROCCO

Ministers of War and Finance Understood to Have Defended Him in Stormy Session on $40,000,000 Pawnshop Fraud.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Premier Edouard Daladier's Cabinet was split wide open today over the ousting of Jean Chiappe, Prefect of Paris Police, as Daladier's first move to clean house following the $40,000,000 Stavisky municipal pawnshop scandal at Bayonne.

Three members of the Cabinet, Minister of War Lieutenant-Colonel Jean Fabry, Minister of Finance Francois Pietri and Minister of Technical Instruction Gustav Doussian, walked out.

Their sudden resignations came after a day of tubult in which Daladier showed an iron hand. Daladier installed Bonnefoy Sibour as the Perfect of the Paris Police and ordered Chiappe, who is politically powerful and is called the "Little Napoleon," to Morocco as the Resident-General Sibour had been Perfect of the Seine et Oise Department.

Three Object to Chiappe's Ouster.

The three resigning Ministers objected to Daladier's removal of Chiappe, who has been accused by Government oppositionists of having been a close friend of the swindler, Stavisky, and of having failed to see to it that Stavisky was put on trial on a swindling charge, in which he was arrested in 1926. Stavinsky killed himself when police caught him after a widespread hunt. He had founded the Bayonne pawnship which collapsed Dec. 30.

Fabry and Pietri were understood to have defended Chiappe strongly. Rumors immediately started to circulate that the entire Cabinet might resign even before it faces the Chamber of Deputies for a vote of confidence Feb. 6.

Several High Heads Hit.

In the sweeping shake-up Daladier has promised before Tuesday [illegible] high police court officials have already been hit. Among them is the brother-in-law of former Premier Camille Chautemps, Georges Pressard, who as the Chief Attorney-General was held technically responsible for 19 adjournments of the Stavisky case.

The three Ministers sent written resignations to the Premier. Daladier tried to persuade Pietri to remain.

Meanwhile he asked Joseph Paul-Boncour, former Premier and Foreign Minister, to take Fabry's post. An extraordinary session of the Cabinet was called for 10 a. m. tomorrow, when the reshaped Government will be presented to President Lebrun.

Several previous Premiers have tried to fire Chiappe, but they all failed. Chiappe subsequently was described as "a state within a state."

Chiappe Declines Moroccan Post.

Chiappe, whom Socialists several times have accused of preparing a coup d'etat, sent Daladier a letter tonight refusing the Moroccan post.

Sibour, meanwhile, sitting in Chiappe's old chair, issued a manifesto in which he promised to clean up Paris "simply and with all my heart."

Chiappe, a plump and rich little Corsican who gave Paris a modern system of controlling traffic, was at his home when he learned he was no longer the Prefect of Police. His motto, as Prefect, was "a firm hand but a generous heart" and one of his endeavors was to make the policeman a friend of the people.

Bill Being Prepared to Meet Plight Caused by Fall of Dollar in Foreign Exchange.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary Hull sent messages today to American embassies and consulates informing them that efforts were being made to relieve their plight brought about by the fall of the dollar in foreign exchange. Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr is co-operating with officials of other departments that also have employes abroad in framing a relief bill which probably will be sent to the House Foreign Affairs Committee Monday.

The danger of demoralization in the Foreign Service has been described as great because of the inability of the personnel to live on salaries and allowances which in some cases have been reduced as much as 55 per cent.

The proposed relief bill will provide that hereafter United States employes abroad shall be paid the equivalent of their dollar salaries and allowances in the currency of the country in which they are stationed. It contemplates adjustment of compensation to the costs of living in various countries.

GOLD OPERATORS CLEAN UP $25,000,000 IN LONDON

Latilla & Co. Partners Cash in on Anticipation of President Roosevelt's Action.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A cleanup of more than $25,000,000 was made by Gold-Share operators on the London Stock Exchange as a direct result of President Roosevelt's fixing the American price of gold at $35 an ounce, the Sunday Express reported today.

The men who cashed in were the Marquis of Queensbury, Geoffrey Hart, John Bailey and partners in the gold brokerage firm of Latilla & Co. John Bailey, whose wife is a daughter of former Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill, is the son of Sir Abe Bailey, South African millionaire.

Hart laid his last shilling on the gold deals, he said, explaining:

"I risked the whole of my personal fortune because I anticipated President Roosevelt's action, thus making a profit amounting to about $2,500,000. The gold boom is likely to continue a few days more, in my opinion, and shares may rise another 20 points. However, that is conjectural."

BOY KILLED WHEN THROWN, DRAGGED A MILE BY HORSE

Foot of Leslie F. Lewis Jr., 8, Caught in Stirrup as Animal Runs Away in County.

FATHER, ANOTHER MAN WITH VICTIM

Their Mounts Also Bolt, Unseating Them—Lad's Is Not Stopped Until It Reaches Stables.

Leslie F. Lewis Jr., 8 years old, was killed yesterday when a horse threw him and dragged him, his foot caught in a stirrup, for more than a mile back to the Grantwood Stables, near Watson and Sappington roads in St. Louis County.

The boy, who had ridden often with his father, was with him yesterday. A third member of the party was G. E. Markham, a friend of his father.

They had stopped beside a creek near Sappington road, northwest of the stables, to rest their horses. As they were preparing to leave, Lewis assisted his son into the saddle while Markham was mounting. Meantime, Lewis' horse had caught his foot in his bridle, which was dragging, and jerked its head in seeking to disentangle itself.

This movement frightened the other horses, and they reared, throwing their riders. Markham fell to the ground, but the boy could not free his right foot from the stirrup.

The horses bolted, running across the creek and through an orchard. Two of them stopped before they had gone far, but the boy's horse headed for its stable and could not be overtaken. The men ran after it, leaving the horses they had been riding.

LOST $10,000 OF KIDNAPING MONEY IN WHEAT MARKET

Bad Man Sankey Looking for Job When Caught—Afraid to Meet His Wife.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Feb. 3.—"My life's mistake was asking $60,000 instead of 200 grand from Boettcher," Verne Sankey bitterly commented on the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy Denver broker, from his cell in the State penitentiary here today.

In an interview Sankey admitted he was worried about meeting his wife, Fern, because of his romance with Helen Matern, with whom he was living when captured in Chicago. Mrs. Sankey is in a cell in the penitentiary, awaiting trial for conspiracy in the Boettcher kidnaping, but officers have not permitted a meeting between the two, to Sankey's admitted relief.

Concerning his financial difficulties, Sankey said: "I lost $10,000 in the wheat market last year and at the time of the 'pinch' was so short I was looking for a 'job.'" He said his escape from Denver after obtaining the $60,000 ransom for the release of young Boettcher, was managed by driving only at night, without lights, on little-traveled country roads.

AAA RETURNS WHEAT CUT CHECK TO CHARITABLE FARMER

Kansan Had Sent $167 Back, Saying Give It to People "Who Need It More."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILMORE, Kan., Feb. 3.—J. H. Hoehn, 44-year-old farmer who has a wife and five children, was greatly surprised tonight to learn the Agricultural Adjustment Administration was returning to him his $167 wheat adjustment check, which he had sent back to them with the request that it be given to people "who need it more" than he does.

Asked if he would use it himself or give it to some local charitable organization, he replied: "Since they are sending it back I might even use it myself. There are lots of things I could do with it. I could get some new clothes for the children for one thing." His children range in age from 9 to 18. "Then there are some improvements I could make about the farm," he added.

Hoehn, a native of Missouri, has lived in Kansas since 1912. He has lived on his present farm of 640 acres the last five years.

ASSERTS LAWYERS 'HIGH AND LOW' CHASE AMBULANCE

CALLS HIM "PYGMY AMONG THE GIANTS"

William Baer and Patrick H. Cullen Ask Court of Appeals for Light Penalty for Client.

The issue of "ambulance-chasing" by lawyers in St. Louis was raised yesterday at the hearing of the disbarment suit against Hi Summer, young attorney, which was taken under advisement by the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Summer is charged with unprofessional conduct in attempting to persuade a policeman to give him quick information about accidents that might lead to lawsuits.

Statements by the principal witness, Patrolman William Van Horn, that Summer had several interviews with him in March, 1932, and asked him to get information from reports at the North Market Street Police Station, were not denied by Summer's counsel, which did not put him on the stand.

Without attempting to condone his conduct, his attorneys asked the Court that he be suspended briefly from practice and censured in order to "teach him a lesson."

Plainly "Ambulance-Chasing."

William Baer of the defense counsel told the Court that the issue was plainly one of "ambulance-chasing," which, he said, was "more or less general in the environment in which Summer has grown up." Referring to the practice as "regrettable," Baer said it had grown up, nevertheless, among the "high and low, the mighty and the meek."

"The defendant, no doubt, was influenced by the success of the mighty who got by that way and tried to get business in the same manner," Baer said, "We know it is a matter of speed in these cases in order to beat the other lawyer to the business. If we are to register protest against ambulance-chasing, why do we pick on a pygmy instead of the giants who have been indulging in it?"

Patrick H. Cullen, another of Summer's attorneys, said "it would sound very hard to disbar him in view of prevailing conditions." Both Cullen and Robert L. Aronson, another defense attorney, cited similar cases in other States in which suspension and censure, rather than disbarment, was the action of the courts.

Glendy B. Arnold, attorney for the Bar Association Committee on Grievances, argued that the issue was not one of "ambulance-chasing," but involved the "legal right to pay for the disclosure of private information" by an officer in violation of his duty.

Stating that he was unable to find a precedent adequately covering the Summer case, Arnold asked the Court to hand down a written opinion for future guidance of the bar.

Judge William Dee Becker said he believed there was sufficient precedent in the disbarment of Paul Richards by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The Case Against Summer.

According to the testimony of Van Horn, Summer, with whom he was unacquainted, came to the Van Horn home, 8974 Edna street, on March 21, 1932, introduced himself and said, "You can make a lot of easy money by getting me information about accidents."

The officer said he did not accept the offer or reject it, but reported that day to Police Captain Hoagland, then in charge of the North Market Street Station.

On March 25, Van Horn testified, Summer telephone, asking for information concerning clerks at two other districts. The same day, the witness said, Summer appeared at the Van Horne home and in the course of his conversation, remarked, "The people don't even have to be injured. Just get some doctor who works with them and when he gets through with them, they'll have a broken arm or leg."

Van Horn said Summer gave him a $5 bill at that time and promised more money later.

SECURITY LIFE CO. HEAD AND 3 AIDS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Marchir Dorsey and Associates Convicted of Mortgaging Nearly Worthless Land for $1,702,000.

SONNET-WRITING DEFENDANT CLEARED

Bertram Day Weeps on Hearing Verdict—Former Partner of Ex-Senator Deneen Acquitted Too.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Four defendants were convicted today of dumping $1,702,000 mortgages on virtually worthless land into the treasuries of the Security Life and Northern States Life Insurance Companies of Indiana, wrecking the companies.

Those convicted were Marchir Dorsey of Indianapolis, president, and C. Edwin Johnson, vice-president of the Security Life; Edwin Hult, who formed a company to handle the transfer of the mortgages to the insurance companies, and Harry W. Huttig of Muscatine, Ia., whose Waukegan (Ill.) Terminal Co. was co-owner of the mortgaged industrial tract.

The State contended the 38 acres at Waukegan, Ill., were worth no more than $150,000, yet bonds to the extent of nearly $2,000,000 were floated on the property, handled through dummy corporations and individuals, and finally found in the assets of the defunct life insurance companies. Witnesses testified that part of the Waukegan plot was even under water on the Lake Michigan shore.

Two Are Acquitted.

Two of the alleged conspirators were acquitted.

Bertram Day, former president of the Northern States Life Insurance Co., wept as he heard himself absolved by the jury. Throughout the trial he had sat writing sonnets, and his counsel had asked the jury how a man who "holds two college degrees, writes beautiful sonnets and teaches Sunday school" could be a criminal.

John H. S. Lee, accused of a part in the plot as attorney for the Waukegan property owners, pleaded in his own behalf that he had quit the assignment before the mortgage deal was begun and he knew nothing of it. He, too, was acquitted. Lee formerly was a law partner of Charles S. Deneen, former United States Senator.

For Dorsey and Hult the jury made specific recommendations of a $1000 fine and a prison term to be decided by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein. The State said the pair might be imprisoned for as much as one to five years on each of 18 counts in the indictment.

No Suggestion on Two.

The jury did not suggest penalties for Huttig and Johnson, and the maximum would be $2000 fine and a year in the county jail for them.

Judge Epstein said he would impose sentences next week.

In addition to the six whose cases were disposed of today, three more were indicted. Charles R. Surface turned State's evidence and obtained a severance. Harry S. Tressel, an officer of both insurance companies, also gained a separate trial. John W. Seids was dismissed by the Court after the case had progressed two weeks when he brought out that the indictment failed to specify whether it was he or his father, a physician of the same name at Moline, Ill., who was accused.

Machir J. Dorsey of Chicago and Hammond, Ind., was an important figure at one time in the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis, which recently was taken over by the General American Life Insurance Co.

Security Life Insurance Co., under Dorsey, held control of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, Ky., which, in turn, owned 29½ per cent of the stock of Missouri State Life. Dorsey was aligned with a faction which opposed a St. Louis group for control of Missouri State Life, a struggle which ended in compromise in December, 1931.

Paris Taxi Drivers on Strike.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—A strike of taxicab drivers against a new gasoline tax became complete here today. Pickets prevented would-be strikebreakers from leaving garages, strikers watched all streets, flying squads of police quelled a few minor disturbances, and the broad Paris boulevards were empty of cabs. Street cars, busses and subways ran extras. The strikers demand social insurance, better working conditions, and removal of a 2½-cent gasoline tax which brings the gallon cost to 40 cents.

MRS. F. A. C. PERRIN, wife of a psychology professor at the University of Texas, was found dead in an Austin (Tex.) hotel, Feb. 1. Nearby was the body of Dr. Claude Mattingly, Austin physician. Investigators expressed the belief the couple died in a suicide pact.

RAJAH, STAR LION IN SHOW AT ZOO, IS FOUND DEAD

One Theory Is He Was Killed by Attack of Smaller Animal.

Rajah, star performer of the Zoo's lion show, has walked the swinging plank and jerked the cord in the flag climax for the last time. He died suddenly yesterday, leaving Zoo officials discussing the cause of his death, which George E. Dieckman believes was due to a smaller lion's attack, and Supt. Vierheller holds to have been from natural causes.

Dieckman, vice-president of the Zoo Board, and the superintendent were showing the animals to Director Joseph Stephan of the Cincinnati Zoo, and Irwin Krohn, superintendent of parks in Cincinnati. They visited the lions' winter quarters, not in the public cages, at the noon feeding time.

The other animals blinked and shifted about as they approached, but Rajah lay on his back, his feet in the air. "That fellow's dead," Stephan remarked. Dieckman prodded him with a stick, and found that the visitor was correct. Rajah still wore the chain, with which he had been fastened at feeding time, to keep him from taking food away from Queen, a female neighbor.

"Queen had blood on her mouth, and Rajah's throat was torn," Dieckman said. "Nobody saw or heard any fight, but it was evident that Queen snapped at Rajah's throat and killed him. It was very unfortunate, for he was our best show lion, but I don't see how it could have been prevented."

Vierheller said he could find no conclusive evidence that Rajah's death had been due to anything but a natural cause. "The Zoo's veterinary, Dr. R. A. Kammerer, performed an autopsy on Rajah, and reported that he died of fatty degeneration of the heart," the superintendent said.

Rajah was 20 months old, and had been in the Zoo since cubhood.

LINER PRESIDENT GRANT ON SAND BAR IN VICTORIA HARBOR

No Wind, Sea Calm, Ship Said to Be in No Immediate Danger.

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 3.—The American Mail liner President Grant outbound for the Orient, grounded on a sand bar a half mile from pier one off MacLaughlin point in the outer harbor here tonight.

With no wind and the sea calm, the vessel was said to be in no immediate danger.

With the tide falling until 11 p. m., it was not expected the vessel could be refloated until 4 a. m. tomorrow at the earliest. Two tugs were standing by.

The grounding occurred at 6:45 p. m., when the President Grant backed out from the pier preparatory to turning and drifted to the west side of the harbor.

$35,000 OF LOOT FOUND, 4 SEIZED IN JERSEY HOLDUP

One of Suspects Identified in $130,000 Bank Robbery — Money in Traveling Bag in House.

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 3.—Less than 36 hours after four robbers stole $130,000 and registered mail in a holdup outside the Pennsgrove (N. J.) National Bank and Trust Co., four suspects, one a woman, were arrested here this afternoon and $35,000 was seized by police. One of the four arrested was identified by Harold Anderson, bank teller, as one of the holdup men.

Two detectives and a State policeman picked the four suspects up on a street corner near a house, the location of which the police refused to disclose.

Those arrested, all charged with suspicion of robbery, gave their names and addresses as follows: John Farley, 37 years old, New York City, said to be a photographer. He has been identified. Charles Kent, 45, Canton, O., a salesman. Harry Greenberg, 29, Philadelphia, an insurance man. Mrs. Rose Greenberg, 31, wife of Greenberg.

Money in Overnight Bag.

Detectives, after questioning the four for several hours, said they thought Farley was the only one of the group who actually participated in the holdup.

The money was taken from a house said to have been occupied by the suspects and was found in a black, overnight bag of cheap quality, in denominations of $10 and $20 bills. The bag also contained two weapons, one a pearl-handled 45-caliber pistol, the other a black one of 32-caliber.

Two othr packed suitcases contained men's and women's clothing.

Lieut. Louis Shaw said the $35,000 was part of the money stolen from the bank and was apparently a "split" of the loot.

A tip given to a city detective by a friend led to the arrests. The friend told the detectives he regarded the actions of a group of persons in his neighborhood as suspicious. The detective sent officers to investigate and the arrests followed.

Woman Accused, Too.

Under guard, the suspects were taken to City Hall for questioning. A short time later the detectives went to the house in which the suspects had been staying and returned with the suitcases.

The three men were placed under arrest as soon as the money was found. Then two detectives took Mrs. Greenberg to an unannounced destination and upon their return with her she also was charged with suspicion of robbery.

MILITIA COMPANY ORDERED TO SCENE

Gov. Murray Takes Action After Crowd Gathers in Vicinity of Jail Where Two Arrested Men Are Held.

By the Associated Press.

SAPULPA, Ok., Feb. 3.—Two police officers and two outlaws were killed in a clash at a farm home north of Sapulpa tonight and Tulsa National Guardsmen were ordered by Gov. W. H. Murray to stand by for an emergency.

A company of National Guardsmen was ordered rushed here from Tulsa as a growing crowd of citizens milled about the streets and in the vicinity of the county jail, where two prisoners captured in the fight were held. Lee Snider, Deputy Sheriff, said that "things look bad and we don't want to take any chances. The people are in a dangerous mood." A guard of 20 men was placed about the jail.

Rifle and pistol fire broke out as Sheriff Willis Strange of Creek County directed a raid on the farm home of Lee Davis, where, officers said, they were tipped off that "some fellows that have been hijacking filling stations around here could be found."

Police Chief First Killed.

Police Chief Tom Brumley was shot to death entering the house, general firing followed with Aussie Elliott, fugitive jail breaker under a 50-year sentence for armed robbery, next to die. Patrolman C. P. Lloyd and Raymond Moore, a confederate of Elliott, killed each other in an exchange of fire after the latter fled from the house. Eldon Wilson, also under a 50-year sentence for armed robbery was wounded. Davis, the farmer, was arrested.

Gov. Murray, in ordering Adjutant-General Charle F. Barrett to be in readiness to furnish 25 National Guardsmen from a Tulsa company, said Sheriff Strange had indicated other suspects were sought.

"He thinks there is a big gang of criminals in the vicinity of Sapulpa and asked me to call out the National Guardsmen to help the civil officers," Murray said.

Seven Officers in Fight.

Six officers accompanied Sheriff Strange to the Davis home. They did not know the identity of the suspects.

Brumley went to the back door, Strange and another officer to the front door, and others took their posts at windows. As Strange rapped on the front door Davis came out and was quickly handcuffed. Elliott and Wilson followed with their hands in the air.

A moment later, Moore, inside the house, saw Brumley entering the back door and fired, killing him. The shot caused general firing by both the officers and the outlaws. In a moment Elliott was dead and Wilson was wounded in several places.

Moore escaped. Ten minutes later a farmer, W. D. Gambrill, told officers he had seen Moore hiding in a weed patch.

The group reassembled and surrounded the place. Lloyd crawled toward the weeds in a ravine. At the same time Moore lifted his head above the weeds. Both fired and both fell, dying in a few moments from head wounds.

Elliott and Wilson, both known as dangerous men, were wanted in Osage County for highway robbery, and Elliott also was wanted for bank robbery. Both recently escaped from the Osage County jail.

STRIKES CUT OFF LIGHT, GAS, POWER IN CUBAN CITIES

Havana Partly Crippled, Mendieta Government, Backed by Troops, Issues Manifesto.

SHOOTING BREAKS OUT IN CAPITAL

Employes of Electric Company Object to Government Returning Plants to U. S. Owners.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 3.—Large cities in the interior of Cuba were without lights, gas and power tonight as a result of strikes threatening the new Mendieta government.

Havana itself was partly crippled and the Government issued a manifesto, backed by 100,000 soldiers, defining a new, firm attitude toward troublesome labor.

A strike in the Cuban Electric Co., an American-owned concern, which supplies virtually the whole island with light and power, was called after President Carlos Mendieta had returned the company's properties out of temporary Government operation.

The strike grew out of the workers' refusal to accept the appointment of Federico Porro Orfila as a new administrator for the company.

Shooting in Havana.

Shooting broke out in Havana streets this afternoon, the first general shooting since the advent of the new Government. It did not last long and there were no deaths. Police and soldiers fired into the air to disperse a group of students conducting a demonstration.

Gunfire spread quickly, but subsided in 15 minutes after men stationed on roof tops poured bullets into the streets.

The strike was almost total in the interior of Cuba, but only partial in Havana. The greater part of the capital had lights this evening, although sections about the waterfront and in outlying districts were dark, but the gas remained shut off. Street car service was only partial, but was improving.

Plants and offices of the power company were heavily guarded by soldiers. Officers of the company expressed the belief tonight that the grip of Rafael Giraud on the workers had been broken. Giraud is a former company administrator whom Mendieta recently blamed for leading agitation. Workers were reported returning to their jobs.

President Mendieta, appealing to the working classes, to the owners of businesses and to the press to unite in efforts to stabilize the country, made public a manifesto in which he said:

"If these exhortations are not attended and if the present state of unrest continues, the Government, conscious of its responsibility, will act within its rights, using whatever methods it deems most efficient, because the salvation of the republic lies within the supreme law.

Invites Workers to Return.

"We are ready to respect all rights and to give all manner of guarantees, but our duty obliges us to use great zeal to insure public order and justice. The present, however, is not the moment for workers to follow the advice of professional agitators. I invite the workers to return to their jobs while their demands are studied by the Government to arrive at a just solution."

Further, the Government barred all manifestations and demonstrations. This action followed upon this afternoon's shooting, and presumably meant calling off the huge parade scheduled for tomorrow by the A. B. C. Society.

There were two promising signs in the labor picture. A committee representing the striking Havana bus operators accepted Mendieta's mediators' conciliation proposals and said they thought service would be resumed Monday.

Striking Cuba North Railway workers appeared disposed also to return to work. The workers syndicate will start discussing 21 demands with employers on Monday.

The Island-wide tobacco strike continued with valuable crops deteriorating.

The Cuban Electric Co. is a subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share. The government of former President Ramon Grau San Martin took over the plants on Jan. 15 after a strike was called in protest against the company's executives. Mendieta's action today was merely to restore the property to its owners in a legal way.

In Santiago, Cuban Electric Co. workers struck and such services as light, gas, and street cars were paralyzed.

Kent, and his Canton, O., address, the police recalled that a week ago a stolen sedan bearing Ohio license tags was found abandoned in Camden. A check-up revealed the car was from Canton and that it was stolen from a once notorious bank robber.

Yesterday morning four men held up a teller and a runner of the Pennsgrove National Bank and Trust Co. as they were taking $130,000 and some registered mail into the bank. The money was to be used in meeting checks presented by employes of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., who usually have their pay checks cashed by the bank.

The four men disappeared in a sedan, and three miles east of Pennsgrove they transferred to another car.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 3. — Two employes of the Coleman National Bank tonight identified John Newton, arrested in the hills near here today with $7800 on his person, as one of three men who robbed the bank of $23,750 yesterday. C. C. Edens, cashier, and Ed Lemay, bookkeeper of the bank, made the identification.

Records at the Oklahoma State penitentiary, McAlester, show that John Newton served four short terms there, two from Cherokee County for larceny; one from Tulsa County for forgery and a five-year sentence from Jefferson County for larceny. His last sentence was completed about two years ago.

Newton and a woman who said she was Marie Newton were arrested as they crouched in the rear seat of a farmer's motor car in the cedar hills west of Austin.

"Don't be so rough," protested Newton, as Capt. E. H. Hammond of the Texas Rangers, jerked him from the machine. Currency and silver dropped as he was hauled to his feet. "As I jerked buttons from his clothes," Capt. Hammond said, "money would spill out."

Newton passed a pistol to his woman companion when officers covered them, but neither made any effort to resist arrest.

4 KILLED IN RAID BY POLICEMEN ON OUTLAWS' HIDEOUT

Moore was not so well known to officers, although he had a police record.

Elliott was believed to have been associated with Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd in the robbery of a Sallisaw (Ok.) bank in November, 1932. He formerly was a minor league baseball player. Elliott escaped from the Granite, Ok., reformatory in 1932, was arrested in a dawn raid near Sapulpa about a year ago with Wilson and placed in jail at Pawhuska, from which they escaped. Arrested again, the two escaped again.

Wilson's first criminal record was at Tulsa, where, in 1924, he was arrested for motor car theft and sentenced to five years in the reformatory.

For many months officers and Federal operatives have expected serious trouble from outlaws who have intimidated some sections of the Cookson Hills area. On several occasions Ford Bradshaw, Aussie Elliott and their gang have shot up the towns of Vian and Sallisaw in wild-west fashion.

The Bradshaw gang once cornered a group of officers assembling to raid its Hill hideout. "Come out and fight like men," the outlaws were quoted by witnesses as saying. The band sped away after failing to get a showdown from the unorganized posse.

Movies Cut German Beer-Drinking.

NRA REPLY TO STEEL MEN ON LABOR ISSUE

Stands Fast on Right to Call Elections; Explains Statement Criticised.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In reply to vigorous criticism from the steel industry, NRA retracted today a press statement implying all company unions are dominated by the employers, but stood fast on the right of the National Labor Board to call a worker election whenever it is satisfied a "substantial" number of employes in a plant wants it.

Further, a joint statement by Hugh S. Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel, said, the rights of labor minorities to conduct negotiations of their own with their employer were not abridged by the latest presidential executive order on the Labor Board, despite its statement that representatives elected by a majority of workers "have been thereby designated to represent all the employes." . . .

This reference was inserted, it was indicated unofficially, to prevent either side from claiming the election unrepresentative because its adherents stayed away from the polls.

The point had caused a furore in industrial circles where fears were entertained that the order would lead to "closed shop" unionization of plants wherever the unions might show a bare majority in an election.

Rights of Smaller Groups.

The NRA statement said selection of majority representatives does not restrict the legal rights of smaller groups or individuals to deal separately with the employer, but that "as a practical proposition" neither Labor Board nor plant management could be expected to deal with "an indefinite number of employe representatives expressing every possible variety of opinion."

The presidential order at the bottom of the exchange was issued Friday night to clear the way for the Labor Board to act and obtain recognition for employes under the collective bargaining section of the industrial law, particularly in cases like the Weirton Steel Co. dispute. NRA's announcement of it to the press said: "The President's order is the direct result of the growing tendency on the part of industrial management to build up 'company unions' in their plants. These unions are operated by employes' representatives chosen by the employer rather than by the employes themselves."

What Steel Institute Said.

The next night the Steel Institute in New York issued a statement calling this a "flagrant misrepresentation of fact. We regard it as a violation of public trust." . . .

Today's answer to that was: "In so far as the statement in the press release might be read as saying that employes' representatives in all company unions are chosen by employers, it was not so intended, as there is no evidence that such is the case. Nor is it true that employes, if permitted to act in their own free choice, may not select a company union (meaning local plant union). The principal purpose of the order was to insure that the choice be free—not to influence the choice between any particular form of employe organization."

Only a brief answer was made to the Steel Institute's charge that the National Labor Board is biased, and that came from Senator Wagner, the board chairman: "The board heard all that argument last autumn and went right on sticking to its work and will continue to do so."

However, there was strong evidence pointing to early reorganization of the board to increase its effectiveness. Wagner's Senate duties have cut to almost nothing the time he can give the Labor Board, but even more serious has been the absence of other members from its sessions. Frequently industrial disputes have come up with no representative of industry present. Hearings have been conducted with William Green, president of the Federation of Labor, presiding and with none but labor members on the bench with him. At other times when important decisions were needed, it was impossible to round up enough members to vote them.

It was expected tonight that President Roosevelt, having furnished clearcut authority for the Board to act, would seek to have its machinery adjusted to function properly.

The Johnson-Richberg statement pointed out that neither the industrial act nor the President's order granted workers a right to a labor contract:

" . . . the right of collective bargaining is not the right to obtain a specific contract, because a contract must be the result of an agreement, and neither employes nor employers can be compelled to enter into a specific contract. But it is to be assumed that, if both employer and employes are assured that the representatives of the employes have been selected freely and without coercion to represent the desires of a majority of those affected, then any contract resulting from such collective bargaining will stabilize employment conditions and produce the most satisfactory relations possible between employer and employe."

ICKES AMENDS OIL CODE TO HELP SMALL REFINERS

Strikes Out Clause and Issues New Rules to Permit Withdrawals of Crude.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as oil code administrator, announced today cancellation of one section of the oil code and issuance of new regulations to assure adequate supplies of crude for small refiners and at the same time preventing xcessive withdrawals of crude from storage.

Ickes also announced appointment of J. Howard Marshall, member of the Petroleum Administrative Board, and R. Gordon Lowe, an attorney of the board, as his representatives on the board of governors and executive committee which will supervise operation of the gasoline stabilization pool provided for in the recently approved purchase agreement.

In another action he ordered a paragraph added to Rule 25 of Article 5 of the code to require manufacturers of used or reclaimed oil to brand their products to show clearly that they were made from used oil.

The canceled section of the code was Section 3 of Article 4, which permitted refiners without permission to withdraw crude from storage when supplies are not available within economic limits.

AIRWAYS OFFICER TORE UP PAPERS SENATE SOUGHT

Another Also Admits in Mail Contract Inquiry That He Removed Subpenaed Documents.

By PAUL .. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Senate, which yesterday ordered the arrest of William P. McCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce under the Coolidge and Hoover administrations, because of his refusal to produce correspondence relating to Government air mail contracts, probably will decide Monday what action, if any, it will take in the cases of two other men who today admitted removing documents from McCracken's files after the Senate had subpenaed them.

These men are L. H. Bryttin, vice-president of Northwest Airways, and Gilbert Given, secretary to Harris M. Hanshue, president of Transcontinental and Western Air. Bryttin readily told the investigating committee today that he destroyed the letters removed by him, but Given stated that he sent his batch to New York and that, so far as he knew, all had been returned. Both witnesses testified that their companies agreed to the inspection of their letters to McCracken only after certain ones had been removed from the files.

Before Senate Tomorrow.

McCracken, who was released on bond last night after being formally placed under arrest by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, is scheduled to appear before the Senate Monday noon for questioning by members of that body. If his explanations are unsatisfactory, the Senate undoubtedly will certify his case to the local United States District Attorney with an order to proceed against him for contempt.

Many Senators have expressed the opinion that no explanation which McCracken can make will purge him. They assert that his part in destroying documents for which a Senate subpena had been issued constituted flagrant contempt.

Next to the admissions of Bryttin and Given, the high spot of today's testimony was a memorandum which disclosed that the merger of Transcontinental Air Transport with the Westeren Air Express was forced on them by Walter F. Brown, then Postmaster-General. The memorandum, written by a Western Air Express official, said the directors of his company entered into the transaction with the utmost reluctance, and only when it had become plain that the company would get no mail subsidy from Brown until it consented.

One of the principal owners of the Transcontinental was the Pennsylvania Railroad. It still has a large interest in the merged company. In fact, a Pennsylvania vice-president is chairman of the air line's board of directors.

The Three Guardsmen.

An amusing incident of the day's hearing was testimony that, although the committee sent three postoffice inspectors to guard McCracken's files in a local office building, to insure that none were removed, and, although they did watch it for three days, on each day all three went out to lunch together, remaining 45 minutes. Until committee members called their attention to this dereliction, apparently it had occurred to none of them that they had not kept a strict vigil.

"You went to McCracken's office and got those letters because you knew this committee was seeking them, did you not?" Chairman Black (Dem.), Alabama, asked Bryttin. "Yes, they were personal, and I didn't want them to be examined in public," was the calm reply of the elderly airline owner.

He said Frederick P. Lee, McCracken's partner, was present, and "did not protest" against their removal. The witness said he took the letters to his own office, in the same building, "tore them up and threw them in the waste basket like any other useless papers."

"And it was the day after you did this that you told McCracken that any remaining letters from you in his possession might be submitted to the committee." "It was subsequently."

"What a Serious Thing."

Bryttin, a young and obviously frightened man, told the committee that his action in obtaining documents from McCracken's office and forwarding them to the New York office of his company, was under instructions from his superiors. He emphatically denied that he knew a subpena was out for them, or that he knew what they contained.

"How did they happen to return them?" Black inquired. "I supposed when those people up there realized what a serious thing they had done, they decided they had better get them back."

Given said they did not come back in the same envelope, and he had no means of knowing whether the returned packet, which he submitted to the committee, contained all the papers he sent to New York. Postoffice inspectors are endeavoring to ascertain the amount of postage on each parcel.

Counselor Hay Thinks City Could Operate Gas Plant as Successfully as Waterworks

Declares Laclede Rates "Extortionate" and That St. Louis Should Ascertain Cost of Establishing Municipal Setup.

In a statement given to the press yesterday, City Counselor Hay expressed the opinion that St. Louis could operate a municipal gas plant just as successful as it has conducted the water system for 98 years.

Current inquiries by the city, he thinks, should have two objectives—determination of the cost of establishing a municipal gas plant, and determination of the fair value of the property of the Laclede Gas Light Co., which now serves the city with a mixture of natural and manufactured gas. The city has the clear right to build its own system or acquire Laclede's system by purchase or condemnation, Hay declared.

Appearing before the Special Natural Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen Friday, Hay advocated entry of the city in the gas business, denouncing Laclede's rates as "extortionate." The committee is considering the possibility of obtaining straight natural gas for St. Louis and has taken up the question of municipal distribution of such a supply.

Text of Hay's Statement.

Hay's statement follows:

"In my judgment, the biggest single problem confronting the people of St. Louis is the fuel problem.

"This problem involves both the pocketbooks and the health of the people. The people are getting cheap coal, but they are paying rates for gas little short of extortionate. So long as gas or any other substitute for cheap coal is out of the reach of the great masses of the people, they will continue to buy cheap coal and smother the city with smoke.

"In my judgment, we can accomplish little with the smoke problem, except as we attack it by offering the people a substitute for cheap coal at prices within their reach. I am very interested in Street Director McDevitt's suggestion of city heating plants. Such plant as these, if practicable, plus gas at reasonable prices, to be furnished the people for heating and cooking purposes, will solve the smoke problem.

No Prospect of Cutting Rates.

"There is, in my judgment, no prospect whatsoever of being able to beat down as rates under the present ownership and operation of the gas company of this city, and the present method of accomplishing reductions. By hammering away we can accomplish something—enough perhaps to justify the effort, but it is my firm conviction that we will never be able to secure rates from the present company which will furnish the people gas at rates to which they are entitled in a city of this size!

The former administration worked faithfully in the effort to secure reductions. I took up the fight where my predecessor left off. The sum total of the whole thing is an order of the Public Service Commission, for a 3½ per cent reduction in domestic rates, and that order is tied up and made non-effective by an injunction issued by the Federal Court in Kansas City.

"It is my opinion that the City of St. Louis can operate a gas plant just as successfully as it has operated the water system for 98 years. A comparison of the financial condition of and the service rendered by the municipal water plant of St. Louis and the Laclede Gas Co. furnishes the persuasive and, in my judgment, a well nigh conclusive argument in favor of a municipal gas plant. Straight natural gas is at our gates to supply gas just as the Mississippi River is at our gates to supply water. We ought to have as much sense in the gas business as we have in the water business.

Two Methods of Approach.

"There are two approaches to a municipal gas system in St. Louis: one, in the building of a municipal plant outright to be run in competition with the present gas company; the other, the acquisition of the present gas company properties either by purchase or condemnation proceedings.

"In my judgment, the investigations now going on covering the gas question should have two objectives, one, to determine the cost of building and setting up a municipal gas plant; second, to ascertain the fair value of the properties of the present gas company.

"The City has the clear right either to construct its own gas system or to acquire by purchase or condemnation the present gas system. The investigation should place the city in a position to determine which course to pursue.

"If the present properties can be acquired at a fair and reasonable price, then there is much to be said in favor of adopting that course. The City, however, should place itself in such a position as to be able to deal at arm's length with the gas company. The investigation now under way should place the City in that position."

SAYS REPUBLICANS USE CWA AND RELIEF WORK TO AID PARTY

Democratic Patronage Chairman Charges They Give President "Lip Service Loyalty."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — Chairman Lozier of the Democratic Patronage Committee said today that information supplied his committee disclosed that Republicans not only held a majority of the more important relief jobs, but that they were organizing Republicans while in Democratic employ.

"Reports from the districts and the states show that in the relief and CWA work Republicans dominate in the key positions," he said. "Many of them are partisan, standpat, reactionary Republicans who, while outwardly giving the President a lip service loyalty, are engaged in thinly veiled activities for the organization and strengthening of the partisan Republican organization."

INDICATIONS INSULL MAY STAY LONGER IN GREECE

Police Doctor Decides Fugitive Can Travel Only Under "Comfortable Conditions."

ATHENS, Feb. 3.—The comparative cheerfulness of the Samuel Insull household today led to the belief that two University of Athens doctors, who examined the former Chicago utilities executive, had concluded he should remain here longer.

Dr. Nicholas Haniotis, one of two police physicians who examined the 74-year-old fugitive Jan. 29 and decided he could travel only "under comfortable conditions," was present at the 45-minute diagnosis today by the medical professors, George Livieratos and Vladimir Bensis.

The professors' report, Dr. Haniotis said, would be like his. It will be submitted to the Interior Minister who will decide whether an earlier expulsion order is to be carried out or whether Insull's health will prevent such action.

"If my husband did not have the courage of a lion," Mrs. Insull was quoted as saying, "he would have succumbed long since to the persecution of his enemies in America."

The residence permit of Insull, who is wanted in the United States to face charges in connection with the failure of the utilities empire, expired Jan. 31, and he pleaded that he was too ill to travel.

SUES TO COMPEL JACKSON COUNTY COURT TO OK PAYROLL

Circuit Clerk Acts After Body Refuses to Approve List Without Salary Reductions.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3.—An application for a writ of mandamus to compel the County Court of Jackson County to approve the payroll of the Jackson County Circuit Court Clerk, without enforcing salary reductions ordered by the County Court, was filed in the Supreme Court today by Circuit Court Clerk Lynn G. Buford of Jackson County.

The County Court has refused to approve payment of Buford's 36 deputies for January, at their regular salary rates, ranging from $1500 to $2100 a year. Reductions ordered by the Court ranged up to $50 a month.

Buford, in applying for the writ, said he had prepared the payroll under the new county budget law, passed by the 1933 Legislature; that the payroll had been approved by the Circuit Court, and that the County Court had no authority to reject it or change it. The question of validity of the county budget law is not raised in the petition, but may be involved in the Court's decision on the writ.

STUDEBAKERS GET TAX CUT

They Had Appealed Levy on Income for 1928.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Income taxes of $11,623 and $24,992 respectively for 1928 were assessed against J. M. Studebaker Jr. and George M. Studebaker of South Bend, Ind., today in stipulation judgments filed by the Board of Tax Appeals. The two stockholders of the Studebaker Vehicle Co. appealed assessments growing out of the dissolution of the company in 1928. J. M. Studebaker was originally assessed $13,866, and the other petitioner appealed a claim of $41,294.

Both charged the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in levying the original assessment, erroneously estimated the value of their stock as of March 1, 1913, at $564.40 per share, in computing the loss resulting from the dissolution of the company.

LEADERS DECIDE TO PROLONG DRIVE

Chairman Stifel Says Decreases in Subscriptions of Individuals Account for Staggering Total.

The prospect that the United Relief Campaign would fall more than $1,000,000 short of its $3,700,000 goal was seen by campaign leaders last night after a study of the reports made during the two weeks the drive has been in progress.

So far there have been 78,523 contributions, totaling $1,802,480, or 47 per cent of the quota. The campaign, originally scheduled to end Friday, has been extended indefinitely.

Arnold G. Stifel, campaign chairman, said all contributions are being reported as soon as they are made, and none has been held back.

"An analysis by the Committee of 100," Stifel said "shows that the campaign is falling short because of decreases in the subscriptions of individuals. Many of these decreases are made thoughtlessly, needlessly, or selfishly, and while they do not seem large when considered individually, in the aggregate they amount to a staggering total.

Still Working on Larger Givers.

"The effort of the Committee of 100 to obtain increased gifts among corporations and larger givers under the recently inaugurated 'fair share' plan of fixing equitable amounts, is meeting with unusual success. That effort will be continued.

"However, the Committee of 100 feels that the public should be advised now of the true condition, so that if in the end the campaign falls short of its goal, the responsibility will lie with those who have failed to give adequately. The committee also feels confident that the great majority of those who have cut their subscriptions will, in the light of the above facts, come forward voluntarily during the coming week and give their fair share toward the accomplishment of the goal."

Failure of the campaign by a margin of anything like $1,000,000, Stifel said, would be disastrous for the 91 relief and welfare institutions for which the drive is being conducted.

Notwithstanding the Government unemployment relief program, he said, provision must still be made for hospitals, clinics, settlement houses, day nurseries, homes for the aged, and other institutions such as those participating in the campaign. Their needs during 1934, he added, will equal, if they do not surpass, those of 1933.

$868,000 in Larger Gifts.

Of the $1,802,480 so far pledged, $868,000 has been subscribed through the larger subscriptions division, which has attained slightly more than 50 per cent of its quota.

The employe division has the next best record with $609,637, or 47 per cent of its quota. The general division has obtained pledges of $149,444, which is 45 per cent of its quota, and the county division $30,398, or 17 per cent of quota.

In addition to these totals the committee of 100, headed by Ethan A. H. Shepley, has obtained $105,000, representing increases in subscriptions of donors in the larger subscriptions division. The figures to date include 1145 contributors through the larger subscriptions division; 55,894 in the employe division; 18,070 in the general division and 3383 in the county division.

Leaders in all divisions met with their workers yesterday and urged them to spend the week-end in solicitation. They were asked to report at Hotel Statler tomorrow noon for a meeting which will open the third week of the campaign.

City Counselor Hay will speak in behalf of the campaign at noon today over KMOX. The Rev. Russell J. Wilbur, pastor of Notre Dame de Lourdes Church, will speak over KSD at 9 p. m.

Werrenraths Re-Wed for Sentiment

ON the sixth anniversary of their wedding, Reinald Werrenrath, noted baritone, and his wife were married by a minister at the home of a friend in Winnetka, Ill. The ceremony was planned as a surprise by the singer for his wife, because, he said, "she always looks sad when she sees a wedding in the movies." The first nuptials of the couple was a civil one without the wedding march or orange blossoms, performed by the Mayor of Weehawken, N. J.

KIDNAPED BANKER'S FATHER RENEWS PLEA

Suggests Intermediary be Chosen Anywhere in the United States.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 3.—An aged father tonight made his third public appeal for the return of his son, Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, seized for $200,000 ransom more than two weeks ago.

"Please—give this—all—the prominence—you can," Adolph Bremer, principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Co., begged.

In the living room of his home the elder Bremer stood with head bowed as he asked once more for the immediate release of the 37-year-old bank owner.

"I realize that I cannot publish my choice in making this contact," Bremer's statement said. "To convince you that there is no catch in this effort of mine, I can see but one way to work out our negotiations.

Edward "to Select Someone."

"Edward will have to select someone regardless of where he may be located in the United States. Have Edward write this party a letter in his own handwriting referring to this notice in the press so that I will know he has read it. Enclose with Edward's letter your instructions to the party that Edward selects but be sure to give sufficient time for the instructions to be carried out."

An intimation that police and Federal authorities would be given the full co-operation of the family in attempting to track down the abductors was contained in the last paragraph of the statement. It said:

"If I have not heard from Edward within three days and three nights I shall understand that you do not wish to deal with me and I will feel I am released from any obligations as contained in this note."

With Authorities' Consent.

Bremer then said in the statement that city, State and Federal authorities "have consented to allow me in my own way for a limited time to seek the return of my boy. First and last I am only interested in the safe return of Edward and if the suggestions are carried out, I will have no interest in any activity after my son is returned. My telephone in home and office have been watched; therefore contact in this way is not desirable. I merely mention this to indicate to you men that I am sincere in my desire and efforts to communicate with you free from any outside interference."

"I give you my word of honor when this contact is made no one except the parties named by you shall have any knowledge of its existence."

PASTOR'S WIFE, YOUTH CONFESS KILLING

Student Says He Fired Shot at Indiana Minister; Woman Admits Plot.

By the Associated Press.

WABASH, Ind., Feb. 3.—Shortly after the body of the Reverend Gaylord V. Saunders had been brought to his home here today from Indianapolis, where he was found murdered early Friday, Theodore Mathers, 19-year-old student embalmer, was arrested in connection with his slaying and the pastor's wife was detained for questioning.

Chief of Police Michael Morrisey of Indianapolis said Mathers confessed the killing and also made statements which led to detention of the pastor's wife.

Mathers was reputed to have said, "Yes, I fired the shot." The Indianapolis officer also quoted Mrs. Saunders as saying she had plotted her husband's death.

Chief Morrisey said he did not press Mrs. Saunders for an elaboration of her statement that she was implicated in a plot to kill her husband. The pastor's widow has been ill for some time and under the care of a nurse. She was permitted to return to her home after a brief period of questioning.

When brought to police headquarters here, Chief Morrisey said, "Mrs. Saunders made only a brief statement." He quoted her as saying: "Ted did it and I helped him plan it."

Saunder's body was found slumped in the front seat of his automobile in Indianapolis. He had been shot in the back of the head. Police said they found a bottle of whisky in the car.

Marie Slaughter and Mary Gearhart, restaurant operators, told investigators that the pastor and two companions were in their establishment at 1 o'clock Friday morning. The women said Saunders was intoxicated.

Saunders preached his farewell sermon at the Wabash Church last Sunday. He had been attending the school for undertakers since last September, returning to Wabash on week-ends. He and Mathers roomed together. A diamond ring, a watch and some money were missing when Saunders' body was found. His wife and two children continued to live in Wabash, although Mrs. Saunders occasionally visited her husband in Indianapolis.

Run Over by His Own Auto.

Dewey Strebler, 25-year-old paperhangeer, 3007A Eads avenue, suffered severe lacerations of the left leg last night when he cranked his automobile while it was in gear and was run over by the machine in front of 1308 South Sixth street. The car continued 200 feet south to Rutger street, jumped the sidewalk and collided with a wall of St. Stephens Episcopal Church. Strebler was taken to City oHspital.

FIRST TESTIMONY GIVEN IN POISONED HIGHBALL MURDER

State Begins Presentation Against Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean in Death of Dr. J. P. Kennedy.

By the Associated Press.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 3.—With a jury finally completed after five and a half days of wrangling, the State late today called its first witness in the trial of 33-year-old Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, child specialist, charged with the murder of her friend and associate, Dr. John Preston Kennedy, prominent surgeon, by giving him a poisoned whisky highball.

The courtroom was crowded with the friends and associates of the two physicians. Women, with sewing baskets, knitting bags and box lunches, occupied a large section of the seats.

Dr. Dean, smartly gowned in brown tweed and fur, showed no sign of nervousness as she came in for the afternoon session. She seated herself at defense counsel table, rested her chin on a gloved hand and allowed her eyes to survey the room.

Tells of Doctor's Midnight Trip.

August Thalheimer, at whose home Dr. Kennedy lived after separating from his wife, was the first witness. He told the jury that Dr. Kennedy became ill after going out on the night of July 21 "and staying out until 4:30 a. m."

He said he noticed the physician dressed with great care and went out about midnight after receiving several telephone calls, but the State's attempt to show these calls came from Dr. Dean was balked by a court ruling.

The State's procedure in starting off with a description of Kennedy's illness was attacked by Chief Defense Counsel A. F. Gardner, but he was overruled.

Thalheimer said Dr. Kennedy was "just like a member of the family." He said that after the physician returned home he saw him lying crosswise on his bed.

"He was undressed and din't have on his pajamas," the witness said. "His clothes were on the floor."

Doctor Was Not Drunk.

"Was he drunk?" Prosecutor Fred Witty asked. "No, sir. He may have had one drink, but he wasn't drunk. He was sick and moaning."

Thalheimer said Dr. Kennedy had had stomach hemorrhages and complained of pains in his mouth, throat and stomach for five days, during which he could eat no solid food—"only shaved ice."

Thalheimer said that Dr. Kennedy, though ill, answered a call to a Greenwood hospital on July 31 and there completed an operation on a friend, collapsing when the operation was over.

"He came home sick and weak and kept his hand at his throat," said Thalheimer. "The next day he went to Baptist Hospital in Jackson, where he died."

"Did you ever see Dr. Kennedy drunk?" he was asked. "Never," said the witness.

The Court called time until Mondays as Thalheimer said that Kennedy's estranged wife and young daughter lived in Greenwood most of the time Kennedy lived at the Thalheimers.

State's Theory of Case.

The State charges that Dr. Kennedy died of poison contained in a whisky highball handed him by Dr. Dean during a midnight tryst at the woman's apartment July 21, but no direct mention of poison had yet been made by the State before the jury when the jury retired tonight.

Selection of the jury was completed this morning when the defense, exhausted by challenges, accepted the State's tender of B. R. Blanchard, planter, as the twelfth juror.

Defense Overruled Three Times.

The defense then renewed its request for additional challenges, and when this was denied made its third motion for mistrial, alleging the State had violated regular procedure by removing previously accepted jurors from the box on evidence of bias. Presiding Judge S. F. Davis overruled the mistrial motion for the third time.

The jury, as sworn, included seven Mississippi delta planters, a clerk, baker, druggist, night watchman and a CWA worker. Nine of them are married men.

CIRCUS WOMAN FOUND MURDERED ON INDIANA FARM

Body of Alice Martin, Trapeze Performer Known as Alice de Garno, in Shallow Grave.

By the Associated Press.

TELL CITY, Ind., Feb. 3.—Miss Alice Martin, 52 years old, former circus trapeze performer, was found murdered today on the 150-acre farm to which she retired about ten years ago. The body was found in a shallow grave on a bluff high above the Ohio river.

The skull was fractured and the throat cut. Apparently the murder was committed about a week ago. The body was dressed in two pairs of men's overalls and heavy galoshes. Officers who examined the house said they found very few articles of women's clothing.

Miss Martin weighed only 90 pounds but was very muscular. She undertook the heaviest kind of farm work.

The grave which held the body was found near the barn. It had been covered over. Searchers discovered a path leading from the barn and followed it to the grave.

A search was begun for her farm hand, Ernest Wright, 32, who disappeared yesterday soon after officers began searching the farm for Miss Martin.

Sheriff Anton Voges said he learned that Miss Martin had scolded her farmhand many times recently for neglecting chores.

Carmi Badger, 21, a stepbrother of Wright, was taken into custody for questioning after storekeepers at Derby said that Badger had accompanied Wright to the village within the week.

The murder victim's professional name was Alice de Garno. Before retirement she had performed with Barnum & Bailey and had played winter engagements in vaudeville.

Frank Sandage Jr., a tenant farmer's son, reported her disappearance. He made two trips last week to her isolated farm house to deliver groceries and mail. The boy told officers that Wright recently told him Miss Martin had gone to Plainfield, N. J., where she owned property. Authorities found that she had not arrived in Plainfield.

The Martin farm is near the village of Derby. The former trapeze performer lived alone in a house overlooking the river, some distance from the nearest road.

The search for Wright was carried on through the wooded hills along the river. He formerly lived at Tobinsport, 12 miles southwest of here.

MARRIED AND IN PLANE CRASH ON THE SAME DAY

Charles S. Mangan Starts on Honeymoon Trip Hour After Miami (Fla.) Accident.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 3.—Married at 3 p. m., pulled from bay waters after airplane crash at 6 p. m., on honeymoon trip northward at 7 p. m.—that was today's record for Charles Stephen Mangan.

Mangan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Mangan, formerly of Washington, and Suzanne Bastian, daughter of Mrs. Harry S. Bastian of Indianapolis, were married at 3 o'clock.

Before starting on their honeymoon trip northward by automobile they decided to celebrate the occasion by flights over the city. Mrs. Mangan flew first with Pilot Al Mitton. Then Mangan took her place in the small cabin plane. Completing a turn about the area, Mitton had leveled off the plane for landing when it suddenly nosed down into the water. A witness threw them a rope and pulled Mitton and Mangan ashore. Both were unhurt, but the plane was damaged.

Mangan returned home for a change of clothing and then he and his bride started northward.

JURY ACQUITS COOK IN ST. JOSEPH LYNCHING CASE

Verdict for Walter Garton on First Ballot—Was Accused of Part in Hanging of Negro.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 3.—Walter Garton, cook, was acquitted by a jury in Buchanan County Circuit Court tonight on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the lynching of Lloyd Warner, Negro, here Nov. 28.

The verdict was brought in after the jury had deliberated slightly less than an hour. The acquittal was voted on the first ballot.

Garton was returned immediately to jail where he is being held on a charge of malicious destruction of property in connection with the lynching. His bond was set at $1000.

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt is sitting in Washington right now awaiting your verdict," William O. Sawyers, Assistant Attorney-General of Missouri, told the jury in the closing argument for the State. "It is the wish of our President that law and order be restored in this land. You gentlemen can by your verdict say whether Missouri stands with the President. Lynching is a national evil today. Your verdict will do much to help restore that respect for law and order so badly needed."

"The victim of this lynching should have been hanged," the Assistant Attorney-General said, but he added that he should have been hanged in a legal manner.

Four Possible Verdicts.

Judge J. V. Gaddy, trial Judge, gave four instructions to the jury. It might find him guilty of first degree murder and assess the death penalty or life imprisonment. It might find him guilty of second degree murder. It might find him guilty of manslaughter, which carries as light punishment as a jail sentence and fine, or it might acquit. Defense counsel had sought only two instructions, first degree murder or acquittal. Sawyers had asked for the four sets of instruction.

Case Before the Jury.

The case went to trial last Monday. Two State's witnesses, Police Patrolman W. J. McGinnis and John Zook, former policeman, accused of murder in the lynching, testified that Garton was active in the mob that night. Defense witnesses testified they did not see Garton among the mob leaders. Garton himself did not take the stand.

Garton is 41 years old and served overseas in the World War. He has been employed in a small restaurant here as a cook. Warner, 19 years old, was hanged and his body burned by a mob that stormed the Buchanan County jail several nights after Warner is said to have criminally attacked a white girl.

Garton and six others were indicted by a grand jury Dec. 31 on murder charges growing out of the lynching.

Humorist Who Is Dead

MONTAGUE GLASS

CARL L. SCHWARTZ, MANAGER OF M. A. A. 17 YEARS, DIES

Carl L. Schwartz, manager of the Missouri Athletic Association for 17 years, died of pneumonia at St. John's Hospital yesterday after a week's illness. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Schwartz was born in Nokomis, Ill., and came to St. Louis as a young man. Before he became manager of the M. A. A., he was chairman of the House Committee. At one time he was secretary to the late W. K. Bixby of the American Car & Foundry Co. He resided at the club during the winter and had a country home near Manchester, Mo.

'POTASH-PERLMUTTER' AUTHOR DIES SUDDENLY

Montague Glass Succumbs to Cerebral Hemorrhage Suffered Two Days Ago.

By the Associated Press.

WESTPORT, Conn., Feb. 3.—Montague Glass, noted author of the Potash and Perlmutter series of short stories, died today at his Westport summer home. He was 56 years old.

The writer was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage two days ago. He had been in poor health for some time. His wife, the former Caroline Patterson of Port Jervis, N. Y., was at his bedside when he died at 5 p. m.

Glass was born in Manchester, England, July 23, 1877, coming to the United States at the age of 13.

Glass, who spent considerable time in Europe, was educated at the College of the City of New York and New York University.

Besides his widow, a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Glass, a student at Rosemary Hall, survives.

Glass' first creation of note—and his most famous work—was the collection of sketches published under the title of "Potash and Perlmutter," in 1910.

When Glass finished college he followed the advice of his family and entered the garment business. But cloaks and suits, he said later, never appealed to him as much as did the daily contact with those in the business. He began to write of them in 1900 and, as he told associates, "built up as fine a collection of refusal slips as you ever saw," before the first of them were accepted.

The Potash and Perlmutter stories were continued and were followed by others of characters built on Jewish folk he met in his 12 years among the merchants of Manhattan's garment district. In 1913, Glass, in collaboration with Charles Klein, wrote his first characters into a play under the same title as the book. The play made history on Broadway with one of the longest runs of that time.

Wrote Other Plays.

It was followed by a second "Abe and Mawruss," written with Roi Coopere Megrue and others. It, too, was a success and, with Jules Eckert Goodman, Glass wrote three other plays, "His Honor Abe Potash," (1919); "Partners Again," (1921); and "Potash and Perlmutter Settle Things (1926).

His dramatic work in collaboration with Goodman also included "Object: Matrimony," based on the book of that title which he wrote; "Business Before Pleasure," "It's Never Too Late," and others.

GOLD BUYING SEEN AS GIVING DOLLAR DEFINITE BACKING

President Represented as Believing Standing Offer to Take Metal Helps to Peg Value.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Administration officials, in a discussion of the views expressed by President Roosevelt in his recent message to Congress, said today he had abandoned all thought of putting gold back into circulation, and believed the present standing offer to buy newly-mined and newly-imported gold was sufficient to give the dollar a definite, pegged gold value.

The Treasury has set a new price on its gold holdings as the result of the President's action in reducing the dollar to 59.06 per cent of its old gold weight and lumped the profit of $2,805,512,060 into its general receipts. The result was that today's daily statement of the nation's financial position for the first time since early in the depression showed a surplus instead of a deficit.

Profit Helps the Showing.

Where yesterday, expenditures were listed as running $1,922,598,173 behind receipts, today's summary listed $973,716,937 more receipts than expenditures. Yesterday's statement showed the dollar value of the Treasury's gold, including that transferred from the Federal Reserve System, as $4,034,867,000. Today it was valued at $7,018,263,925.

Treasury officials reiterated that there was no intention of applying the profit from the gold to the deficit and that the final figure for the fiscal year would show a deficit of seven billion dollars as estimated by President Roosevelt. Presumably the gold profit will be segregated later from the nation's ordinary receipts.

Of this profit two billion dollars was appropriated automatically by the monetary bill for the stabilization fund with which the administration plans to regulate the dollar's foreign value. With that deducted, on the basis of today's statement, there still would have been a deficit of $1,026,183,063.

"Gold Bullion Standard."

Whether the United States is now on a "gold bullion standard," officials said, was purely a question of how that standard was defined. Secretary Morgenthau has called the present system a "1934 model gold bullion standard." Although many economists and bankers have concurred, others have not.

But the Government has offered to buy all imported gold, newly mined gold and scrap gold, for $35 in currency for each ounce offered, which, administration advisers contend, has given the dollar a fixed gold value, and made it exchangeable for that amount of gold in the all-important world markets.

Dollar Off in London—32½ Tons of Gold on Way to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The American dollar showed a net loss of three cents to the pound today during a half-day exchange market session in which the United States currency had an unsteady course compared to Friday's firm tone.

The dollar closed at $4.93½ to the pound after falling to $4.95¾ from an opening of $4.89½. Gold currencies were somewhat weaker, the French franc closing at 77.7 to the pound as against the overnight rate of 77.50.

Two great liners, meanwhile, sailed for the United States with a total of 32½ tons of gold whose estimated value has more than $30,000,000. Other shipments bring the total to $40,000,000. The Steamship President Roosevelt is carrying $6,200,000 for the U. S. Treasury, on purchases by the RFC.

HONOLULU, Feb. 3.—Hawaii had its first bank holdup when two men robbed a branch bank in the seaside village of Paia, Island of Maui, and escaped with $1200 today. Both robbers were unmasked and only one was armed. No previous bank robberies had occurred because, authorities said, it was believed there was no refuge for criminals.

Nazi Revises Psalm of David Because of 'Jewish Taint'

Wilhelm Teudt Rewrites 75 of Poems in New 'Germanized' Hymnbook, Eliminates 75 Others.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—A need for "thoroughly purging" the Psalm of David "from Jewish taint" was advanced today in a new hymn book published by a leader of the new Nazi cult.

The book is by Wilhelm Teudt, a pioneer in the movement whose "guiding strength" is gained "from the religious inheritance of the German people," and consists of 75 revised psalms—in blank verse—instead of the original 150.

While not entirely eliminating the Old Testament, Teudt said many features in it were obnoxious and should be pruned. The so-called psalms of revenge he eliminated altogether. He said he stood for a new religion which "unites conceptions of God, nature, morality and heroism, which are the imperishable, God-given heritage of Germans."

The Revised 87th Psalm.

How Teudt has rewritten the poems and "Germanized" them is shown in this excerpt from his revision of the 87th Psalm:

"The Lord loveth the height of Germany more than all the dwellings abroad.

"The Lord loveth the yew tree of the Odenwald and the oak of the Baltic.

"I will make mention of the vulgar Euphrates and the Ganges, where our forefathers ruled.

"Behold the lands of the Goths, the Longobards, and Andalusians: It shall be said our brethren were born and died there, but on Osning (part of the Teutoburger Forest) the Lord shall count those sprung from blood of the son of Mannus: Ingo Istu and Ermin." (Ancient Germanic guards.)

The King James Bible Version.

The original, as contained in the authorized or King James version of the Bible, reads:

"His foundation is in the holy mountains.

"Glorious things are spoken of thee, O City of God.

"I will make mention of Rahab and Babylon to them that know me: behold Philistia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia; this man was born there.

"And of Zion it shall be said, this and that man was born in her: and the highest himself shall establish her.

"The Lord shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there.

"As well the singers as the players on instruments shall be there: all my springs are in Thee."

Teudt frankly revealed himself as an anti-fundamentalist. In the foreword to his volume he contended that Christ was of pure Aryan blood—"his whole spirituality being foreign to Jews."

AMERICANS PARDONED IN MALLORCA ATTACK

Spanish Supreme Court Grants Freedom to Four Jailed for Assault on Guard.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 3.—The Spanish Supreme Court decreed a pardon today for four Americans held in Palma, Mallorca, jail for attacking a civil guard eight months ago.

Minister of Justice Alverez Valdes informed the Associated Press the prisoners will be released immediately—on the condition they leave the Belearic Islands—after the publication of the decision in the official gazette tomorrow or Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass., Roger F. Mead of New York, and Edmund A. Blodgett of Stamford, Conn., had been sentenced to six months and a day for "insulting" the guard—a crime against the Spanish armed forces. They and Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O., served 46 days before their trial by court-martial, and the four served 13 days after conviction by the Supreme Court.

A Supreme Court official told the Associated Press that a snag on which the magistrates hesitated was the allegation that one of the group called Spain's armed civil guards "comic opera soldiers" and that the Supreme Court Judges were unwilling to let this slur on "the pride of the Spanish armed forces" go unpunished. Therefore, he said, the lower court-martial's acquittal was reversed, except in the case of Fullerton, on the grounds that a verbal insult had been committed against the army.

Minister Valdes waged a diplomatic fight for a pardon and cut quickly through rep tape, a process that usually requires months. Through the persistent efforts of American Ambassador Claude G. Bowers and Government Ministers the pardon was decided on 15 days after the Supreme Court decision to sentence them. Final authority regarding pardons in such cases rests with the Supreme Court.

CONTINENTAL LIFE EARNINGS AMPLE, MAYS CONTENDS

Puts 1933 Income From Interest and Rent at 3.89 Per Cent of Assets ($16,182,000).

Testimony that earnings of the Continental Life Insurance Co. in 1933 from interest and rents were more than necessary to meet policy liabilities was given in Circuit Judge Ryan's court yesterday by Ed Mays, president of the company.

Mays was testifying for the fifth day in denial of the allegations of State Insurance Commissioner R. Emmett O'Malley that the Continental Life is insolvent and mismanaged. Superintendent O'Malley is asking the court to dissolve the company and give its business into his custody. Tomorrow will be the twentieth day of trial of the suit.

Mays presented a calculation which he said was based on figures from the company's books, with certain adjustments, showing net earnings in 1933 from interest and rents amounting to 3.89 per cent on the year's average ledger assets of $16,182,917. This did not include the accident and health department.

If Bank Had Opened.

"If the Grand National Bank had opened," he said, "we would have received at least $50,000 more in interest on our certificates of deposit and the net earnings would have been 4.2 per cent in 1933 compared with 4.17 per cent in 1932."

He said that earnings of 3.46 per cent were sufficient to take care of policy liabilities. His testimony was in refutation of the Insurance Department's charge that the company is not able to meet its current liabilities.

Continuing his testimony, Mays said he had expected the Grand National Bank, of which he is president, to open about the first of this year. As has been told, the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency of a plan of reorganization for opening the bank was withdrawn after Superintendent O'Malley filed the dissolution suit against the insurance company, which has more than $600,000 on deposit in the bank and was to finance the reopening.

$145,153 Not Collected.

As considered by Mays, the income from interest and rents included $145,153 accrued but not collected at the end of the year. In this item was $35,105 unpaid rental on space in the company's home office building at 3615 Olive street. The Grand National Bank, which occupies the ground floor, owed $14,583 of that and Mays owed $12,000 for the penthouse apartment on the twenty-first and twenty-second floors leased to him at $1000 a month.

Questioned by his attorney, Theodore Rassieur, he said he considered these accounts were good.

"What about yours?" Rassieur asked.

"I'm good for it unless this suit ruins me," he answered.

Mays identified a financial statement of the Rahmberg Motor Co., which owes the insurance company $25,000, showing net profits of $33,083 for 1933 and "net worth" of $51,660 at the end of the year. This company is now being operated by J. A. Van Loon, a director of Continental Life, Mays said.

KAY FRANCIS FILES DIVORCE SUIT; CHARGES NAGGING

Movie Actress Says Kenneth McKenna, Actor-Director, Continually Harassed Her.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 3.—Kay Francis, movie star, filed suit for divorce here today against Kenneth McKenna, actor-director. The action was brought under their true names, Katherine Gibbs Mielziner and Leo Mielziner.

Miss Francis charged McKenna continually "nagged and harassed her." Her selection of a home, her manner of dressing and even her acting did not suit her husband, she said. She further charged that he assumed an "air of superiority" and for the last seven months frequently has made slighting remarks about her in the presence of friends and acquaintances.

Miss Francis and McKenna were married at Avalon, Catalina Island, Jan. 17, 1931, and separated last Dec. 18. Miss Francis has been married three times.

Only $1,500,000 of $3,300,000,000 Is Unallotted—Applications for $2,900,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In issuing what he described as "an accounting" of allocations of the $3,300,000,000 public works fund, Administrator Ickes said tonight there were approximately 6400 applications for funds for non-Federal projects still pending before the Public Works Board.

The applications ask for loans and grants aggregating $2,900,000,000 or $400,000,000 less than the original public works fund, now virtually exhausted.

An unallotted fund of approximately $1,500,000 remains and officials said that through the rescinding of projects this small amount might remain for some time as a revolving fund.

Latest treasury statistics showed a total of $277,104,499 actually withdrawn from the $3,298,472,784 allocated up to Jan. 24 out of the $3,300,000,000 fund. Of the money allotted on that date, $2,478,548,886 was for Federal projects and $819,923,898 for non-Federal projects.

Withdrawals from the treasury were as follows: Withdrawn by states and political sub-divisions, rivers and harbors, $29,826,237; $51,051,354; railroad loans, $6,990,000; public highways, $141,291,621; Boulder Dam, $9,132,469; and all others, $38,812,818.

NO HEART, SITTING BULL'S SUCCESSOR, DIES AT 92

Sioux Medicine Man's Chief Pride Was to Wear Scarlet Eagle Feathers.

By the Associated Press.

FORT YATES, N. D., Feb. 3.—No Heart, last of the Sioux medicine men and successor to Sitting Bull and other counsellors of the Sioux nation, is dead at the age of 92. To the white man he was just "Old Medicine Joe," but to many of the old-time Sioux he was a link with the past when the Sioux still were rulers of much of the Western plains.

No Heart was born north of the Platte River in 1842 when John Tyler was President of the United States and seven years before the California gold rush. He lived to see his people subdued, their habits of life changed and the glories of their past a mere memory.

Until shortly before his death, No Heart took an active part in the social gatherings of Indians on the reservation, and his chief pride was the fact he could wear two scarlet eagle feathers upright on the back of his head, insignia of his wounds in battle.

Although a religious leader of his people by virtue of his office as medicine man, No Heart received a Christian burial. Funeral services were conducted at the Congregational Church north of Fort Yates.

Again Heads Carols Association.

William H. Danforth was re-elected president of the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association yesterday. He has served seven one-year terms. Preston G. Orwig was named vice-president of John B. Denvir Jr., treasurer. Other officers re-elected are: Mrs. Arthur J. Burr, Mrs. Archer O'Reilly, Miss Harvey Smith, Mrs. Ralph L. Thompson, John C. Tobin and Mrs. Arthur J. Widmer, vice-presidents, and Walter J. Stradal, secretary.

Sky-Blue Orchid Is Queen At Shaw's Garden Show

The Vanda Caerulea, a Rarity, Is From Burma —Display to Be Open Again Tonight Until 10 O'Clock.

A new queen reigns today in the Orchid Show at Shaw's Garden.

It is the Vanda caerulea, a heaven-blue magnificence that only the experts could have foreseen last summer when it arrived at the garden, a tired wisp of green after a journey of thousands of miles.

The uninitiate, then, would have tossed it away as a worthless piece of weed. But the experts, handling it as a precious thing, took it to the Shaw's Garden Arboretum at Gray Summit to recuperate in the company of other orchid royalty.

There, in one of the 11 special greenhouses, where temperature is never allowed to vary 10 degrees for the world's finest public collection of show orchids, it took root again. Friday its blue flowers opened, and today it has the queen's place, in an alcove of particular rarities at the left of the jungle scene in the Orchid Show.

The Queen's Dancing Girl.

As kings once had jesters, so the orchid queen has a dancing girl. Kings may have had them, too, but not this kind of dancing girl, for, so named in Panama for its natural mimicry of pirouette, it is an orchid, gold and bronze and chocolate.

Tonight, as last night, visitors to the garden may see the queen and its dancer, with a stately retinue of 1500 other priceless orchids, under artificial light. The garden will remain open until 10 p. m. Evening display by artificial light, an innovation by Director Moore, presents the blossoms in an aspect never seen in the orchid shows of other years. If attendance warrants, it may be repeated next Saturday and Sunday evenings.

The new queen is not by some hundreds the only regal flower of the lot. None is finer, for example, than the alcove, on the opposite side of the jungle view, of the garden's new mauve hybrid, combining the daintiness and symmetry of the Tulipan with the great size and the exquisite fringed lip of the Fournier Brasso-Cattleya. The first blossoms of this hybrid, new to the world, were a revelation of the opening display last Sunday, but even they did not compare with the later flowers which have replaced them.

Many Mauve Tulipans.

Hundreds of the mauve parent Tulipans are on display, and new exhibits today include an alcove of the paler, fragrant Flora de Mayo. Both are Cattleyas, brought from the Colombian Andes 12 years ago by Supt. Pring of the garden. It might not be amiss to add that the name, from a collector named Cattley, is pronounced "cat-lee-ya," with the accent on the "cat."

Another royalty—a sort of princess, perhaps—is the first hybrid orchid grown in St. Louis. It is a lady-slipper, the "Sidney Brown," produced in 1912 by D. S. Brown in his Brownhurst collection at Kirkwood, and named for his daughter.

The real queen of the show—the Vanda Caerulea, or blue moth orchid—is a cousin of the rare Philippine pansy orchid, or Vanda Sanderiana, which bloomed for the first time last year in the Dwight Davis collection at the garden. The blue moth traveled all the way from Burma, its home, by way of Ceylon, where it had temporary residence in the collection of a connoisseur.

A royal secret: the skeleton in the royal closet, the particular bane of the queen's life, is cock-roaches. The growing tips of its roots are tender and translucent—to roaches, nothing less than asparagus tips in Hollandaise.

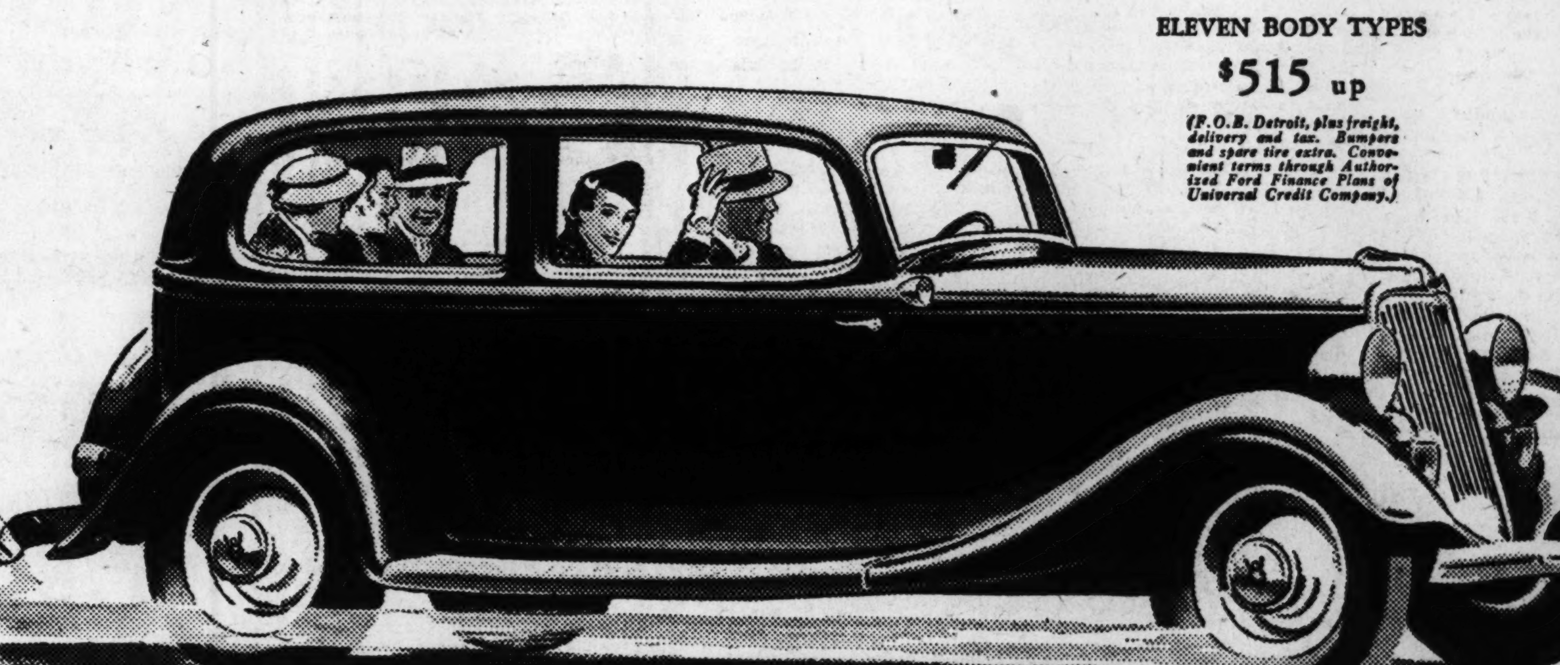
(F.O.B. Detroit, plus freight, delivery and tax. Bumpers and spare tire extra. Convenient terms through Authorized Ford Finance Plans of Universal Credit Company.)



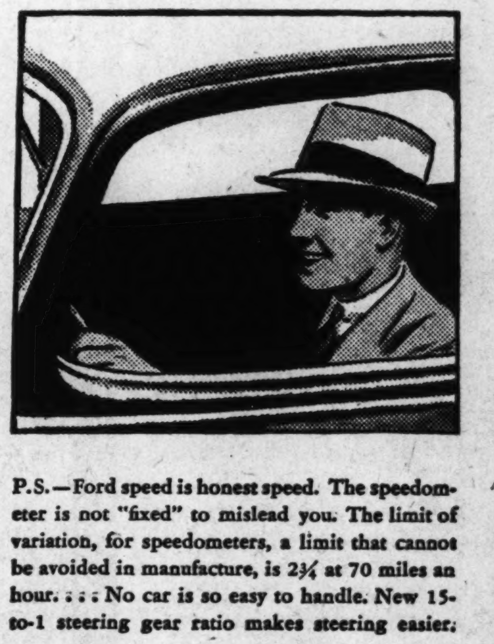
THE New Ford V-8 will do—easily and accurately—over 80 miles an hour. But it is not likely that you will ever need to go that fast. This top speed means that in ordinary, every-day driving you get the ease and safety of great reserve power. It means that your car is not straining itself at 50, 55 or 60.

The New Ford V-8 is mighty smooth in that range because it has the reserve power to go a lot faster. That means efficient, economical running without strain or vibration.

The advantages of a high-speed car are not in the speed. A car designed to do 80 miles an hour easily must be extra strongly built. It must have a better and stronger steering gear. It must be correctly poised and balanced. Body, wheels, springs, axles, frame, brakes—all must be of the best design and greatest strength.

Everything in the car must be up to the 80-mile-an-hour standard to give you superlative performance at lower speeds.

Drive the comfortable New Ford V-8 for 1934 and see how this extra power gives you extra pleasure and motoring satisfaction. And extra economy too.



P.S.—Ford speed is honest speed. The speedometer is not "fixed" to mislead you. The limit of variation, for speedometers, a limit that cannot be avoided in manufacture, is 2¾ at 70 miles an hour. . . . No car is so easy to handle. New 15-to-1 steering gear ratio makes steering easier.

JANUARY AUTO PRODUCTION 23 PCT. OVER YEAR AGO

Motorcar Workers in Detroit Put at 300,000; 250,000 Orders on Hand.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—The automobile industry's orders on hand, as production swung into February, aggregated more than 250,000 units, approximately the output scheduled for February.

Combined with the production already shipped to dealers in January these orders will aggregate something in excess of $300,000,000 in wholesale value for the first two months of the year.

Production for January has been authoritatively estimated at 164,000 passenger cars and trucks. This represents an increase over the output volume of December, 1933, of about 91 per cent and of 23 per cent over January a year ago.

The aggregate number now at work in the Detroit and Michigan motor car factories has been placed at around 300,000, with further increases indicated as the plants overcome difficulties encountered in attaining higher volume output of the radically changed 1934 models. The Hudson Motor Car Co. added 3000 men last week.

Ford production for January aggregated 57,575 units, considerably higher than the original schedule for the month called for, and the largest volume in any one month since June, 1932. Its payroll in the Detroit area alone was $5,500,000. Chevrolet and Plymouth also increased output during the last week of January.

GERMANY REPEATS DEMAND FOR ARMY OF 300,000 MEN

Answer to French Note of Jan. 1 Says Number Is Minimum Required for Defensive Security.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Asserting that "it was thoroughly convinced that the discussions which have taken place for the last eight years have proved clearly that the highly armed powers principally concerned are not disposed to disarm in a really effective manner," the German Government repeated its demand for a defensive force of 300,000 men in its answer to the French note of Jan. 1.

The German answer—made public at the German embassy tonight—insisted that Germany "has no greater desire than the widest possible measures of disarmament." Since the other powers, including France, have failed to disarm, however, the note insisted that Germany be allowed the right to arm itself for defensive purposes.

Denying that allowing Germany 300,000 troops for defense would result in an armament race, the note declared that "so far as Germany is concerned it would only mean the creation of a defensive army which would be far from constituting a menace to any other state."

Comments on France's Strength.

"Taking into account the geographical situation and especially the length and nature of the German frontiers," the note asserted that 300,000 troops "is from any point of view the minimum which Germany requires for her security in the present circumstances," and added, "This becomes particularly evident when a comparison is made of this figure with the armaments of the heavily armed neighboring states among which are, besides France and its allies, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Belgium."

The note pointed out that all of Germany's neighbors also have "great masses of trained reserves" and that France alone, by a general mobilization could put 5,000,000 men in the field.

Germany, the note said, has no organizations that could be compared with the reserves of other nations.

Non-Military Associations.

"Moreover," it stated, "the German Government has declared its willingness to submit the non-military character of the associations in question to the planned international control insofar as other countries undertake the same obligations with respect to similar organizations."

It was emphasized that the 300,000 men requested would serve only short terms and not the 12-year enlistments served by the Reichswehr.

In conclusion the note said:

"Even if the future German Army with short training period will comprise 300,000 men, and if, furthermore, together with the transformation of the Reichswehr into any army of the new type, the necessity of defensive weapons are conceded, France and the other heavily armed states still continue to be far in the lead with respect to armaments.

"Under these circumstances, a refusal of the German demands could but mean that Germany's equality is, in reality, not desired to be recognized.

Favors General Negotiations.

"The German Government shares, of course, the opinion that the disarmament problem cannot be solved solely by negotiations between Germany and France and that negotiations with all the interested states are necessary.

"These general negotiations, however, will be greatly facilitated by an accord between Germany and France of the questions of principle, such an accord constituting one of the most important prerequisites for the conclusion of the disarmament convention.

"The spirit in which Germany is ready for international co-operation is shown by her offer to conclude pacts of non-aggression.

"The urgent requirement of the moment is the settlement of the disarmament question, the successful solution of which will pave the way to the solution of the other political problems which are pending."

$245,000 MAILED OUT BY TWO CLOSED BANKS

Payments Made to 3600 Creditors, Mostly Depositors, by Chouteau Trust and Sarah-Olive.

Checks were mailed yesterday to 3600 creditors, mostly depositors, of the Chouteau Trust Co. and the Sarah-Olive Bank by Creighton B. Calfee, Deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of the closed depositories.

The payments, the first to be made by Calfee, were made possible by loans for $245,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which accepted slow assets as security.

The Chouteau Trust Co. received a $186,000 loans and paid 2600 creditors 25 per cent.

The Sarah-Olive Bank, granted a $59,000 loan, sent out 1000 checks representing a 30 per cent payment.

Since RFC loans to hasten liquidation have been obtainable, 10 closed State banks in St. Louis and St. Louis County have arranged first payments of almost $3,000,000 to about 50,000 creditors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A suit against Vincent Astor and other directors was filed in Supreme Court today by the United States Lines for an accounting of money said to have been lost by a co-firm known as the United States Lines Co., operator of the trans-Atlantic passenger and cargo service.

It is charged that the defendants "perfected a concerted scheme and plan" to deprive the plaintiff of dividends. Defendants are Astor, Kermit Roosevelt, P. A. S. Franklin, John M. $273 FOR $1000 ON 'LITTLE RIVER' DRAINAGE BONDS

Proposal to Settle District's Obligations of $9,059,826 for $2,191,414 Agreed On.

RFC TO ADVANCE MONEY AS LOAN

Four Pct. Bonds Planned — Claims Frozen Since Default on Interest in 1929.

A plan to pay off the $8,018,000 outstanding bonds of the Little River Drainage District of Cape Girardeau, Mo., at $273 for each $1000 bond has been recommended to bondholders by an organization representing a majority of the bonds. The district owes $1,041,826 in interest, making its total obligations to the bondholders $9,059,826.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has agreed to lend the district $2,191,414 to settle the obligation in full, provided all of the bonds, or "such a large proportion of them" as will be satisfactory to its executives, are deposited for cancellation.

Efforts of the Sturdivant (Mo.) Bank to force the district, by mandamus action, to pay in full bonds and interest coupons held by the bank failed yesterday when the State Supreme Court ruled that the bank is entitled only to share ratably in the funds the district has on hand. By its decision, written by Judge George Robb Ellison, the Supreme Court overruled a decision of the Cape Girardeau County Circuit Court sustaining a demurrer by the bank to the drainage district's contention of insolvency.

Comment by Court.

"The essential point is that the relator (Sturdivant Bank) has no clear legal right to enforce by mandamus the payment in full of its bonds and coupons," Judge Ellison said, "since the respondent drainage district is admitted to be insolvent and the relator is therefore only entitled to share ratably in the funds on hand and those collected in the future." The bank's claim amounted to $8516.

Large amounts of the bonds are held in St. Louis and consummation of the plan will mean liquidation of claims which have been frozen since the district defaulted on interest Oct. 1, 1929.

Under the plan, the district is to issue to the RFC new 4 per cent bonds for the amount of the loan, to be retired in 16 years.

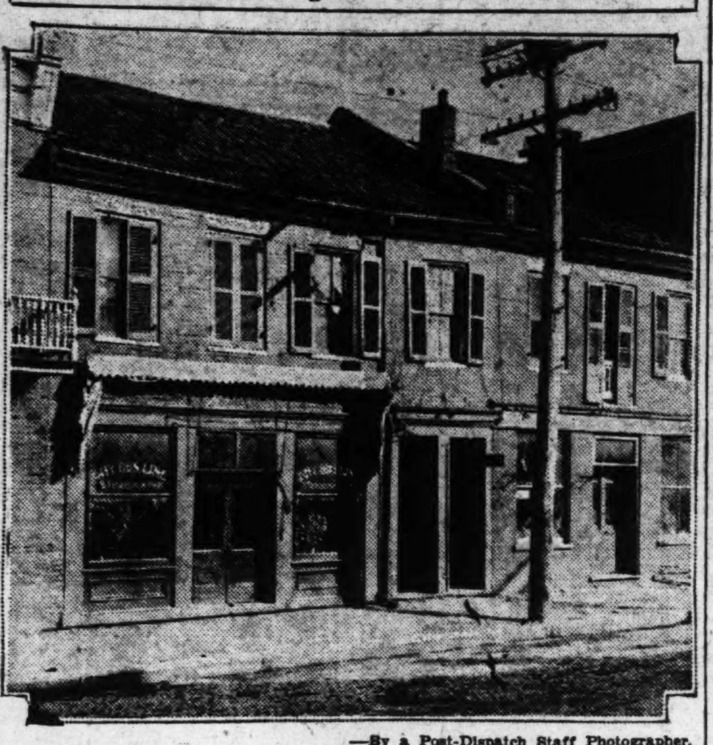
In determining the amount of the new loan, the RFC took into consideration the "Jones Report" prepared by the Department of Agriculture, estimating the maximum taxes the lands in the district could reasonably pay under varying conditions. In view of all the circumstances, the RFC refused to increase the amount of the loan, as requested by the bondholders' organization.

$5,000,000 of Bonds Turned In.

The organization recommending acceptance of the plan is the Little River Drainage Corporation. Its president is Royal D. Kercheval of St. Louis. It was organized by bondholders who turned in more than $5,000,000 of the outstanding bonds for stock of the corporation. Its original purpose was to try to liquidate the bonds through tax sales of lands in the district. Its directors, as a committee of bondholders, are understood to represent additional bonds, making the aggregate held by the corporation or represented by its directors about 90 per cent of the total.

In a letter to the stockholders of the corporation, urging acceptance of the plan, Kercheval states the directors feel they have exhausted every possible effort to get any better settlement through the RFC than the $273 offered. The stockholders are asked to vote on the plan.

First State Capitol at St. Charles



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

OLD MISSOURI CAPITOL TO BECOME MUSEUM

St. Charles Veterans Expect to Complete Plans Today for Taking Over Building.

Plans for converting Missouri's first Capitol, at St. Charles, into a permanent museum are expected to be completed today by the Kohl-Jeck Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, St. Charles.

The building, at 206-12 South Main street, was erected and furnished by the citizens of St. Charles when Missouri was admitted as a State in 1821, and was occupied as a Capitol until 1826, when the capital was moved to Jefferson City. The first Legislature convened there, and the building also contained the executive office of Missouri's first Governor, Alexander McNair.

Following its abandonment as a Statehouse, the two-story brick structure, with sloping roof, was occupied by a series of store and resident tenants. Its latest use was as a music store. J. L. Simons of Sedalia, Mo., the present owner, is due in St. Charles today to sign a lease in favor of the Kohl-Jeck Post.

According to plans of the veterans and of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who are cooperating in founding the museum, the building will eventually be purchased and restored to its original interior arrangement. Exhibits will pertain to the early history of St. Charles and to the first Legislature. The Missouri Historical Society has been asked to assist in assembling and arranging the display.

$50,000,000 IN RAILROAD ORDERS TO STEEL COMPANIES

Others Later Are Expected to Double Figure; One Plant to Reach Capacity.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3.—Railroad orders already received and those waiting for approval are estimated by the steel industry at more than $50,000,000. Other railroad projects, only a little further in the offing, would double this figure, steel men said.

One steel plant will reach 100 per cent capacity next week. It is the Mansfield branch of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate Co., which will employ probably 1600 men, making its pay roll the largest it has had in years.

Largest of the railroad buying announced today came from the Erie, which ordered 3850 cars. The Erie with other Van Sweringen roads, particularly the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Nickel Plate, are contemplating a total expenditure for cars, locomotives and equipment, estimated at $25,000,000. The Pennsylvania Railroad, which recently announced a $77,000,000 improvement and employment program financed by the PWA, ordered 7000 sets of airbrake equipment today for 7000 freight cars which are a part of the project. The airbrake order was estimated at $1,000,000.

Other purchases already made by Van Sweringen roads, not including the Erie, were disclosed in the week-end buying at New York. These were for 2975 cars from the American Car & Foundry Co., and 15 freight cars from the American Car & Foundry Co., and 15 freight engines from the American Locomotive Co., the engines for use by the Nickel Plate.

The day's chief purchase of rails was announced by the Southern Pacific Co., which ordered 40,000 tons, divided among several steel companies.

CASE 16 YEARS IN COURT ONLY NOW READY FOR TRIAL

Judge Calhoun Clears the Record for Hearing on Merits of Curry vs. Dahlberg.

Pleadings in the nearly 16-year-old lawsuit of Charles C. Curry of St. Louis against B. G. Dahlberg of Minneapolis have been cleared by Circuit Judge Calhoun so that the case can now proceed to trial. The suit involves an interest in commissions on railroad rebate freight charges alleged to have been collected by Dahlberg on shippers' claims.

Judge Calhoun yesterday sustained a demurrer to five counts of Curry's fourth amended petition, eliminating claims totaling $69,000. One count asking for judgment for $43,529 remains.

The suit was filed in Circuit Court in March, 1918. Curry said he entered into the contract with Dahlberg to obtain refunds for shippers on excess freight charges in the shipment of ties, poles and other timber. There have been four referees appointed at different times to try the case. Three resigned without filing a report and an order appointing the other referee was set aside.

Under the action taken by Judge Calhoun the merits of the controversy can now be determined by the court without the aid of a referee. In ruling out a part of the claims the court said it appeared the refunds involved in these counts were collected more than five years before the filing of the last amended petition and are therefore barred by the statute of limitations.

U. S. TO BUY MORE HOGS DURING MONTH FOR RELIEF

Further Strengthening of Prices Sought With Purchase of 20,000 Head a Day.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Government plans to increase its purchases of hogs for relief purposes during February. This will be done, it was said today, to support hog prices until the effect of the pig buying program can be felt and to counteract the effect of increasing the hog processing tax from $1 to $1.50.

Secretary Wallace and others believe that the removal last fall of 6,300,000 pigs and sows from the visible supply will be reflected by a marked decline in the supply coming to market about March 1, with a consequent increase in hog prices.

The Government has been purchasing pork for relief needs at the rate of 23,000 head of hogs a day during the latter part of January, and contracts now made call for purchasing 20,000 head daily during February.

These will be supplemented by new contracts calling for slaughter of an additional 10,000 head a day for the first 20 days of the month with the provision that they may be terminated at any time.

In addition to buying live hogs, the Government through the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation will buy 8,000,000 pounds of cured pork and 10,000,000 pounds of lard to decrease storage stocks.

JAPANESE AMBASSADOR SAILS FOR NEW U. S. POST

Hiroshi Saito Says There Is No Outstanding Difficulty Between Two Nations.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Feb. 3.—Determined to try to effect a better understanding between the peoples of America and Japan, Hiroshi Saito, 47-year-old Japanese Ambassador to Washington, sailed today for the United States.

For the envoy it was like going home, for he was the consul general in New York for five years.

"There is no real outstanding difficulty between the United States and Japan," Saito said, as he was leaving London for Southampton to embark on the Berengaria.

"It is absurd to say that Japan and America now or ever will be at loggerheads."

The establishment of Manchukuo with the assistance of Japan and the naval situation will come up for settlement in the 1935 Washington conference. To these questions Saito said he will devote major attention. Americans are beginning to understand Japan's position in these matters, he declared.

"In Congress, in California and in other quarters it has been suggested that Japan should be placed on some basis of immigration quotas such as other countries," he remarked, "if such a thing occurs we should be very happy."

He pointed to current agitation by some English speakers for action to meet the competition offered by low-priced Japanese products and declared that "no real competition in the trade appeal ever will occur."

FILIPINO REJECTIONISTS' STAND

MANILA, Feb. 3. — A mass meet- of rejectionists of the Hawes-Cutting law, which offered Philippine independence in 12 to 14 years, went on record tonight as favoring measures granting immediate freedom or separate government within a short period.

Approval was voted of the King bill before Congress, providing for independence within 32 to 49 months; of an immediate independence bill or of any measure avoiding the "onerous provisions" of the Hawes-Cutting law. The meeting voted censure of Camilo Osias, resident commissioner in Washington. It avoided a position as to amendment of the Hawes-Cutting act to continue its life nine months.

Germany Plans to Manufacture 60 Per Cent of Its Gasoline Out Of Coal From the Ruhr Basin

Final Steps in Process, Developed After 22 Years of Research, Are Being Installed for Quantity Production.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Germany expects to manufacture 60 per cent of its gasoline at home by the end of this year, literally squeezing it out of Ruhr basin coal.

This synthetic gasoline is the culmination of 22 years' research by German scientists. The final steps in the process are being installed for quantity production by the I. G. Farsen chemical trust.

The coal is placed in a two-cylinder, sealed furnace. One cylinder has an atmosphere of nitrogen, the other of hydrogen. The heat is intense and the pressure far greater than that of the atmosphere. The latest step on which hopes of wide commercial success are based, is addition of some oil of coal in the furnace. This mixture brings qut the gasoline transformation more easily.

"Either lignite or hard coal is mixed with oil," said Dr. Karl Bosch, chairman of the board of the chemical trust, "The resultant mass of boiling oils on tars, while liquid, are worked up with finely ground catalyzers into a gas-like compound under extreme heat and pressure.

"The second step is transformation of the mixture into gasoline through the agency of a fixed catalyzer.

"It must be remembered that petroleum and the materials obtained from it are composed, for the most part, of carbon and hydrogen. Coal consists of the same elements, differing in that it has a greater amount of oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur, and a lesser amount of hydrogen.

"Our problem has been to take the oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur from the coal, and hydrogen, then divide the molecules into smaller units.

"To do this coal was heated under high nitrogen pressure and at the moment that the molecules were split, hydrogen was introduced into the carbonic compounds. The quality of the resulting product was unfortunately not good. It contained too much oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur—disadvantages which could not be overcome by changing the working methods.

"It was only by employing a catalyzer that the I. G. Farben industry succeeded in quickening the storing of the hydrogen and in directing the reaction in such a way that it was possible to obtain all the desired products from coal. The results have been so successful that the speed of introducing hydrogen has been stepped up 100 times."

It is expected to produce 1,000,000 tons of gasoline annually from 3,500,000 tons of coal. Dr. Bosch said that brown coal, or lignite, probably would be used more than hard coals.

More than 10,000 men are expected to be put to work in a nation wide chain of plants now under development.

RETAIL DRY GOODS BUSINESS SAID TO HAVE IMPROVED

Survey in Twelve Federal Reserve Districts Shows Reduction in Losses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Improving conditions in the retail dry goods business prompted assurances from the controllers congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association today of continued steady employment for the more than 600,000 employes of dry goods, department and specialty stores.

From a survey on gross margin and payrolls in department stores in the 12 Federal Reserve Districts, the fact was revealed that store operating costs were lower for the first time in four years.

For the three years ended in 1932, operating losses reached 6.4 per cent, the survey disclosed. By the end of 1933 the figure was reduced to 3.9 per cent.

"To employes this promises a greater degree of security than has existed for some years," the association reported. "Many unemployed can hope for positions during the coming year if business continues to improve."

The association report also found a "marked improvement" in gross margin in goods, the profit spread.

ALLEGED RACKET LEDGER OFFERED AT CHICAGO TRIAL

Records in Book, Covering Only Short Period, Show Disbursements of $116,000.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—The ledger of the Cleaners' and Dyers' Institute, alleged by the State to have been a racketeering combine, was brought into court today at the racket conspiracy trial of 18 defendants. Records in the book, said Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber, covered only a short period, but showed disbursements of more than $116,000.

The institute was headed by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, Federal Labor Mediator. Through it, the State charges, thousands of dollars were extracted from cleaners under threats of union strikes and sabotage. Squires is a defendant, along with Alderman Oscar Nelson, Attorney Aaron Sapiro, and others.

Raber earlier had announced Jack (Machine Gun) McGurn, terrorist and founder of outlaw labor unions under Al Capone, would be called as a witness Monday to tell about methods allegedly employed to gouge money from cleaners and dyers.

Milton Oil Co. Holds Meeting of Dealers Handling Dixcel 'Gas'

Gradual Increase of Gasoline Consumption in This District Is Reported.

Wednesday night, in the Mart Building, more than 200 independent dealers handling Dixcel scientifically lubricated gasoline in this territory, heard Harry E. Milton, general manager of the Milton Oil Co., discuss the launching of the 1934 Dixcel advertising campaign.

"Personal service, warm human relationships, both within the Milton Oil Co. organization and on the outside in your contact with the public, have been responsible for our continuous growth the past 13 years," said Milton.

"Today, we are the largest independent petroleum marketer in the Middle West—large enough to pioneer in the improvement of motor fuels, yet small enough to give each customer the personal services that so distinguish this organization.

"The entire 1934 Dixcel advertising campaign, consisting of two advertisements weekly in the Post-Dispatch exclusively, and other forms of advertising, will feature you, the dealer. Every newspaper ad will carry your photograph and your personal message upon the merits of Dixcel gas."

Milton's address was followed by a talk on "The Growth of the Milton Oil Co," by H. M. Fredkin, assistant general manager, who was followed by C. M. E. Reeves, vice-president; A. S. Wright, secretary; A. A. Hodge, manager of commercial sales, and Enno D. Winius, president of the Anfenger Advertising Agency, Inc., St. Louis.

J. L. Weiner, Eastern Missouri division manager, acted as chairman of the meeting. He introduced the speakers, C. M. Fredericks, manager, Southwest Missouri Division; C. L. Mitchell, manager, Southern Illinois Division; E. Smiley, manager, Western Illinois Division, and Ned Rosenthal, president of the Pioneer Oil Co.

General reports from all the dealers present were that gasoline consumption had been gradually increasing in the past few months and all were confident that Dixcel sales would double this year.

Gilpin Says Pontiac Is 20,000 Behind in Filling Dealers' Orders

"We are 20,000 cars behind dealers' orders right now," is the way A. W. L. Gilpin, general sales manager of Pontiac Motor Co. answered the question, "How is the new Pontiac going?"

Here are 1632 retail orders from dealers that have come in so far today," he added, pointing to a stack of cards that covered half of his desk.

"It's a question now of getting cars to the dealers. You know this year is starting out more optimistically than any I can remember in four or five years. Dealers are stepping up their original orders and at the rate the orders are coming in I'd hate to predict how long it will be before we catch up."

Trying to interview the sales chief of one of the motor car industry's leading companies in between the New York and Detroit auto shows in the first year of business reovery was like talking to a traffic cop at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, New York, during the rush hours.

Between phone calls, telegrams and calls to the president, Gilpin supplied a staccato of answers to "how many?" "when?" "where?" "who?" and "how?"

"How is the new Pontiac going? were overwhelmed by the favorable New York reception. And it's been the same everywhere else.

"Production? Shipments? When you start on new models things begin slowly, you know. But we simply weren't prepared for any such flood of orders as we've received during the last two weeks."

Chrysler Orders Reach a Record Total, Frazer Says

The largest number of dealers' orders for Chrysler cars in the history of the Chrysler Sales Corporation is now on that company's books, according to Joseph W. Frazer, general sales manager.

"There are now on hand more than 10,000 orders for Chryslers from our dealer organization, representing a production that is 37 per cent of our output of Chryslers in 1933," he said. "In other words, less than a month after our announcement, we have 37 per cent as much business in sight as we did all last year.

"Not since September, 1928, the very peak of the boom, have we ever had 10,000 orders ahead at one time. Bear in mind, too, that there are many points where it has been impossible even to show the Airflow model, and we have been very much restricted in our opportunity to make demonstrations.

"In addition to our 10,000 Chrysler orders, the dealers of the Chrysler Sales Corporation already have booked more than 25,000 orders for Plymouth.

"It looks as if Plymouth were destined to see its greatest year by many thousands of cars, for the other units of the Chrysler Corporation, De Soto and Dodge, also report that their Plymouth orders are far ahead of this time last year.

Tire, Battery Dealers To Meet Tomorrow

Quaker State Oil Sales Supervisors Meet Executives Here

Come from All Over This Country and Canada for 2-Day Session in St. Louis.

The sales supervisors of the Quaker State Oil Refining Co., Oil City, Pa., from the United States and Canada, met with home office executives and the staff of the Consolidated Petroleum Products Co., St. Louis distributors, in a two-day session at the Coronado Hotel last week.

Reports from the field were very optimistic, according to Joseph M. Koch, vice-president and general salesmanager, who presided at the meeting.

The company's 1934 advertising and sales promotion plans were presented by Henry Eckhardt, president, and Lynn B. Clarke, account executive of Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc., of New York City, advertising agency, for the Quaker State Co.

Clarke stressed the important part that newspapers will play in the Quaker State Company's plans for 1934.

Samuel Messer, president of the Quaker State Oil Co., in his talk, referred specifically to the oil code administration and the favorable results for independent dealers. Messer pointed out that his company's careful planning for this year, with Quaker State oil and superrefined products designed to meet 1934 requirements, will place Quaker State is a far better position than ever before.

Other speakers included Guy B. Hunter, head of refinery operations, and Forest O. Koontz, assistant salesmanager, who discussed merchandising plans and dealer cooperation.

Sam Rotenberg, president of the Consolidated Petroleum Products Co., said that the Quaker State Company's sales and merchandising plans for 1934 were the most extensive he had ever seen.

The following members of Rotenberg's sales staff also attended the two-day session; Robert W. Metz, Reilly J. Baker, Oliver Keller and Roy E. Wood.

Oldsmobile Dealers And Zone Executives At Session in Chicago

Tuesday, the Olds Motor Works was host to all Midwest Oldsmobile dealers at a luncheon at the Congress Hotel.

Among those at the luncheon were R. H. Grant; D. E. Ralston, vice-president and general salesmanager; W. S. Knudson, executive vice-president of General Motors; H. A. Trevellyan, assistant general salesmanager; H. J. Klingler, president of the Pontiac Motor Co., and A. W. L. Gilpin, vice-president and general salesmanager for Pontiac.

Vincent Lopez' orchestra provided the music.

The probabilities that Oldsmobile production for 1934 would exceed the 100,000 units previously set as the year's goal was indicated by Charles L. McCuen, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works, in an addres to the Lansing Chamber of Commerce.

"As compared with a volume of 38,000 automobiles last year," said Mr. McCuen, "our plans for 1934 are now to produce a minimum of 100,000 units. This comes close to trebling our output in a single year."

H. H. Harwood With A. R. Lindburg Co.

H. H. Harwood has joined Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., as general manager of its subsidiary the A. R. Lindburg Co.

Harwood was with the General Motors Truck Co. offices in Seattle for three years, later was in the importing business, and for 13 years was Northwest manager of the Mack Truck Co. at Portland, Ore. He is a native of Carrollton, Ill., and graduated in law from the University of Illinois.

Tom Sapp Graham Field Salesman

Jack Ford, zone manager for the Graham Motor Car Corp., announces the appointment of Tom Sapp as field salesman. It is a new title for representatives who call on the dealers in the territories under the zone manager.

Sapp is well known in the automobile trade.

Ford Training School Here to Graduate 100 Service Men This Week

Schools for Others Employed by Dealers in This Area to Begin Next Week.

One hundred service men will have been graduated by the end of this week from the Ford Motor Company's 1934 training school at its St. Louis branch. This graduates one-fifth of the entire service organization employed by Ford dealers in the Branch territory.

Schools for the remaining four-fifths will start next week in the larger cities in Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri.

These factory schooled mechanics have been schooled in the latest practices in maintenance of Ford products as well as fully trained in use of modern tyes of machinery which Ford dealers acquire as it is invented.

This year the Ford Motor Co. has gone considerably farther in training its employes in service work. The training school for 1934 has been expanded to include members of the sales and office staffs.

Saturday was their first day. The Ford Motor Co., by this action, makes of sales and office staffs a corps of supervisors, who, when traveling throughout the territory, can furnish latest service information to those who have need of it.

"The training given our organization consists first of being certain that every person is fully familiar with the new Ford V-8" said M. N. Johnson, St. Louis manager for the Ford Motor Co. The next step is to study and actually perform the hundreds of time and labor-saving operations that have been developed in modernizing our service facilities.

"This will mean lowered operating costs to V-8 owners through a definite saving in time required for maintenance.

"Some of the steps that are being taken along this direction, such as the exchange policy on V-8 engines and a number of the major operating parts, already have won wide acceptance by the public. Almost everyone knows that it is possible to replace a motor in a Ford V-8 for around $50, no matter whether the car has been run 50,000 or 100,000 miles.

"Through this intensive service schooling the public will soon know that every employe of a Ford organization is equipped to help Ford V-8 owners get more hours of use at less cost out of their automobiles."

Orders for 32,200 Dodge Cars, Trucks Reported by Factory

The vigor with which Dodge is swinging into the new year's business, at the factory as well as in the field, is shown by a statement in which A. vanDerZee, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers Corporation, reviews the organization's activities for the first three weeks of January.

Orders received at headquarters from Dodge dealers between Jan. 1 and Jan. 20 call for soon-as-possible shipment of 27,200 passenger cars and 5000 commercial cars and trucks, a total of 32,200 units.

Retail deliveries made by Dodge dealers within the same three working weeks amounted to 3772 passenger cars and 1515 commercial cars and trucks, a total of 5287 vehicles.

'Master Merchandiser' Awards by Goodrich

"Master Merchandiser" awards have been presented by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. to the Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., store at Twenty-third and Olive, and to A. Appuhn, P. J. Graden, L. J. Grantham, W. B. Johnson, R. W. Nichol, A. Thompson, J. R. Truss and S. S. Washburn, salesmen for the company in the St. Louis district.

The awards are for outstanding sales work in 1933. Only a limited number of these awards were made to members of the country-wide Goodrich organization.

Reorganizes Department.

William Denhart, wholesale manager for the Hudson-Frampton Co., distributers of Hudson and Terraplane cars, has reorganized the wholesale department.

F. L. Garard, well known in automobile circles in St. Louis as well as in the territory, is looking after the metropolitan district. O. J. Liberty and A. E. Ellis have been added as wholesale representatives.

Starting for Conference in Chicago

IN CHARGE OF NEW TIRE DEPARTMENT

W. G. CHALLACOMBE.

Firestone Installs Tire Department at Stix, Baer & Fuller

What is said to be one of the most beautiful an complete automobile tire and accessory shops in America was opened yesterday morning at Stix, Baer & Fuller when George W. Chadsey, Director of Public Safety, purchased a set of Firestone high speed Century of Progress tires.

This department, installed and operated by the Firestone Co., is under the supervision of W. G. Challacombe, just returned from three months of study in the Firestone plant and laboratories and a tour of Firestone retail units throughout the Middle West.

The department, occupying 2500 square feet on the fourth floor, is an innovation in tire display. Fixtures and furniture are done in a modern style with masked overhead lighting and column treatment to suggest heroic sized automobile wheels.

A tire service station has been constructed on the Stix, Baer & Fuller parking lot, Seventh and Lucas, for installing all Firestone products purchased in the department.

J. J. Lee, representing the Firestone Department Store Division, said that a miniature of the dynamic display of tire making, which attracted so much attention last summer at the Century of Progress, would arrive for display in the department later this month.

Other Firestone executives, besides Lee, who attended the opening of the new department were C. E. Routh, St. Louis district manager; W. F. Manus, of the general office, and E. B. Hathaway, Firestone Service Store manager.

Airflow De Soto Cars in Production And Going to Dealers

Airflow De Soto cars previously built were used for display at the automobile shows. The production, which is now coming off the line, is going direct to De Soto dealers and their customers.

Foy spoke enthusiastically about the factory's ability to produce cars in quantities and, acceptance that the new Airflow De Soto has won from the public where it has been shown.

Bo-Dow Motor Co. Moves to New Place

Jack Doyle and C. C. Boyd, owners of the Bo-Dow Motor Co., dealers in Dodge and Plymouth cars, formerly at Overland, have moved to Hamilton and Ridge.

There they occupy a large building which has been used for a number of years for handling automobiles.

Chevrolet Produces 2141 Cars in Day For New 1934 'High'

Chevrolet assembly operations set a new "high" for 1934 in the week ending Jan. 27, by producing 2141 cars on Jan. 24, M. E. Coyle, general manager reports.

Since the first of the new models have been off the line considerably less than a month, the attainment of such a production rate is something of an accomplishment, he says. Activity in the company's 21 domestic plants is being stepped up and they will be operating close to capacity within a very few weeks.

"Acceleration of output has been a major concern," he said, "ever since our new car's introduction, which took place simultaneously at the New York auto show and 100 special advance showings throughout the country. We expected a cordial public reaction to our 1934 line, but were not fully prepared for quite such an inrush of orders as greeted its introduction and the announcement of the company's new policy of quoting only delivered prices rather than f. o. b. prices, to the buyer. More than 100,000 retail orders are already on hand.

"Our problem was a little more complex than usual, this year, owing to the later announcement date, Jan. 6. Our 1933 models were introduced through our dealers Dec. 17, 1932, and the many preliminaries—necessary training of men, correlation of work through out the various plants, and numerous details incidental to new car presentation—were finished relatively early, so that we entered 1933 already well under way. Considering the lateness of this year's start, we have every reason to feel gratified at getting up speed so soon.

The payroll Jan. 24 was 50,816 persons. Orders are arriving in volume, but with output climbing as it is, dealers will be able to make immediate delivery of any desired model soon.

Auburn Uses Plane To Carry Dealers To Its Auto Plant

Dealer interest in the new Auburn models for 1934 is the greatest manifested in years, W. H. Beal, president, reports following the Chicago auto show.

Already a substantial number of dealers and distributors have signed up for Auburn franchises, he said, and many more applications for franchises are on file.

Retail sales of Auburn cars at the automobile show were considerably above last year, and public interest in the Auburn line not only at the Chicago show but in other automobile shows now being held is the greatest shown since 1929, Beal said.

The Auburn Automobile Co. has put in operation a large tri-motored plane to bring dealers direct to the factory for them to examine the cars and see them made.

This service is being maintained particularly for dealers in outlying towns who did not attend the automobile shows at New York, Chicago and other large cities.

Distributors in widely scattered parts of the country are getting their dealers together and sending them to Auburn in groups.

Chevrolet Reports Commercial Car Demand Is Heavy

The important bearing of commercial car business on the country's economic life lends special interest to the announcement of W. E. Fish, commercial car manager of Chevrolet, that the company's commercial car business for this year will not only exceed last year's by a wide margin, but also outstrip earlier estimates for 1934.

Chevrolet commercial car retail sales in 1933 totaled about 103,000 units. The original projection for 1934 was considerably above this figure, but general indications to date this year show that it is still too low, Fish said.

Newsom announced that the Delugach quintet would meet the Golubs team in the first game starting at 7 p. m., with the Wolfs facing the Y. M. H. A. five at 8, and the Sugar Creeks playing the Bly-Moss in the final game.

A. L. Struble New Reo Truck Division General Sales Chief

Struble has been well known in the truck business since 1918 and has been associated with Reo three years. One of his most notable jobs, according to Elijah G. Poxson, general sales manager of Reo, was the organization of a school for Reo truck salesmen, in which they are taught the fundamentals of correct truck selling. There have already been 1200 graduates from the school and more than 400 are now enrolled.

RED ARMY HEAD SAYS RUSSIA IS READY FOR JAPAN

Voroshiloff Tells Soviet Congress Tokio Has Not Been Convinced Peace Is Better Than Conflict.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—Klementie Voroshiloff, the Soviet Commissar of War, told the All-Union Communist Party Congress tonight that "Despite our diplomatic efforts we have not yet succeeded in convincing Japanese ruling circles that peace is better than war." Russia, therefore, was continuing with measures to repel invasion, he said.

Interrupted frequently by applause, Voroshiloff outlined the general condition of the Red Army, which he described as more effective than ever before, and reported steps taken to defend the Russian Far East against an expected Japanese attack.

His language left no doubt that the Red Army's high command was convinced that war with Japan was probable.

Border Has Been Fortified.

Voroshiloff declared that fortifications had been erected at strategic points on the Far Eastern border, through which "it would be difficult for any invader to penetrate," and that Russia's armed forces had been "increased" in that region.

He declared it would be "ridiculous" for Soviet Russia to ignore Japanese preparations for war "and continue to trust in our 'dear neighbor.'" He said "the measures we have taken for the defense of our frontiers in cities of the Far East is a stye in the eye of the Japanese."

"It would be more agreeable and pleasant," he said, "for our neighbors, if we were without any defense, but we cannot give them that satisfaction."

Repeating the charge that Japan was preparing 'Manchuria as a military base for future operations against Soviet Russia, Voroshiloff continued, "this compels us to prepare for eventualities."

"Despite our diplomatic efforts," he said, "we have not been able to convince Japanese ruling circles that peace is better than war, and that war with us will not be easy for Japanese military circles. It would be a big and costly war for the initiators."

Criticises Fellow Commissar.

Voroshiloff, on another tack, took occasion to administer a verbal spanking to his fellow commissar, Andreievich Andreev, in charge of communications and transportation, criticising severely Russia's badly lagging state of transportation.

With flushed face, Andreev listened silently as Voroshiloff lashed out at what he termed "badly disorganized transport."

In a speech on Jan. 30 Voroshiloff said Andreev's previous address before the Congress was "too much of a lecture and too professorial."

"It was good for students," he said, "but not sufficiently practical. Our transport should not lag and it is necessary to say plainly when defects are to be remedied.

"Disorganization, Lack of Discipline."

"There is great disorganization and lack of discipline and we cannot seem to improve it."

Describing transport as the "brother of the Red Army," Voroshiloff continued, "I feel pained when I have to speak of it. If transport cannot function, what happens? It means that our industry has to slacken its pace, not to mention wartime requirements.

"Now, while the Red Army is preparing to defend our frontiers, transport must also prepare itself, for in the next war we will need efficient contemporary transport just as much as an efficient contemporary army, which we already have."

This public reprimand delivered by one of the most powerful leaders of the Communist party and the Soviet Government was regarded openly as meaning that possibly Andreev will be deprived of his transport post, to which he was appointed two years ago.

"We will be well able to defend our Far East and will be victorious in any war in which we are compelled to participate," said Voroshiloff, returning to his main subject.

"The dreams of our enemies to share our territory and to exterminate Communism are only the rankest stupidity."

Red Forces Completely Reorganized

Reporting, amid frequent cheers, that the Red Army and Navy had been completely reorganized and modernized in the last three years, Voroshiloff said Soviet Russia now had the most highly mechanized army in the world, exceeding in that respect the armies of the United States, France and England. The percentage of mechanized horsepower per soldier in the Red Army was 2.6 in 1929, he said, 3.07 in 1930 and 7.74 in 1933.

"While before 1930 our Red Army was seriously lacking in trained specialists," he continued, "now 50 per cent of the entire forces, including commanders and soldiers, are highly trained in technical specialties.

"Similarly, our tanks, machine guns, artillery and chemical warfare service is also greatly improved."

Increase in Effectiveness.

During the last three years, he said, the effectiveness of the use of rifles has been increased from 64 per cent in 1930 to 97 per cent in 1933; in rapid-fire guns from 47 per cent to 95 per cent; in machine guns 28 per cent to 98 per cent; and the effectiveness of artillery, tanks and aviation units in the same proportions.

"The Red army has been greatly strengthened since the last party Congress (in 1930). And has been reconstructed both as to quality and quantity," he said. "Before, our materials and weapons were old. Now we are modernized."

Russian naval forces have been greatly augmented also, in the region of Vladivostok as well as in the Black Sea and the Baltic, the War Commissar said.

"We can boast of a capacity in this Far Eastern fleet, despite the small size of our vessels, which is inadequate for attack but which nevertheless is sufficiently strong for defense," he added.

Denies Any Intent to Attack.

"It is well known that we do not intend to attack anybody, but only defend our shores and borders. Our naval aviation, submarines and coast defenses would be able to mutilate an attacking enemy."

Winding up his address, Voroshiloff borrowed an expression from Stalin, saying, "We are fearless and moving forward. The swine's noses cannot intimidate the Bolshevists."

MRS. DORA KARNER SEEKS DIVORCE FOR INDIGNITIES

ays Husband, Joseph E., Got Illegal Divorce Without Her Knowledge.

Suit for a divorce was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Dora Karner, 1544 California avenue, against Joseph E. Karner of East St. Louis, alleging general indignities. Mrs. Karner avers that her husband illegally obtained a divorce from her in 1911, three years after their marriage, but did not tell her about it, and that he lived with her between 1922 and 1929, when they finally separated.

His divorce, she says, was obtained on an affidavit he had lived in Missouri a year before filing his suit and that he did not know her whereabouts. She contends the court had no jurisdiction to grant him a divorce, as he was not a legal resident of this State.

Mrs. Karner further sues to enjoin Karner from disposing of any of his property, which she values at $25,000. Judgment for $3000 gross alimony and attorney's fees is asked. Karner could not be reached.

SCIENTISTS IN ST. LOUIS FOR STUDY OF STORMS

Forty Balloons Will Be Sent Up and Airplane Survey Made at 18,000 Feet.

Scientists of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology arrived in St. Louis last night to conduct an experiment to obtain a detailed picture of the vertical structure of storms, involving the sending of sounding balloons into the stratosphere and an airplane survey of the lower area.

Dr. C. G. Rossby, professor of meteorology at the institute, who arrived here last night accompanied by Chris Harmantas, a research associate, announced that the survey, unprecedented in the history of American meteorology, may furnish a basis for future weather forecasts. It is designed to furnish an air mass analysis.

Origin of the survey was fixed at St. Louis, he explained, because it was adapted peculiarly to a study of the inter-action of air currents of different origin, including those from the Gulf of Mexico and from Canada.

While 40 sounding balloons, each four feet in diameter, equipped with light and delicate instruments, are released singly at Lambert-St. Louis flying field, a monoplane piloted by Lieut. Henry B. Harris, of the Massachusetts National Guard, will take Dr. Rossby and his aid through the troposphere, extending perhaps 18,000 feet to the beginning of the stratosphere. The cabin of the plane, due to arrive here today will contain ample recording facilities permitting of a detailed study of the area it will encompass.

The experiment probably will occupy three days, Dr. Rossby said, the time of its beginning to be decided through weather information analyzed by the staff at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was inclined to the opinion that the flights would commence Tuesday or Wednesday.

Aluminum recording devices, telling atmospheric pressure, temperature, and humidity, will be affixed to each balloon. Remarkably compact, weighing only 1 2-5 of an ounce, each device will bear a stamped legend guaranteeing its finder a reward of $5 provided it is forwarded intact to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

It is anticipated that some of the balloons may ascend 15 miles before bursting and releasing their instruments, which will be incased in bamboo shock-absorbing frames.

Fundamental basis of the survey, Dr. Rossby said, will be a study of the interrelation between polar and tropical air currents in their influence on weather changes. An attempt will be made to obtain a detailed picture of the distribution at different altitudes of cold and warm air currents.

One of the specific questions which the survey may solve deals with the extent that a storm in the lower area affects conditions in the stratosphere. Dr. Rossby explained that there are at present two schools of scientific thought on this question.

European meteorologists, he explained, hold that temperature changes are caused by the circulation of polar and equatorial air currents at high levels. On the contrary, he continued, a well-defined American school takes the position that temperature changes are caused by reactions in the lower fields, which the institute's monoplane will traverse while the balloons are soaring far above.

In selecting St. Louis as the site of the experiment, he disclosed, the sea coast regions were discarded from consideration because of prevailing costal winds, which might interfere with the clarity of the relationship between polar and tropical currents. Interior regions encompassing mountain ranges were precluded automatically, he said, on account of the difficulty of recovering instruments which might fall from balloons on lonely mountain peaks.

In effecting the air-mass analysis, to be used as a basis for weather forecasts, it is planned to outline a picture of the distribution of cold and warm air currents at various levels.

During the experiments, which will last continuously for about three days, Dr. Rossby and his assistants will remain at the airport, jotting down their findings between flights in the airplane.

BIG BOND AND STOCK TRADE IN DEVALUED DOLLAR WEEK

Scores of Industrial Shares Touch New Highs Since 1931 — Foreign Currencies Tumble as World Seeks New U. S. Dollar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Markets boiled this week, as President Roosevelt affixed his signature to the gold devaluation act of 1934, and decreed a dollar of 15 5-21 grains of gold.

Stocks and bonds boiled upward, scores of industrial issues again registering new highs since autumn or summer of 1931. The stock market bubbled the most briskly since July, and records had to be searched back to 1919 to find a week in which there was such activity in bonds.

But the dollar, perversely, boiled up, instead of foreign currencies. Rather than rising sharply against the dollar to the new parities indicated by decreeing of 15 5-21 grains of gold in each unit of the American currency, foreign currencies tumbled as the world rushed to buy the new dollar.

Commodities hesitated for a time, but prices later advanced substantially. Cotton at New York showed net gains for the week of $1.10 to $1.35 a bale, and wheat at Chicago, 2 to 2⅜ cents a bushel.

Dun & Bradstreet said January retail trade was unquestionably the best for that month in three years. Automobile output, textile mill operations and steel production all quickened, and railroads began to buy rolling stock in some volume for the first time in years.

The stock market encountered several waves of heavy profit taking, as the average for industrial issues pushed through the peak of last July to a new top since 1931, but the substantial technical reaction looked for by some market analysts failed to develop. Many corporate earnings reports presented favorable comparisons with the previous year. U. S. Steel showed a sizable deficit for the final quarter of 1933, but its loss for the entire year was only about half that for 1932.

Conservative market observers still pointed to the exceptionally high prices of many leading shares in relation to current earnings, but Wall street remained predominantly bullish. The price index of 90 representative issues, including rails and utilities, advanced 4.6 points to 92, which was only 4.9 points from last July's top.

Big Bond Trade.

In bonds, the week's turnover exceeded $126,000,000 par value, and virtually all categories were higher. The bond market received a fresh fillip on Thursday, when the New York Federal Reserve Bank reduced its rediscount rate to 1½ per cent, from 2, the lowest rate in its history, and designed, among other things, to make short term money rates so cheap as to force funds into long term investments, that is, into bonds.

The trading in bonds was the largest since the last full week of 1919, when heavy trading in Liberties piled up a total of more than $150,000,000. Most of the trading this week was in corporate issues, and trading in that category was probably the largest in the history of the stock exchange. The price index of 60 corporate issues advanced 2.5 points to 83.7, the highest since Nov. 17, 1931.

Brokers' loans for the week ending Jan. 31, according to the Federal Reserve's weekly tabulation, showed the exceptional rise of $109,000,000, the sharpest for any week since March of 1930, lifting the total to $888,000,000. A good part of this advance, however, was believed to have been caused by the Treasury financing. The monthly tabulation of borrowings by members of the New York Stock Exchange showed a January rise of only $57,900,000.

Active Week-End Trade.

Markets were virtually unanimous in their forward movement at week end and trading on most exchanges, especially those handling securities and currency transactions, was very active.

Though declining against foreign monies the dollar still maintained substantial premiums over French francs and sterling. The American unit was down abruptly at the opening, then rallied for a time, but finally dropped again. French francs, closing 6.33 cents, were up one-tenth cent and the pound at $4.93½ was 5½ cents higher.

Stocks overcame early profit-taking and climbed to a strong finish which saw general gains of 1 to 3 points. Bonds, in the second busiest Saturday on record, held their momentum, although much of the betterment was in issues offering the largest yields. Cotton reached new highs since July and wheat gained around a cent. Silver futures brightened a cent or more.

Shares looked best in the industrial group where merchandising, rail equipment, steels and motors enjoyed good sponsorship. The advance was accompanied by the familiar lag in ticker reports on floor transactions as sales swelled to 2,081,170 shares, the biggest two-hour volume since last summer. The bond ticker, burdened with a turnover of approximately $17,000,000 par value, closed about three-quarters of an hour late.

Money Market Confused.

Although dollars drooped, the foreign exchange situation was still one of confusion. Dealers reported lively speculation in franc futures on the selling side, operations which doubtless were prompted by traders' willingness to guess that France would leave the gold standard. Currency brokers said there was no evidence that either the British or American stabilization funds were being used, or indeed had been employed in the last few days. Meanwhile, it was announced that some additional gold was being brought to this country from Europe.

The flourish in stocks carried the three major groups to new highs for the year and pushed the standard statistics industrial composite more than a point above its July top. On the basis of today's final averages, rails still were short of that objective by 4.6 points while utilities lagged by 31.3 points. The latter were rather sluggish this morning.

News that railroads were beginning to buy equipment—some orders have been placed for locomotives and cars and others are in the inquiry stage—brought a play in shares of companies which make rolling stock. American and Baldwin Locomotive issues, Lima and General American Tank Car were favorites. Chain store shares, including S. S. Kresge, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Woolworth, jumped 1 to 3 as Wall Street took further notice of favorable January earnings and estimates of business being done. Steels, which also stand to benefit by broadening railroad buying, were roughly one to two. General Motors and Chrysler were active and strong, the latter touching the best price since 1929. Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and New York Central improved 1 to 2.

Sterling ended with a net gain of 5½ cents at $4.93½ and French francs recovered .10 of a cent at 6.33 cents. Dutch guilders rallied 1 cent at 64.60 cents and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs moved up .42 and .45 of a cent, respectively. Canadian dollars rallied 11-16 of a cent to 99.18¾ cents.

Day's 10 Most Active Stocks.

Closing price and net change of the 10 most active stocks: Loew's, 30⅞, up 2⅛; Montgomery Ward, 32⅞, up 1¾; Chrysler, 58⅞, up ¾; Baldwin, 15, up 1¼; General Motors, 41½, up ⅛; Kresge, 22, up 3⅛; Warner Bros., 7¾, up ¾; Consolidated Oil 13⅞, up ⅛; Kelvinator, 18, up ¼; General Electric, 24⅛, up ¼.

NEW OFFICIAL PARITIES OF EXCHANGE ON THE LEADING CURRENCIES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.

DEVALUATION of the dollar to 15 5-21 grains of gold has changed its parities with principal foreign currencies, and prompted a marked change in the calculations of foreign exchange dealers.

The following are what may be termed new official parities of exchange on leading currencies, based on caculations made at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and carried to the nearest 1-100th of one cent.

	New Parity.	Old Parity.
British pound	$8.2397	$4.8665
French franc	.0663	.0392
German reichsmark	.4433	.2382
Holland guilder	.6806	.4020
Italian lira	.0891	.0526
Belgian belga	.2354	.1390
Swiss franc	.3267	.1930
Spanish peseta	.3267	.1930
Argentine peso	1.6335	.9648
Japanese yen	.8440	.4980
Austrian shilling	.2382	.1407
Canadian dollar	1.6931	1.0000

These parities, of course, are of little more than theoretical value only in the case of currencies still on the gold standard, or of currencies which are being artificially pegged to their old gold parities. In the case of the British pound, there is no expectation that it will be lifted to $8.2397 in terms of gold, but since gold payments were suspended in 1931, there has been no official devaluation of the pound, so it would go to that level in terms of the dollar, if the old gold value of the pound were ever resumed. The same applies to the Canadian dollar, Japanese yen and Argentine peso.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The sweeping and unexpected advance of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies was finally reversed today, but it still held well above its new gold parity in terms of foreign currencies. A fresh flurry of selling appeared in the French franc and other foreign currencies for a time in New York, after the dollar had declined in London and Paris, but this was soon absorbed. Exchange dealers in New York reported much speculative bear selling of French franc futures, which was regarded as a highly confusing factor. Foreign exchange departments of the New York banks were still in turmoil, with some maintaining constant telephone connection with London and Paris.

The French franc closed in New York at 6.33 cents, still .30 of one cent under its new parity, but .10 of a cent over yesterday's final level. The pound sterling finished at $4.93½, up 5½ cents.

In terms of the French franc, the dollar was still at a premium of nearly 5 per cent, and at a premium of more than 2 per cent over sterling, based on the London gold price, which declined moderately. The drop in the London gold market, however, was attributed largely to lack of fast steamship sailings for New York.

Further gold consignments to New York from Europe were announced, the largest being $5,750,000 consigned to Lazard Freres, and $5,000,000 to the National City Bank. It was estimated that some $40,000,000 in gold had been consigned to New York from London and Paris this week.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Raw sugar was firm today, although spot prices remained unchanged at 3:30 with a sale of 30,000 bags of Puerto Rican afloat to a local refiner. However, this appeared to be the only sugar available at this level, with holders generally asking 3.35.

Futures were firmer and at new high levels for the movement under further covering and active buying by houses with Cuban connections. Final prices were 2 to 5 points net higher, March showing the maximum gain. Sales, 24,500 tons.

There was considerable realizing on the way up, but offerings were readily absorbed and final prices were the best of the day. March contracts sold up from 1.58 to 1.62 and September from 1.70 to 1.75.

Refined was unsettled. Previous announcements of an advance were all rescinded, the price remaining unchanged at 4.30 for fine granulated. However, one local refiner announced it would advance 5 points on Monday to 4.35.

MANY BONDS AT NEW HIGHS FOR LAST 2 YEARS

Second Heaviest Saturday's Trading on Record, Transactions Totaling $17,426,000.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The bond market set another fast pace today and many listed loans again established new high marks for the past two years or more.

It was the second heaviest Saturday's trading on record, transfers totalling $17,426,000, par value, against $7,476,000 last Saturday. The record for a brief session was on Dec. 27, 1919, when bonds to the amount of some $19,000,000 changed hands.

The average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced four-tenths of a point to 83.7, just passing the 1933 peak of 83.5. All corporation groups reached new 1934 highs, while those for the industrials and rails were at their best levels since 1931.

U. S. Government securities, rather inactive recently, became exceptionally lively. The turnover here amounted to about $3,600,000, more than double the total of yesterday's full session. Gains ranged from 1-32nd to 18-32nds of a point. More than $1,300,000 of the uncalled Liberty Fourth 4¼s appeared at an advance of 6-32nds of a point.

The bond appetite seemed to have been further whetted by reports that the gold rush to America was gaining momentum, and that repatriated funds were going into loans as well as equities and that foreign capital, fearing a possible devaluation of some of the European currencies, was seeking refuge under the modified gold standard of the United States.

The rails again led the corporate groups with many liens scoring gains of 1 to 2 or more points. Among the most active carrier issues were some of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Denver & Rio Grande, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Frisco and Western Pacific.

Substantial advances were recorded by issues of Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Western Electric, Warner Bros., Utilities Power & Light, United Drug, Postal Telegraph, Niagara Share, Montana Power, Consolidated Gas, Chile Copper, American & Foreign Power and American Rolling Mill.

The foreign section was a trifle mixed. Gainers of 1 to 2 or more points including bonds of Belgium, Buenos Aires, Denmark, Rumania and Colombia. The Argentines were a bit soft under profit taking and loans of Dutch East Indies, France, Poland, Rhine-Westphalia and Italy were off 1 to 3.

COTTON REACHES NEW HIGH FOR SEASON AT WEEK-END

NEW YORK, Feb 3.—Cotton made new high records for the season today on an active demand from both trade and speculative sources. A more optimistic view of crop-control prospects and encouraging reports from the cotton goods markets were contributing factors in the advance which carried May up to 11.78, or 17 points net higher. That delivery closed at 11.76, with the general market closing at net advances of 14 to 19 points.

The market opened up 1 to 4 points on trade and commission house. Considerable realizing was encountered at the start and there may have been local selling on the action of the dollar in foreign exchange markets, but there was very little pressure from the South, and offerings were readily absorbed. Demand broadened as prices worked upward, with the encouragement of strength in the wheat and stock markets. Although realizing became heavier, it made little impression on the market. March sold up to 11.60 and October to 12.12, making net advances of 15 to 18 points on active months. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best.

Reports that sales of cotton goods during the first three weeks of January had exceeded production by 60 per cent and that unfilled orders were equivalent to about seven weeks' current production received considerable comment. Reports of a continued large retail turnover of general merchandise also attracted favorable notice, while recent advices reaching the trade here were said to have encouraged a more optimistic view of acreage control prospects.

With allowances for sterling, Liverpool cables were slightly better than due, and the continent was reported a considerable buyer here.

MEMPHIS SPOT COTTON

ZINC ORE PRICES ARE UP $2 A TON

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Feb. 3.—Despite the fact that zinc ore prices were increased $2 a ton in the Joplin market to a basis of $28, the sale of concentrates this week dropped to 3660 tons, the smallest turnover since the last week in December when mines were shut down for the annual Christmas holidays.

Mine operators, it was pointed out, felt that the market justified higher prices and many of them refused to part with supplies.

Smelters would have taken a much larger tonnage had it been available.

HUTTIG REPORTS $29,501 NET PROFIT FOR 1933

Huttig Sash & Door Co. reports a net profit of $29,591 for 1933, compared with a loss of $203,581 the year before. Expenses during the year were reduced by $122,645.

The profit, the first realized since 1928, was made despite a decline of 11 per cent in residential building permits compared with 1932 in the territory in which the company operates. These, in 1932, were 83 per cent less than the average for the previous five years.

The balance sheet for Dec. 31 lists current assets at $864,448, and current liabilities at $79,329. Net working capital is put at $785,118, a gain of $41,284.

SMITH & DAVIS MFG. CO. REPORT FOR LAST YEAR

Smith & Davis Manufacturing Co. reports net loss for 1933 of $3353, compared with loss of $96,136 in 1932. Surplus at Dec. 31, 1933, was $17,374, against adjusted surplus May 1, 1933, of $20,728. Current assets were reported at $138,128 and current liabilities $7586. Cash was shown in the report at $12,851 and Government bonds, $20,195. Net sales for the period were $291,146.

In a letter to the stockholders W. E. Hoblitzelle, president, said that the volume of business booked in January, 1934, was more than twice the amount in any January the past four years, and that prices were better, due largely to NRA influence.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Business on the Stock Exchange was generally quiet today. Gold mining shares were less buoyant because of the reaction of the price of bar gold but prices were appreciably higher nevertheless. Giltedged securities were dull, German bonds strong, transatlantic issues steady, and oil shares higher. The market closed irregular.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Sustained public buying imparted an unusually cheerful tone to the Boerse today. Despite some irregular fluctuations, prices remained and closed generally firm.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Rentes were lower on the Bourse but domestic industrials held steady. Bank, chemical, metal, and international shares were stronger, particularly Suez, Oil, Royal Dutch, and Young plan issues. The closing was irregular.

MAN LOOKING FOR BEER IS SHOT BY WATCHMAN

Wounded at Back Door of Cafe When He Returns for Another Drink.

James Rossington, 29 years old, who decided to go back to a restaurant at 4484 Delmar boulevard yesterday morning for just one more drink of beer, was shot and seriously wounded by his friend, Isaac Kelly, private watchman, as he was at the restaurant's back door.

Rossington told police he had spent most of the early morning hours in the restaurant and had gone home about 4:45 to wash. He said Watchman Kelly, who is 63 years old, was among those present in the restaurant in the course of the evening.

Shortly before 6 o'clock Rossington decided to go back for another drink. He said he was knocking on the door when Kelly appeared in the yard, ordered him to stop and finally fired at him from a distance of about 30 feet.

Kelly, on the other hand, declared Rossington grappled with him and that he had to fire in self-defense. He said he was on his rounds when he saw Rossington knocking at the restaurant door, which the watchman knew to be locked. He said that when he told Rossington to go away, the latter became abusive and started the fight in which he was shot. The bullet struck him in the abdomen, but missed vital organs.

BRITAIN TO LET FACTOR STAY FOR NEW KIDNAPING TRIAL

Plans Make for Prompt Resubmission of Case Against Touhy Gangsters.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Counsel for Britain assured Cook County officials today John Factor would be permitted to stay in the United States for the second hearing of the factor kidnaping case.

"The British Government will not object to the delay," Attorney Franklin R. Overmeyer, representing the British authorities, told Judge Philip L. Sullivan in Federal Court. Factor is wanted for trial in England for the alleged sale of fraudulent securities.

Assured that their principal witness would be on hand, prosecutors immediately set about getting their case into shape against Roger Touhy, the beer bang leader who with two followers is charged with Factor's $70,000 abduction last June.

The first trial of the case against the three ended yesterday when a jury which had heard testimony for two weeks was unable to agree upon a verdict. A mistrial was declared.

Prosecutor Wilbert F. Crowley said he would use all of the State's witnesses when Touhy, Albert Kator and Gustav Schaefer are brought to trial again on Feb. 13. In the first trial, the State used only about one-third of its more than 100 witnesses.

RELIEF LISTS REDUCED

Reduction in Chicago From 122,275 Families to 86,690.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—CWA payrolls have brought a sharp reduction in the number of jobless on public relief rolls. The Illinois Emergency Relief Commission estimated it would be required to provide relief to only 86,690 familes in Cook County (Chicago) during this month, compared with 122,275 families in December. Figures for January are not yet available.

In addition to the reduction in families requiring aid, the commission estimated the total of 26,427 unattached persons requiring aid in December would be cut by about 5000 during February.

DAUGHTER INTERVIEWS HER REPORTER FATHER

Dorothy Kilgallen Sees James L. Off for Rome and Tells All About It.

Dorothy Kilgallen, reporter on a New York newspaper, who has been a rival of her father, James L. Kilgallen, on many stories, writes the story of her father's departure for Rome to be correspondent of Universal Service.

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—With a smile the city editor called a girl reporter to his desk. "A famous newspaper man, of whom you may have heard, sails for Rome on the Rex today to be a foreign correspondent," he said. "The name is Kilgallen. Go interview him." The reporter went.

In a stateroom on A deck, she found James L. Kilgallen, noted newspaper man who was starting out on his biggest assignment as foreign correspondent for Universal and International News Services. He said, "Come right in."

"You," said the reporter immediately, "look strangely familiar I think I have seen your face before."

"That may be," said Mr. Kilgallen. "Won't you sit down?"

Girl Reporter Solves Mystery.

"Now, Mr. Kilgallen," she began, "tell me something about yourself. Where did you get your start in the newspaper business? And where, incidentally, did you get that brown trunk?"

"I got my start in Chicago," he replied. "The trunk is yours. I borrowed it."

He indicated a steamer trunk initialed "D. K." which are certainly not his initials.

Instantly the reporter knew who the man was. This was not only a noted journalist, this was the man who had held her up to a portable typewriter at the age of 3, who had showed her a "type louse" at the age of 4, and who has been reading copy on her for the past 20 years in one way or another. This, in fact, was her father.

"Where," asked the reporter, "do you think you're going?"

"To Rome," he replied.

He added that he was going to pick up a few stories while he was over there, and maybe take in a few other European cities, and that what he really wanted to do was ride in one of those gondolas.

But He Can't Take It Himself.

He revealed that, although he has interviewed hundreds of page-one personalities—from Lindbergh and President Roosevelt to Al Capone and "Machine Gun" Kelly, from Thomas Edison and Henry Ford to "Peaches" Browning and John D. Rockefeller Sr.—he "couldn't take it," himself.

"I don't see this being interviewed," he said.

"Well, don't talk, then," declared the reporter. "Don't say a word. They sent the right reporter on this assignment, because I know all about you."

The reporter knew, for instance, the hitherto unpublished fact that young Kilgallen began his newspaper career at the age of 18, in Chicago, writing "Advice to the Lovelorn," under the name of "Winnie Winthrop."

Also that at one time he was the youngest editor in the United States, that he has been a star reporter for International News Service for 15 years, and that he has been lent to Universal Service by the INS to be chief correspondent in Rome and do some special features.

No Spats, No Accent, No Cane.

"Well, Mr. Kilgallen," said the reporter, "I suppose we won't know you when you will get back, you being a foreign correspondent and whatnot."

Mr. Kilgallen gave a slight snort. "Oh yes, u will," he replied. "I give you leave to punch me in the jaw if I come back with spats, an accent, a cane or sideburns."

As the reporter turned to go she spied a small portable typewriter under the berth, and looked accusingly at the departing journalist.

"That's yours, too," he admitted. "I thought—well, I thought you wouldn't be using it much."

Oh, no. I had just written chapter one of the great American novel on it, but that's all right. I can write the great American novel any time.

SALOON LICENSE $100 OUTSIDE TOWNS IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

Places Must Close From 1 A. M. to 6 A. M.; Bond Issue for Jail at Belleville Recommended.

A license fee of $100 a year was fixed yesterday by the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors for saloons outside incorporated towns or villages. The resolution also provides that saloons in unincorporated territory shall remain closed from 1 a. m. to 6 a. m. daily.

The board recommended that a $175,000 bond issue be placed on the ballot next Nov. 6, to provide funds for building a new county jail at Belleville. The estimated cost of the proposed jail is $230,000, but the board anticipates a 30 per cent grant from the Public Works Administration if the bonds are voted.

FOUND GUILTY OF ROBBING MAE WEST OF DIAMONDS

Edward Friedman Convicted After Actress Testifies She Turned Over Property to Save Face.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 3.—A jury convicted Edward Friedman today of robbing Mae West, the screen star, of $17,000 in diamonds and $3400 in cash.

Superior Judge Harry Sewell ordered Friedman brought before him Tuesday to be sentenced on two counts of second degree robbery, each of which carries a sentence of not less than one year in State's prison. The blonde actress was the State's chief witness.

There was standing room only when she made several court appearances. She said a robber pointed a revolver at her in her automobile in Hollywood.

"The man with the pistol said to me: 'Give me the poke,'" she testified. She told how she reached for her purse and handed it to him. It contained $3400. Then she turned over the jewelry.

She commented: "I could make that $3400 any time, but I couldn't get a new face."

Woman Killed in Auto Upset.

CRANE, Mo., Feb. 3.—Mrs. C. H. Lewers, 35 years old, of Crane, was instantly killed today when an automobile she was driving turned over an embankment about half way between Hurley and Crane after a tire blew out. Three other occupants of the car, her daughter and two women, suffered shock and injuries which are not believed to be serious.

Slain in Innsbruck Clash.

By the Associated Press.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Feb. 3.—Political tension prevailing in the Tyrol claimed its first victim today when a home guard auxiliary policeman shot and killed a man who was trying to avoid arrest. The provincial government, meanwhile, made wholesale arrests of Nazi sympathizers, among whom were five professors in Innsbruck University and four Innsbruck physicians.

KILLS SELF IN AUTO NEAR SISTER'S GRAVE

St. Louisan Ends Life With Exhaust Gas on Road at Carterville, Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTERVILLE, Ill., Feb. 3.—Despondent over the death of his sister a year ago, John Bowen, 50-year-old unemployed trimmer of 4229 Athlone avenue, St. Louis, drove his automobile to the side of the road near the cemetery where she is buried, attached a hose to the exhaust pipe of his machine, closed the windows and killed himself with carbon monoxide.

The body was found in the automobile two miles south of here this morning after Mrs. Bowen, left at a Marion hotel by her husband after driving from St. Louis yesterday afternoon, asked that a search be made. She said her husband had threatened to kill himself and that the trip was made to permit him to visit his sister's grave.

After stopping at the hotel, Mrs. Bowen said, her husband left in the automobile. Thinking he might have gone to see his mother, Mrs. Florence Ryan, who resides at Marion, Mrs. Bowen became alarmed only after he remained away several hours.

NEW PLAN MILK LICENSE FOR CHICAGO DISTRIBUTORS

Secretary Wallace Begins Second Effort to Increase Dairy Farmers' Incomes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary Wallace today began the Government's second effort to increase dairy farmers' incomes with the issuance of a license for milk distributors in the Chicago area.

The license, first of a series to be issued under the new policy of guaranteeing only producers' prices, fixes minimum rates which distributors must pay to farmers, establishes an equalization pool to handle surplus milk, and provides for a Federal Market Administrator, who will supervise enforcement on distributors.

Prices which will be paid, based on a standard of 3.5 per cent butterfat milk, are: $1.75 per hundred pounds for fluid milk, $1.25 for milk sold as cream, and a rate for surplus milk of three and a half times the average wholesale price per pound of 92 score butter on the Chicago market.

These prices are a compromise between the rates of $1.85 and $1.075 for the first two classes asked by the Chicago Pure Milk Association in arbitration following the recent milk strike and those of $1.70 and $1.25 which the Farm Administration first offered to guarantee under a license.

Frank C. Baker of the licensing and enforcement section of the administration, a former Kansas City, Mo., business man, was named administrator of the license.

The new license is to be followed within a short time by a marketing agreement.

VIRGIN ISLANDS CHEER DANISH TRAINING SHIP

First Official Craft of Denmark to Call Since Their Transfer to U. S.

(Copyright, 1934.)

ST. THOMAS, V. I., Feb. 3. — For the first time since the transfer of the Danish West Indies to the United States, an official ship from Denmark has paid a visit to the Virgin Islands. The enthusiastic natives gave a rousing welcome to the officers and crew of the Danmark, training ship, and there were many celebrations during its stay at St. Thomas.

The Danmark is a full rigged ship of 800 tons and has an auxiliary motor. She is one of the most modern boats of her type and is scarcely a year old. Modern safety devices make the ship ideal for the training of 120 boys making the voyage under Capt. Ankerso.

From the moment her arrivel at St. Thomas was announced by Alex Thage, Consul-General for Denmark at St. Thomas, there was a great deal of excitement here and in the other islands. The picture made by the boat entering the harbor with all sails set added to the joy of the inhabitants for sails on that type of vessel are becoming a thing of the past.

Local newspapers have devoted much space to the effort to cover all the stories connected with the "second coming of the Danes." A message of greeting was sent to King Christian X which read:

"Citizens of St. Thomas in fraternal gathering with Commander, Officers and Cadets of Danmark respectfully send their most cordial greeting to His Majesty the King and their best wishes for the progress and prosperity of their ever remembered and beloved former Motherland." The King replied briefly in a cablegram the following day.

The Danmark has just sailed from the Virgin Islands for Charleston, S. C., in order to give the young cadets a chance to see the mainland. Because they have been in the tropics for a long time they will not visit New York on this cruise, Capt. Ankerso said.

THIRD OF DEPOSITS IN BANKS ARE INSURED AGAINST LOSS

Under Government Plan $15,345,832,000 in 13,434 Depositories Is Protected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—More than one-third of the nation's $42,460,253,890 bank deposits are guaranteed by the Deposit Insurance Corporation.

E. G. Bennett, corporation director, today gave the exact amount of insured deposits at $15,345,832,955, as 36.1 per cent of total deposits. These deposits, he said, were held in 13,434 insured banks and extended to 54,250,240 depositors.

"The temporary insurance fund whereby individual deposit accounts in banks which are members of the fund are protected in full up to $2500 per account, has been in operation a little more than a month and the directors naturally are pleased with its success to date," Bennett said.

"So far, no bank which is a member of the insurance funds has closed, and therefore, we have not had to pay out any of the corporation's funds to reimburse depositors."

In Missouri, 1,467,404 accounts are insured, representing a total of $312,638,360, or 36 per cent of the total deposits.

In Illinois, 2,912,823 accounts are insured, a total of $691,433,855, or 32 per cent.

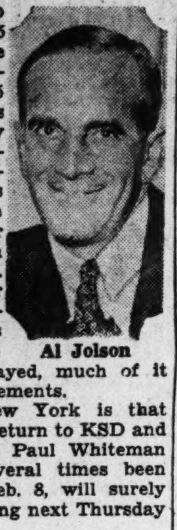
By J. L. S.

KSD Program News and Notes.

MAUDE ADAMS, who is playing in adaptations of famous plays on KSD, probably will put on "Peter Pan" some night before long.



Al Jolson

A new KSD program, at 5:45 the first five week-day evenings, and at 6:45 on Sundays, is Uncle Billy's Toy Band. The program, which began Jan. 28, is similar to one which ran for three years on WLW, Cincinnati. Music written for children, or descriptive of things of interest to youngsters, is played, much of it in special arrangements.

Word from New York is that Al Jolson, whose return to KSD and the WEAF chain Paul Whiteman program, has several times been announced for Feb. 8, will surely resume broadcasting next Thursday night.

Martha Meers, who graduated from the University of Missouri last June, has won a network contract, and is singing at 6 o'clock Wednesdays on KSD and the WEAF chain. Her voice is contralto, and she sings popular ballads. In her junior and senior years, she sang over WIL, first with Jerre Cammack, organist, and later with Charles Dawn and Menges' orchestra. Last November she won a competitive audition and a place in Gus Edwards' Revue, and toured with the troupe in vaudeville. Three weeks ago she went to New York, sang at an audition in the NBC studios and was offered a contract.

Senator William E. Borah will speak over KSD on recent Federal legislation at 9:30 next Wednesday night.

Network News, Studio Gossip.

MARION TALLEY, who retired after singing at the Metropolitan Opera, then came back to sing with the Chicago Civic Opera, will be the "guest" when Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians open their new series on the CBS net and KMOX at 8:30 tonight. Fray and Braggiotti, the two-piano team will be featured by Waring Thursday night.

Marion Talley

Ted Fiorito, whose orchestra succeeds Waring's in the CBS chain KMOX period from 9 to 9:30 Wednesday nights starting this week, will feature the Debutantes trio, Muzzy Marcellino, a comic crooner, and the Fire Eaters, trick instrumentalists. His first few programs will come from California.

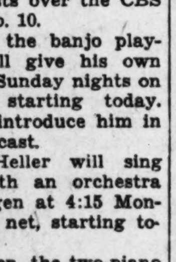
Ruth Etting is billed for a new CBS chain series at 8:15 Tuesday and Friday nights, beginning Feb. 13.

George Gershwin, composer and pianist, will play with Ted Weems' orchestra at 6 o'clock tonight on KMOX and the CBS net. He is billed to play his "Rhapsody in Blue."

Jeannie Lang and the Three Rascals have been engaged for the new 8:30 Friday night series featuring Jack Whiting and Jack Denny's orchestra that will begin Feb. 9 on the CBS chain and KMOX.

James Melton, who is on tour with George Gershwin and Leo Reisman's orchestra, will be back on the air soon.

TONY SARG, the puppet master and illustrator, will speak on the opening program of a series called "Tourist Adventures" that will go on the WJZ chain and KWK at 9:30 Wednesday night, Feb. 14. Irvin Talbot's orchestra will furnish the musical background for each of the half-hour broadcasts.



Helen Hayes

All three networks will carry a "national mobilization of Boy Scouts" program, with a call to service by President Roosevelt, at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning, James E. West, chief Scout executive, and Walter M. Head, president of the Boy Scouts of America, also will speak.

Helen Hayes, the actress is billed for the Hall of Fame broadcast next Sunday, and George Gershwin for Sunday, Feb. 18.

The Voice of Romance, with a singer and an orchestra led by Waldo Mayo of Maj. Bowes' Family, will be the title of a series of 5:15 Saturday broadcasts over the CBS chain, starting Feb. 10.

Eddie Peabody, the banjo playing comedian, will give his own show at 9 o'clock Sunday nights on the WJZ chain, starting today. Rudy Vallee will introduce him in the opening broadcast.

Little Jackie Heller will sing popular songs with an orchestra led by Harry Kogen at 4:15 Mondays on the WJZ net, starting tomorrow.

Ohman and Arden, the two-piano team; Arlene Jackson, singer; Edward Nell, baritone and an orchestra will begin a Rings of Melody series at 1:30 today on the WJZ chain and KWK.

William Jones, of KFRU, Columbia, Mo., previously of KMOX, has been made assistant to the program director of WLS, the 50,000-watt Chicago station. He sang two seasons with the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company.

A broadcast from the train on the underground railway connecting the Capitol with the Senate office building in Washington will be carried by the CBS chain at 10:45 tomorrow morning. An announcer will ride on the train and interview Senators on their way to the session of the Senate.

Mayor La Guardia of New York will speak on municipal problems at 1:30 next Saturday on the CBS net.

Call letters of the Byrd Expedition's voice station are KFZ. The transmitter can be used on any of 13 frequencies. Yesterday, KFZ was supposed to use 13,200 kilocycles.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr. will be interviewed on the St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty at 9:30 next Friday night on the WJZ chain, probably including KWK.

Gertrude Stein Opera At 9:30 Thursday Night.

LISTENERS who tune in CBS net stations at 9:30 next Thursday night will be in for an experience, though what their reactions will be this writer declines to predict. Anyway, that is the time set for broadcasting Gertrude Stein's opera "Four Saints in Three Acts," from Hartford, Conn., with a cast of Negro singers. Edward Matthews, baritone, who for years was coach and instructor of the Fiske Jubilee Singers, will sing the leading role, St. Ignatius. Beatrice Robinson-Wayne, soprano, will be the St. Therese, and Bruca Howard, contralto, St. Therese II. Eva Jessaye will direct the two large choruses. WABC (860) will carry the opera and possibly WOWO (1040) and KMBC (950).

Gertrude Stein

Here are samples of Miss Stein's "style," if that is what it is: The first act opens in Avila in early spring. A wall and a tree are obviously there. St. Therese II is seated under the tree, painting flowers on very large eggs. Part of the libretto text follows:

"Saint Therese in a storm at Avila there can be rain and warm snow and warm that is the water is warm the river is not warm the sun is not warm and if to stay to cry. If to stay to if to stay if having to stay to if having to stay if to cry to stay if to cry to cry to stay.

"Saint Therese half in half out of doors

"Saint Ignatius not there.

"Saint Ignatius staying where.

"Never heard them speak of it.

"Saint Ignatius silent motive not hidden

"Saint Ignatius silent. They were never beset. . . ."

Here is one of the choruses:

"Let Lucy Lily Lucy let Lucy Lucy Lily Lily Lily Lily Lily let Lily Lucy Lucy Let Lily. Let Lucy Lily."

Whatever these words mean to Miss Stein and do or do not mean to anybody else, they are set by Virgil Thompson to music described as of lovely quality. The writer gleefully anticipates the comments of his listener friends next Friday morning.

The broadcast will bring the first act of "Manon," with Mme. Vina Bovy singing "Manon"; M. Vergnes, lyric tenor, "Des Grieux," and M. Lazone, baritone, "Lescaut." The Opera Comique was established in 1715, was closed for seven years in 1745, was then reorganized and since has been one of the leading opera houses of the world. Originally, it produced only so-called opera comique, in which the ending always was happy, but for many years it has presented grand opera.

Another concert by Miguel Calo's Argentine orchestra and Carlos Donte will be broadcast from Buenos Aires at 3:30 tomorrow.

Dry State Listeners Forewarned to Tune Out WOR Gin Program

RESIDENTS of dry states were forewarned against a radio program broadcast from WOR, Newark, N. J., Friday night advertising a brand of gin.

An announcement devised by the station was intended to safeguard the program from being construed as advertising in sections banning liquor advertising. Before a male trio went on the announcer said:

"Those listening in from dry states may now tune out this station, for the next program is not intended to offer alcoholic beverages for sale or delivery in any state or community wherein the advertising, sale or use thereof is unlawful."

Opera, "Merry Mount," On KSD Next Saturday.

MERRY MOUNT, the opera which will be broadcast by KSD next Saturday from the Metropolitan, is the work of two Americans. Richard Stokes, formerly music editor of the Post-Dispatch, wrote the libretto. The composer is Howard Hanson, a 38-year-old Nebraskan, who is head of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

Lawrence Tibbett will sing the principal role, that of the clergyman, Wrestling Bradford. Saturday's performance will be the premiere of the opera, although it was produced in a concert version last summer at Ann Arbor, Mich., with John Charles Thomas singing the role that Tibbett will take at the Metropolitan.

Stokes, who left St. Louis for New York, and became music critic on the Evening World in that city, found in Hawthorne's story, "The Maypole of Merry Mount," what he believed to be ideal opera plot. The background of the plot is the conflict between the Puritans and the Cavaliers in old New England. In his libretto, Stokes makes the Cavaliers symbolize a liberal, free life, and portrays the Puritans as militants who worshiped, not a tender, forgiving God, but the Jehovah of the Old Testament.

The opera was written on a definite commission from Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, after the story and music had been outlined to him.

The most effective music in "Merry Mount" is said to be that for the chorus, which plays a more prominent role than in most modern operas.

Henri Deering, pianist, will resume his recitals over the WJZ chain at 9:30 tomorrow night. He is a St. Louisan by birth.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull's address at a National Press Club luncheon in Washington will be broadcast by the CBS chain at 12:30 noon next Saturday. He will discuss results of his trip to the Pan-American conference at Montevideo.

SISTER OF 'AUTO RACER FOUND DEAD ON ROAD

Thought to Have Been Thrown Out of Car or Hit by a Machine.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—The body of a woman, identified as Alice Krieger, 33 years old, sister of Johnny Krieger, automobile racing driver, formerly of Denver, was found at the edge of the Alameda boulevard highway near the harbor district early today.

The skull was crushed. Investigating officers expressed the opinion that she either had been thrown from an automobile, or struck down by a driver who fled.

Before her death she was seen wandering in a dazed condition on the highway near Wilmington. A motorist told police she seemed dazed and said she had been in a fight. A wounded hand, wrapped in a handkerchief, bore out that statement.

KILLING OF MAN BY POLICE FOUND JUSTIFIABLE BY JURY

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday in the case of Paul B. Bates, 44-year-old waiter, who was slain by three city detectives early Friday after he had created a disturbance in the hallway of a rooming house at 3921 McPherson avenue while intoxicated.

The jury found that Detective-Sergeant Thomas Dirrane and Detectives James O. Shelton and Forrest Meldrum acted "in faithful performance of their duties." The detectives testified at the inquest as they had reported to Chief of Police McCarthy, that they fired at Bates, running down the hallway in disregard of a shout of "Halt, police," had turned and reached for his hip pocket. He was unarmed.

Warrant for Embezzlement.

A warrant charging embezzlement of $899.94 from Welcome Inn, relief station, was issued yesterday against John Boe, former clerk and bookkeeper arrested last Wednesday. Boe, 25 years old, confessed that he had taken about $1000 between last Dec. 1 and Jan. 8, according to police.

TAKES POISON WHEN ABOUT TO BE ARRESTED

Tailor Later Finds Charge Was Not What He Had Expected.

James Murphy, 35-year-old Edwardsville tailor, is in a serious condition in City Hospital after having taken poison early yesterday when detectives arrived to arrest him on a charge of embezzlement.

"I know what you are arresting me for," he told the officers as he admitted them to the basement room he has been occupying at 1369 Blackstone avenue. "It's my wife, with that old non-support charge. But I'm not worried about it. I've got it beat."

As he talked he put on his hat and coat and accompanied the detectives to a waiting police car. When they had started, one inquired, "What do you mean you got it beat?"

"Sure I got it beat," the tailor repeated. "Just before I let you fellows in, I took poison."

Thereupon the officers raced to the hospital with him. In his pockets were found 69 cents and 10 poison tablets. In his room was a bottle containing 76 poison tablets. He said he bought the bottle, containing 100 tablets, Friday, and asserted that he took 14.

The embezzlement charge is an indictment charging him of having taken $47 from the Clayton Cleaning & Dyeing Co., of Edwardsville, where formerly he worked.

His wife, Mrs. Reba Murphy, and two of their four small children, are being supported by the Provident Association at 1420 Mississippi avenue. It was she who informed M. Lester Geers, State's Attorney at Edwardsville, of the fact that her husband was in St. Louis.

"He told me he'd take poison if he was arrested," she said, "but he hadn't been supporting us and he has run away and deserted us before, so I turned him up."

Former Air Corps Commander Says We Have Only 261 Planes In Our "First Line of Defense"

With Aviation Progress, U. S. Is No Longer Safely Isolated From Attack, He Asserts, and Cites Enemy Objectives.

By MAJ.-GEN. JAMES E. FECHET (Ret.),
(Formerly Commander of the U. S. Army Air Corps.)

AVIATION progress has made the United States vulnerable to air attack. No longer are we safely isolated. We can be attacked by planes flying from carriers at sea or from bases established on neighboring foreign territory.

The recently increased range, speed, power and load capacity of airplanes means that today a successful enemy air attack could be devastatingly damaging from the viewpoint of national defense strategy. Some of the first enemy objectives obviously would be:

Detroit, to block any effort at supplementing crippled rail transport by drawing on the automotive industry.

On the Pacific Coast, such key cities as Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and vital railway points on the trans-continental lines, destruction of which would isolate the coastal area and delay reinforcement from the East.

Finally, almost any inland center which an enemy deems vital to our defense, can be reached from beyond our frontiers by the war planes of today.

That being the situation, what defense have we?

FIRST, we have 1273 flying officers in our Army Air Corps. Fifty more are in training and half of these "will make the grade" and join the Air Corps. In the whole service, but 13 officers are non-flyers. The chief of the Air Corps, Major-General Foulois, has piloted his own plane since 1909, and his three assistants, Brigadier-Generals, are pilots.

SECOND, we have in the United States a stock of about 1750 army airplanes. But of these only 261 are instantly available for attack against an enemy invasion—by land, sea or air—of continental United States.

There are 250 additional combat planes but these must remain on various fixed duties, as will be explained later in this article. The rest are observation, training and other non-combat types.

Our Air Corps strength is as follows:

ATTACK—Attack planes fly low, just clearing hill or treetops; or a sea speed of 175 miles an hour through smoke screens, spreading death and consternation on the decks of carriers by means of their six machine-guns and 10 small bombs per airplane. They are here and gone before rifle or anti-aircraft gun can be pointed at them.

We have but four attack squadrons, three at Fort Crockett, Galveston, Tex., and one in Hawaii. At Fort Crockett 36 planes are ready to fight. There are 17 attack planes in Hawaii. Elsewhere in the United States are 47 attack planes, but distributed at Air Corps schools, miscellaneous activities, and being overhauled.

BOMBARDMENT — These are important weapons when used against an approaching fleet, enemy land expeditions, transport lines and supply depots.

We have 12 bombardment squadrons; two in Hawaii, one in the Philippines, one in Panama, eight in the United States. Those instantly available for home defense number 70 planes, distributed by squadrons as follows:

Three at Langley Field, Hampton, Va.; three at March Field, Riverside, Cal., and two at Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal. About 50 additional bombers are in use at Air Corps schools and in miscellaneous activities.

PURSUIT—These seek out and fight hostile aircraft. They are the "hand-to-hand" combatants. By high speed, maneuverability and marksmanship they must clear the skies of hostile planes seeking to shoot down our bombers and observation planes; and they must also meet and destroy hostile bombers.

We have 17 pursuit squadrons —two in Panama, two in Hawaii, one in the Philippines and 12 in the United States, the latter distributed as follows:

Three at Langley Field, three at March Field, three at Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; three at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La.

Within the United States, therefore, we have a total of 155 pursuit planes ready to fight, while about 150 more are located at the air corps and other branch schools at miscellaneous activities and being overhauled.

The three types of planes above mentioned—attack, bombardment and pursuit—constitute the new "first line of defense" in the air.

Strictly speaking, these types alone constitute "air power." Naval aviation is an integral part of the fleet and cannot be used otherwise, and observation aviation is an integral part of the army.

OBSERVATION — Observation planes report results of shell fire, where shells fall behind hills or trees, and of coast artillery fire, where shots fall miles away. They patrol battle lines, and by eye or camera record changes in disposition, the location of temporary roads, depots, enemy artillery locations, etc.

Of observation squadrons we have the following: Two in Hawaii, two in Panama, one in the Philippines, nine in the United States. The latter are distributed:

Three at Mitchell Field, L. I.; three at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex.; one at Crissy Field, San Francisco; one at Scott Field, near St. Louis, and one is divided into five flights, located at different service schools. Total, 119 planes ready for war in the United States. Sixty-eight are in foreign possessions. About 200 more are located at Army schools and in miscellaneous activities not connected with tactical squadrons.

Supplementing the above there are some 59 transports, 72 amphibians, 479 training planes and 14 photographic types, none of which would fight.

NATIONAL GUARD AND RESERVE—There is an efficient National Guard Air Corps with 19 squadrons, located at Boston, Staten Island, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Nashville, Birmingham, Romulus, Mich.; Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, Houston, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Parkwater, Wash.; Hartford, Newark, Denver and Little Rock.

These are equipped only with observation and primary training planes. There are 109 observation and 35 training planes "ready to go," but although the officers are well trained and enthusiastic, with this equipment they cannot engage in strictly fighting missions.

Reserve officers are trained by assigning about 240 annually to tactical organizations for about a year. Others get two weeks active duty annually, others fly occasionally.

National Guard and Reserve Officers, therefore, get only primary training, or tactical training for observation work with the army. Of a total list of around 7500, perhaps 500 are speedily transferable to war duty, though we have no planes in which to put them. Six months' training would be necessary for the rest and the percentage who couldn't "make the grade" and become fighters, would be high.

To the layman the figures, 1273 officers, 7500 reserves, 1750

"Commodity Dollar" May Work in a Distant Utopia,

Says Dr. Edwin Walter Kemmerer

But Gold Is Best Anchor for Practical Money

Government Has Been Merely Pushing Up Price of One Commodity (Gold) But This Has No Direct Effect on Other Prices at Home, He Declares.

Exports Artificially Stimulated Likely to Be Artificially Checked by Anti-Dumping Laws and Tariffs, Resulting in Foreign Trade Chaos.

DR. EDWIN WALTER KEMMERER
Of Princeton.

Thinks Going Off Gold Standard in Spring of 1933 "Great Mistake." "Humpty Dumpty Has Fallen Off Wall; Long Drawn Out Task to Put Him Together Again."

Despite Government Stimulants Production in November, 1933, Was Not So Near Pre-depression Level as That in France, Germany, England and Canada.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—

THERE is probably no other economic institution on which so many people speak with "vigor and authority" as money, and no other field of economics can boast of a mass of barnacles so bright in appearance and with such clinging propensities as "the money cranks" in the field of economic science—men who solve all our economic problems by monetary panaceas which they have concocted without being handicapped by any knowledge of the elementary principles of economics or of the facts of monetary history.

Dr. Edwin Walter Kemmerer, professor of international finance at Princeton, is here paying his respects, without calling names, to various schools of monetary thought—to the greenback school, the free silverites, the commodity dollar advocates, the champions of the Warren gold-purchase theory.

Kemmerer himself is an outstanding exponent of the more orthodox views on money. Called "the money doctor of nations" because of his part in the reorganization of the financial systems of a dozen countries, he has been much quoted, in and out of Congress, by opponents of the President's monetary policies. At a national meeting of economists recently in Philadelphia, he clashed sharply with the President's adviser, Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell.

"Kemmerer on Money" (just published by the John C. Winston Co.), from the preface of which the above quotation is taken, is a clear and highly readable statement of his beliefs. It is inscribed "to the memory of Grover Cleveland, a fearless and valiant champion of sound money."

Fruits of Warrenism.

The book treats of the development of the President's policies almost down to the present moment. Of the Warren gold-purchase plan, which was put into effect in October, Kemmerer says that up to the end of 1933 it had done "little more than bring great disturbance into the foreign exchanges, arouse antagonism abroad and weaken confidence in the dollar everywhere."

Warren said at Philadelphia, and again before a Senate Committee, that the rise in the price of gold was accompanied with a rise in commodity prices—the objective of the Government in pushing up the gold price. He used a selected list of commodities to prove his point. Kemmerer says that although the gold value of our paper dollar was depressed by about 8 per cent from Oct. 25 to the end of the year, "commodity prices in general fell during that period."

Kemmerer points out that when a country is on a paper money standard, as the United States now is, gold has practically the same status as any other commodity. When, therefore, our Government enters the market to buy gold, its action tends to increase the value of gold in terms of other commodities, but this "has no direct effect upon commodity prices at home, which are expressed in terms of inconvertible paper dollars."

"So far as the United States is concerned," he continues, "the Government has merely been pushing up the price of a single commodity, namely gold, that was, on Dec. 30, 1933, about 64 per cent higher than it was 10 months before, instead of pushing up the prices of goods in general.

"When a country is upon an inconvertible paper money standard, the principal influence that the value of gold exercises upon the price level is the indirect one which it exercises through the country's trade with gold standard countries.

"If purchases of foreign gold by pushing up our exchange rates on gold standard countries temporarily tend to stimulate exports, they equally tend to retard imports, and a country does not get rich nor effect a healthy advance in its price level by giving to foreigners more and more and receiving from them in return less and less.

Bassett Jones Says Prof. Warren Adds Horses and Apples

BASSETT JONES, the distinguished engineer whose book on "Debt and Production" was reviewed in this place on Oct. 1 last, says in "Horses and Apples" (The John Day Co.) that the "wholesale price index" and the "index of the volume of physical production" used by Prof. George F. Warren as bases for his monetary theories—and in fact all such indexes—are "fundamentally in error" and that any deductions from them result in absurdities.

Jones says that no "price level" for 1926 or any other year has ever been established and he questions whether it is possible to establish one.

His book, which has just been published, takes its title from "the horse and apple market" which he uses to illustrate his thesis. You can't add horses and apples, he says, nor is there any sense in trying to multiply horses by apples.

His conclusion is that "the basis for the determination of index numbers is fallacious because it rests on a fundamentally wrong concept as to the nature of, and the performance of, the economic system as an integrated whole."

Chaos in Foreign Trade.

"Furthermore, exports artificially stimulated by currency depreciation are likely to be artificially checked in the importing countries by anti-dumping laws, quotas and tariffs raised to compensate for our currency depreciation. Other countries, moreover, can play the same game of trying to stimulate their exports by a continual process of currency inflation, which means international competition in inflation, with resulting chaos in the world's foreign trade, its currencies and in all its operations in international finance....

"The only important way in which these gold purchases tend to put up commodity prices, aside from increasing the velocities of circulation by weakening the public's confidence in its currency and encouraging a flight from the dollar, is through serving as a device for bank-note and deposit-currency expansion. This is done chiefly through the fact that the Treasury notes paid out for the gold tend to flow into the banks and become a basis for the expansion of circulating bank credit. If the Government is determined further to inflate the currency, a renewal of the purchases of Government securities by the Federal Reserve banks in the open market would be a much better device than the purchase of gold. It is more easily understood and, being a domestic affair, arouses much less antagonism abroad."

Of even timelier interest is what Kemmerer has to say about the dollar devaluation plan embodied in the bill just passed by Congress.

Though he believes that the country "should return promptly and with vigor to the gold standard," he maintains it would be unwise to try to return at the present time to the old gold parity. His reasons for this opinion are political rather than economic. That is to say, a fight for the old gold parity against the strong sentiment in the country for inflation would delay an effective return to the gold standard and meantime "our present depression would continue to drag on."

Expediency, he says, in effect, demands a compromise, in order that the country may be safeguarded immediately against the danger of a runaway inflation.

A Habit-Forming Drug.

"The political doctors in Washington," he explains, "have for some time been drugging our economic organism with the habit-forming drug, inflation, and are continuing to do so. The patient has resisted and up to the present time the drug has been only mildly effective; but the patient's system is full of the drug and it cannot be pumped out. . . .

"The giving up of the gold standard in the spring of 1933 was unnecessary and was a great mistake, but Humpty Dumpty has fallen off the wall and it would be an exceedingly difficult and long-drawn-out task to put him together again."

Hence, he proposes stabilization of the dollar at about 66 2-3 cents, which, as he points out, is not far from the present gold value of the paper dollar. He doubts if a higher rate would be "politically possible." The one-third devaluation of the dollar, he says, probably would result in an advance in prices "sufficient to give the debtor classes the relief which the Administration has been advocating."

Since Kemmerer wrote this, the effort to obtain stabilization at 66 2-3 cents, through an amendment to the President's bill, has failed, and the top limit of dollar revaluation has been fixed at his request at 60 cents.

In a section added to his book after the President had proposed the 50-to-60-cent dollar, Kemmerer says the proposed rate of stabilization is "surprisingly low."

Sky High Prices Later.

On the assumption that the present value of gold, with the passing of the "nervous stress and strain" of the past few years, will decline to about what it was in 1926, he estimates that the 60-cent dollar would give us ultimately a general price level about 72 per cent higher than the level of November, 1933, and about 27 per cent higher than that of the 1926. On the same assumption, the 50-cent dollar would bring about a general price level 111 per cent higher than that of November, 1933, and 58 per cent higher than than of 1926.

A devaluation of the dollar to either the 50 or the 60 cent level, he says, "would go altogether too far in reducing the burdens of the debtor classes at the expense of the creditor classes, and would be very unfair to the creditors. The reduction of one-third in the gold content of the dollar previously suggested would be the maximum devaluation that should be considered, and the reduction should be substantially smaller than this is politically possible.

"The subject," he concludes, "is one of momentous importance, involving the welfare of the entire American people for generations to come, and the public should speak out vigorously their judgment in the matter before it is too late."

An Inflation Danger.

Kemmerer agrees with the President and Congress that the profits from devaluation of the dollar should go to the Government, but he warns, in italics, that "if the Govern-

Craze for Self-Sufficiency Harmful To Good Understanding Between Nations, Lloyd George Declares

British Statesman Asserts the "Mists Seem to Be Thickening Rather Than Lightening on the International Seas."

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War-Time Prime Minister of Great Britain.

LONDON, Feb. 3.

I HAVE recently had some experience with fog at sea in an area crowded with traffic. You hear foghorns sounding all around you, but have no idea whether they are ahead or to stern, to port or to starboard. The expert mariners on the bridge must be just as baffled, for they slow down until the last challenger recedes into the gloom.

Statesmen, business men and financiers must be passing through the same experience now in navigating the mists that seem to be thickening rather than lightening on the international seas.

President Roosevelt reduced the value of the dollar by 40 per cent. London promptly came to the conclusion that meant to appreciate it. He steered, as he thought, further from the pound—and he finds he has got substantially nearer.

There is some apprehension in commercial circles in Britain that the dollar and sterling may bump into each other badly in world markets. In the present state of uncertainty no one can tell.

Disarmament Situation.

The disarmament situation is in an equally obscure condition. Britain, France, Italy and the League of Nations are moving about in that misty sea, but no one is quite sure of his own position and still less of that of his neighbor. Luckily, they are all moving with caution, for a collision here might produce an appalling catastrophe.

Naturally in this dense fog there is an atmosphere of apprehension which leads to wild rumors.

There is the French Senator who declares he has reliable information that Germany is in a position forthwith to mobilize hundreds of divisions. As a matter of fact, this startling estimate is a grotesque fiction emanating from the excitable brain of a patriot who has been piecing together little scraps of gossip that have reached him from time to time, and has gradually worked himself into a state of panic.

There are the masses of people in France, who, whilst thinking this figure is exaggeration, are ready to believe that Germany has secretly built up a powerful, well-equipped army which, at a moment suitable to herself, she will hurl across the French frontier.

If by hundreds of divisions the panic-stricken Senator means that Germany has two or three millions of sturdy young men ready to fight for the Fatherland, anywhere against anybody, at a word from Hitler, then the figure is probably an under-estimate. But a military division means more than that. It implies rifles, machine guns, a full complement of airplanes and light and heavy guns, not to speak of tanks. Germany could not now put three fully equipped divisions in the field, judging equipment by the standard applied by any other European nation to its own divisions.

But as long as fog covers the earth these fantastic stories will find credence and therefore produce mischief.

Far Eastern Developments.

Geneva means to have another try at clearing the thing up. Until it succeeds, expenditure on armaments will continue to mount. I see that the United States is launching a gigantic naval building program. In this country, the reason for her action is attributed to the Japanese situation. Japan is also building.

The tension in the Far East between Russia and Japan is by no means relaxing, and America wants to be ready for all eventualities. Neither is Britain disinterested in that quarter of the globe, and the coming naval conference at Singapore among Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain proves that the empire is waking up to the urgency of the situation.

Here in England we anticipate a real increase, not so much in our navy as in our air force. There is much pressure also to build a few more cruisers. With all her budgetary troubles, France is not seeking reduction of her vast armaments. The next step to the forging of armor is to gird it on. That is why complete trade recovery cannot be looked for as long as this process is going on.

It is no use concealing the fact that the political situation in France has added a new element of anxiety to the situation. The Herriot, Daladier, and Chautemps ministries were essentially pacific. They represented French peasants who have had enough war. And as long as this sagacious trio are in control of the Government of France, there is no danger of any rash adventure like the invasion of the Ruhr in 1923.

But one can never predict what would happen if the former Premier, Andre Tardieu, and his friends of the Right were to come into office. The Stavisky scandal has provided the Chauvinists of France with an opportunity one had no reason to anticipate a few weeks ago. The influence of the party led by Herriot and Daladier has been considerably weakened.

The prospect of this second Daladier ministry remaining in office does not look too promising. If it falls, no one can quite tell what sort of combination will follow. Former President Gaston Doumergue, who might have formed a moderate ministry, has refused to undertake the task.

Until we know how the French political situation will work out, the crisis created by the Bayonne defalcation will constitute an element of serious disturbance in all calculation as to the future. If an aggressive Government governs France, Chancellor Hitler's conciliatory speeches will count for nothing.

"Hitler Means Peace."

A peremptory demand to Germany that she should disband her Brown shirts or do something else which would affect her national susceptibilities would not meet with the same tame and quiet reception as she accorded 10 years ago to Poincare's invasion of the Ruhr. I am convinced that Hitler means peace. His task is internal reconstruction of Germany. He knows that war would be fatal to his plans.

But there are limits even to his powers of persuasion. The youth of Germany would certainly transgress those limits if he tried to inspire passive submission to a foreign invader. The economic war between nations, however, is getting more intense, and causing more damage to the interests of all.

It is two years since I last visited a foreign country, and I am conscious of great intensification since then in the campaign of trade restriction. Just as new weapons of more destructive kind were invented every month as the great war proceeded, so now there are fresh tariffs, new and more ingenious "being brought into action."

Craze for Self Sufficiency.

Countries seem to be intent on keeping out the products of every other country which competes

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For Higher Tax on Large Incomes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A RECENT issue of the Post-Dispatch contained a statement of the proposed new income taxes, placed in columns so as to be compared to the present rates and, after reading the same, I find myself puzzled.

I find, for instance, in case of incomes of $5000 to $6000, there is to be no change, but on those between $6000 and $7000, there is to be a reduction of 3.76 per cent. After that, on all incomes running between $7000 and $8000, at the one end, and $15,000 to $20,000, at the other, there is a regular percentage of increase.

But, beginning with those having incomes of from $15,000 to $20,000 per year and running up to those having incomes of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 a year, the proportionate amount of tax assessed on this income decreases from 23.17 per cent to 7.97 per cent. Instead of their proportionate tax decreasing, should not the proportionate tax increase with the amount of the taxpayers' income?

Surely, the person with the income of over $1,000,000 a year has not earned that by his own efforts, but is appropriating to himself a goodly part of the earnings of many other people, and should be taxed at a higher rate than the man in modest circumstances.

The only apparent justification for the smaller percentage of increase in the income tax of those earning $20,000 a year and over as compared with the increased percentage of those having smaller incomes would be that, under the present income tax rates, those whose incomes amount to between $25,000 and $2,000,000 have been assessed too much in proportion to those receiving smaller incomes.

The disclosures brought out by Mr. Pecora in his examination of Messrs. Mitchell, Morgan and Wiggin would hardly lead to the conclusion that the men of extremely great wealth have been paying more than their just proportion of taxes. On the contrary, they would indicate that the very wealthy have been very resourceful in finding means of escaping the duty of carrying their fair proportion of the expenses of the Government whose protection they enjoy.

Perhaps there is some valid explanation for the consideration and tenderness which this new law seems to show the enormously wealthy class, and if there is such explanation, the people should really have it, because otherwise, the man of small or moderate income who has paid his taxes as a good citizen should, may get the impression that he is being discriminated against, and may get it into his head to resort to some of the methods of dodging his responsibility which have been used with so much success by the big fellows.

Unemployed Men Over 50.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT is to become of the unemployed men who have reached the half-century mark? I served my employers for the best portion of my life, and now find myself a member of the vast army of unemployed, because of the "folding up" of my company, through no fault of my own.

Everywhere I apply for work, I hear the wail that I am too old. An officer of a large casualty company needing an accountant informed me that he could not accept for employment anyone older than 35. Ye gods! Suppose all of us over that age would refuse to carry insurance. What would happen to this company?

Suppose all valuable men of 50 and over were to be turned out. What would be the result? Most important offices in our national, state and city governments are held by men over 50.

Are men over 50 expected to lie down and die? Perhaps Dr. Osler was right. I am proud to say, however, I don't need a crutch or cane at my age. I am always on the job and don't have a hangover from necking and gin-licking parties, which the younger generation glories in.

SOC-ET-TUUM.

The Co-Operative Commonwealth.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OGDEN MILLS speaks about guaranteeing individual rights against the arbitrary power of government. What everyone knows he means is that he wants the capitalist to be guaranteed the right to deal arbitrarily with the worker and the Government.

But there is a real danger of bureaucracy. Dr. Melchior Palyi, erstwhile German economist, now professor of economics at the University of Chicago, says: "The fundamental trend, all over the world, is one directed toward stabilization of vested interests."

If we are to have social vision and a revitalized democracy, we must view mankind from a common denominator, figuratively speaking. By that term is meant that we must find that quality in homo sapiens which is common to all human beings. One of those qualities that is essential for life is consumption of food. We are all consumers. Secondly, we must realize that, in a vital democracy, those who produce the food and profits must have a voice in the economic world which they create.

Put these two together and you have the co-operative commonwealth. When the Government pledges itself to building consumers' co-operatives with organized workers, and socializes basic industries, then we will have, as Thomas Amilie puts it, not the New Deal but the New Deck.

Chicago. E. M. DUERBECK.

The Twofold Role of Public Works

The Government's activities and expenditures in the gigantic task of putting the people back to work have proved themselves indispensable, and the people have accepted them as such. This accounts for the volume of protest against the proposal to terminate the CWA by May 1, since it is realized everywhere that private industry is not yet prepared to absorb the 3,800,000 persons who would be thrown out of employment if the civil works program ended thus abruptly. Figures by the Commissioner of Labor Statistics show that, of the 7,000,000 persons returned to work between March 1 and Jan. 1 (excluding agriculture), private industry has found places for only 2,600,000, and the Government has provided employment for 4,380,000.

Even when industry returns to normal production, competent authorties estimate, 5,000,000 persons will be left unemployed, so steady has been the march of labor-saving machinery. Reduction of working hours offers a solution to this problem, as we have often pointed out. Until the revival of industry is complete, however, and the revolution in working hours has been achieved, continuation of Government activities is essential to bridge the gap.

The physical improvements bestowed upon the country by the recovery activities prove that governmental expenditures are in reality investments. All over the nation, necessary public buildings are springing into being, long neglected work in forest conservation is being accomplished, huge power and navigation projects are under construction. The Government is getting something for its money. More than that, its money is being circulated, freshening the shrunken rivulets of trade into a healthy stream. The money does not stop in the banks, as so much Federal largess has. It goes straight to the people.

The CWA worker does not hoard his money or invest it in unnecessary productive enterprises; he hastens to distribute it among the grocer, the clothier, the furniture dealer, etc., and the creditors whom he owes. Reviving business always means more revenue for the Government, and so it has been recently.

The Government cannot afford to drop half-done its great undertaking of pulling the people out of the depression, if we are not to return to the heart-sickening days of last March and the months preceding. There is enough work to be done in improving our comparatively new country, and it would be the course of wisdom to undertake major activities now, when the stimulus of public works is needed to complete our economic rescue. The present Congress may be expected to order such undertakings, perhaps of such magnitude that will make the dwindling adherents of laissez-faire gasp for breath. The Tennessee Valley and Columbia River projects indicate the sort of tremendous undertakings that this country needs, both in its era of reconstruction and for the welfare of future generations.

A project possessing the essentials both of widespread employment and widespread benefits is the Mississippi Valley plan, as discussed by Secretary Ickes in the current Survey Graphic. This vast central domain of 27 states is beset by various problems, which the Mississippi Valley Committee, an agency of PWA, has classified as follows: erosion, forestation, flood control, agriculture, navigation and power.

Erosion, Mr. Ickes points out, washes three billion tons of good earth each year from America's fields and pastures. He quotes Prof. N. S. Shaler, the late geographer, who warned that unless man learned to check erosion, the time would come "when our kind, having wasted its greatest inheritance, will fade from the earth because of the ruin it has accomplished."

The problem of forestation is closely linked with erosion, in addition to its bearing on the lumber supply of the future. Unregulated exploitation has left only 250,000 square miles of forest land in the Mississippi Valley, and 10 per cent of it is well on the way to devastation. Mr. Ickes envisages flood control, not as barricading against high water by building more and higher dikes along the lower Mississippi, but as controlling the floods where they originate, on the upper reaches of the stream, by diverting the water into drouth reservoirs.

The welfare of our agriculture is endangered by the continued use of poor lands, while fertile soils await only irrigation and cultivation to yield rich crops. Mississippi navigation has long been a dream of the inland empire, but Mr. Ickes foresees no Utopia where the barge will supplant the railway and motor truck. As to power, he points out that few farmers enjoy the use of electricity, and a vast field for construction and sale of equipment is offered.

Accomplishment of all these things would furnish employment for thousands of workers, who would leave behind them rich assets to the country's future. A similar plan for the Missouri Valley already has been introduced in the form of a bill by Senator Norris. He, too, envisages a wide program of flood control, navigation, power and irrigation development. He agrees with Mr. Ickes in saying:

> For many years, we have been building dikes on the lower Mississippi to prevent damage by flood. The very waters that do that damage, if properly impounded, will be of great benefit for navigation, irrigation and development of power.

Such plans as those of Secretary Ickes and Senator Norris furnish food for thought and a basis for our next great program of putting the people to work and developing the country. The Roman Emperors constructed great aqueducts, roads and other public works in periods of depression, and contributed to the glory of their nation. Our own country is at last learning this valuable lesson.

Temperance vs. Abstinence

It is debatable whether temperance should be taught in the school rather than in the home, but the public schools of Springfield, Mo., having accepted it as their duty, have chosen a rational method. There would be no ghastly pictures of drunkards' stomachs and livers, no horrifying accounts of woes wrought by a glass of beer or a cigarette. Nor will students be told that non-smokers are noble specimens of health and smokers are tottering wrecks, for, says Principal J. D. Hull, they will make observations to the contrary, and lose faith in teacher and school. Rather, the merits of abstinence in youth and moderation thereafter will be stressed. Students will be told that getting drunk is "not decent, not gentlemanly and is very bad taste."

There would seem to be nothing in such a program to encourage the forces of unrighteousness, but Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, State president of the W. C. T. U., objects to one point, which calls for "an open mind, realizing that there is a difference between abstinence and temperance." Mrs. Burger candidly says she dislikes that phrase about the "open mind," and insists that "temperance and total abstinence from alcohol are synonymous."

Comment is superfluous, since temperance by any dictionary means moderation. Legal imposition of abstinence was tried in this country for 13 years, and failed utterly. Now the temperance organizations have a chance to live up to their names by working for general moderation, and helping educate youth in that direction. Any other course is doomed to the same failure as befell prohibition.

Light Where It Is Needed

"The Fight on the Securities Act," by Bernard Flexner of New York in the Atlantic Monthly for February, is a piece of writing which the country sorely needs. It analyzes one of our most important social gains and leaves the attack on that gain in a light which should make many of its opponents squirm.

Mr. Flexner is no blind supporter of an impractical ideal. He is a prominent lawyer with 35 years' experience at the bar. He has supervised issues of securities, has passed on legal details for investment bankers, has advised public utility companies in financial matters, and he has been an investor. He knows the securities business, its ins and outs, its practices and malpractices, its front and backstage. Let the would-be destroyers of the law try to convince people that it was written by members of a Brain Trust without experience; they will doubtless know better than to be so rash as to raise a similar point against Mr. Flexner's defense of it.

The article begins by distinguishing between the "dominant class" in Wall Street and all its prolongations over the country and those honest securities dealers who, the author says, would like to sign his article with him. The latter unfortunately are persuaded to silence, he explains, because public opposition to "the well-subsidized campaign of propaganda" of the "dominant group" would jeopardize jobs, business connections and other relationships.

Mr. Flexner finds it easy to explain the opposition to the law. The law is lawyer-proof. Heretofore, he points out, attorneys for investment and banking houses have been able to find loopholes in regulative legislation affecting the business of their clients. In the Securities Act, they face an altogether different proposition. With no way through, around or over available, they have undertaken a campaign of "wildest exaggeration" in the hope of getting Congress to change the law.

In supporting this charge, Mr. Flexner answers, one by one, the arguments which have been raised against the Securities Act. The act's opponents complain that it is more severe than the English law under which Lord Kylsant was sent to prison. Mr. Flexner shows that the presence of high-pressure salesmanship and feverish finance in this country and the lack of it in England, together with the physical differences between the two countries, would have rendered it useless to enact the English law in the United States without making necessary adjustments.

The opponents of the Securities Act protest that its liability provisions are unfair; that there can be no security business, and for that matter, no business at all, if the purchaser of a misrepresented stock or bond can sue the seller to take it back and return the money which was paid for it. Mr. Flexner looks about him to find the refunding of money on misrepresented articles in common practice. He asks if there is sovereign immunity in the securities game.

It is frequently said by those who would change the law that the registration statement which it requires to be filed with the Federal Trade Commission with an application for approval of a proposed issue goes into too much detail. Mr. Flexner thinks that details about bonuses, preferred lists, secret commissions, the interests of bankers, directors and large stockholders and figures on plant and property depreciation are essential to any intelligent judgment of a security issue.

Time and again it is declared that the Securities Act is retarding recovery by causing a famine in new security issues and by holding up refunding operations. Mr. Flexner demolishes this argument by showing that there was very little financing for some time before the act became effective, and that investment houses have had difficulty in disposing of municipal securities which are exempt from registration.

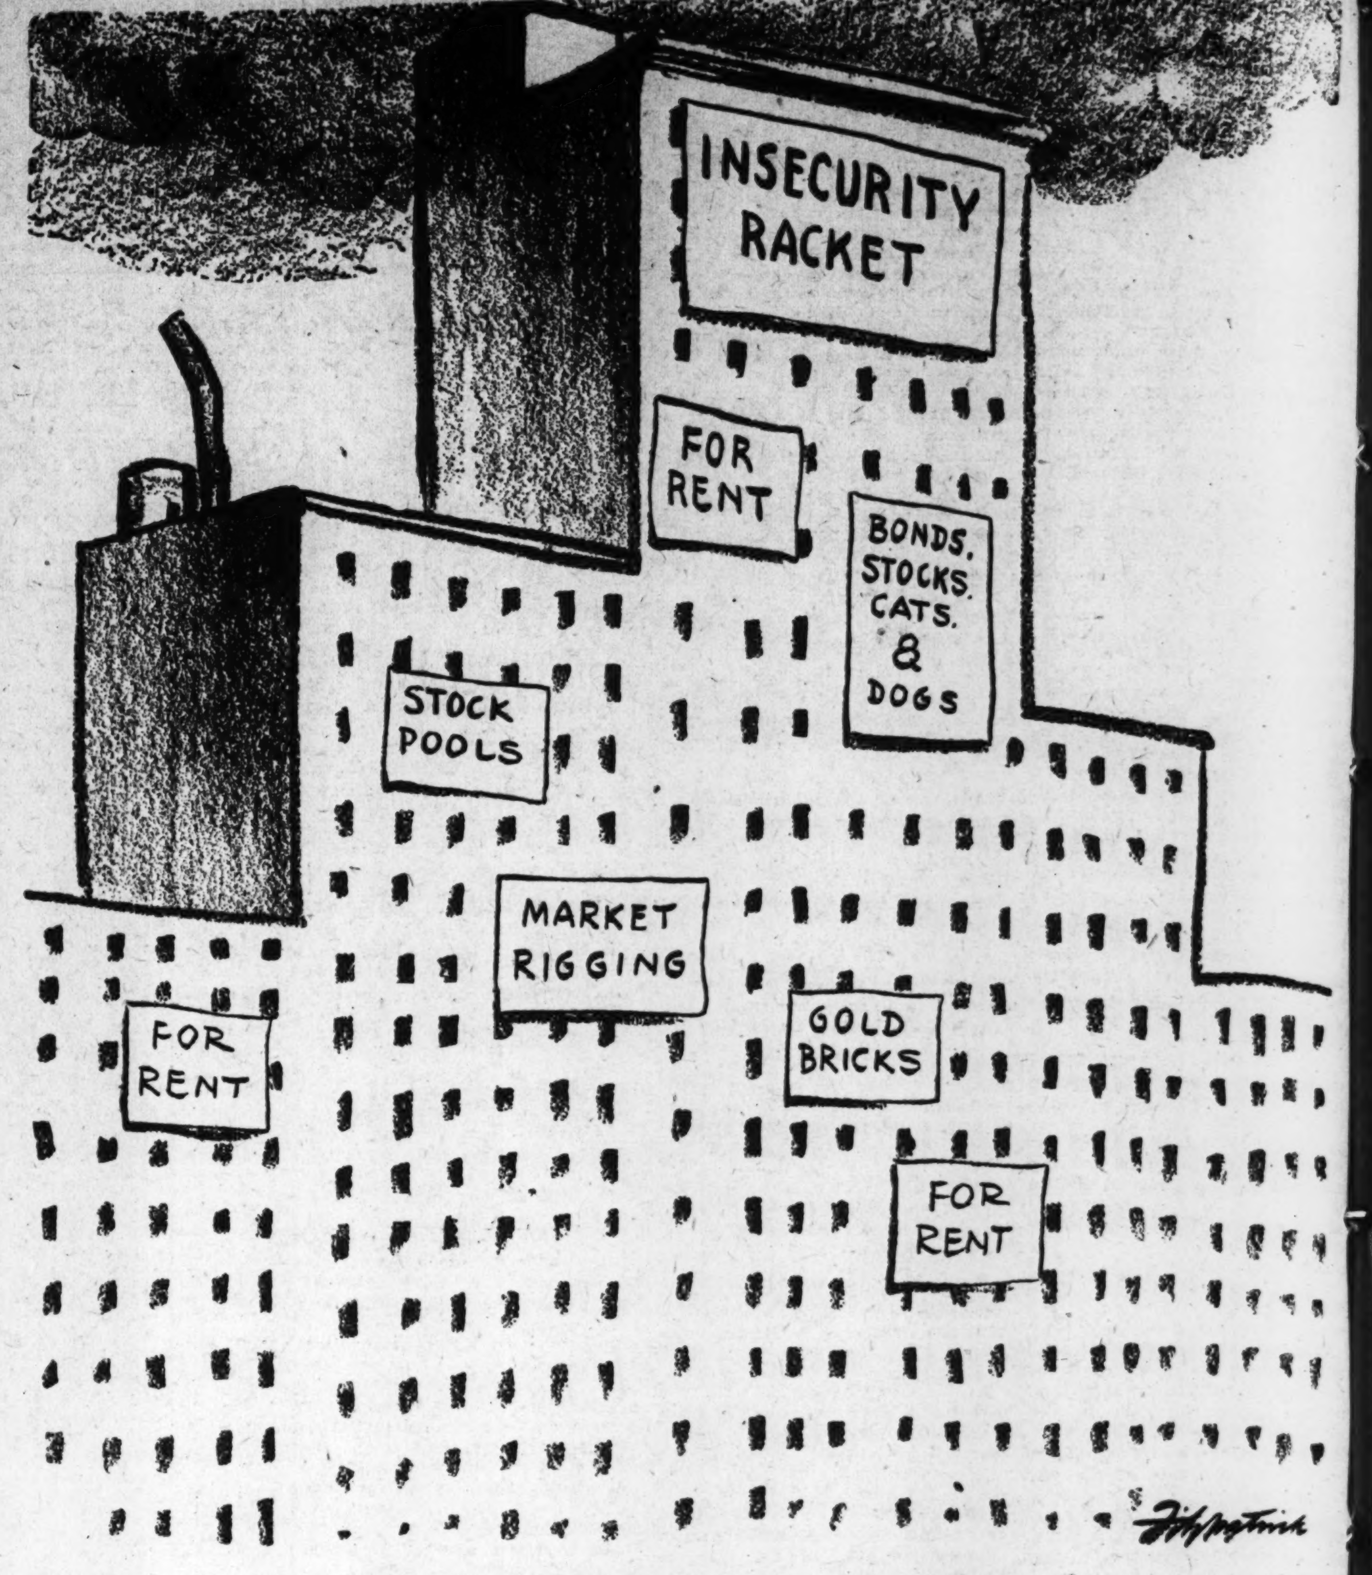
Opponents of the law insist that if it stands as written, business men will not want to accept the responsibilities of directors of corporations and issuing companies. Mr. Flexner answers that society and business will be the better off for the departure of directors who do not wish to stand good for what they offer to investors. As a matter of fact, as he shows, where there is a market such as exists now in mining and distillery shares, directors and banking houses appear willing to assume the responsibilities which the law imposes. It has been shown in Senate investigations that Percy A. Rockefeller is a member of 54 directorates. What can one man know of the business in which all those concerns are engaged?

Those who want the law amended say they are in accord with its "principles," and want only "minor changes" to make it "workable." Says Mr. Flexner:

> The real purpose in wanting to open up the act for amendment is to take full advantage of any opportunity that may present itself in the accidents of the legislative process to destroy its effectiveness completely. Too much money and effort has gone into this campaign of propaganda to justify a purpose of mere "clarifying" amendments. Amendments which appear innocent enough will be artfully loaded with ingenious weasel words; seemingly casual changes from section to section will attempt to confuse the careful interrelations which give the act its lawyer-proof character.

Judging by the indisposition of the Roosevelt administration or Congress to alter the law before it has been given a fair trial, Mr. Flexner's views are held by those in authority. This may very well be, for the fight to regulate security selling is a major engagement in the battle of the people with the money power which Woodrow Wilson said would have to be won if the United States is to remain a democracy.

We have said all along that, however they have discredited themselves in the eyes of the people, the opponents of the Securities Act were entitled to state their case. It is unquestionably their turn to speak now. Mr. Flexner's brilliant article puts the case up to them in a form that cannot be dodged.



ONE GOLD MINE THAT ISN'T BOOMING.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Shadow Chasing

KEMMERER ON MONEY. By Edwin Walter Kemmerer. (John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia.)

EDWIN WALTER KEMMERER, professor of international finance in Princeton University, has been called "the money doctor of the world," having taken the leading part in reorganizing the monetary systems of a dozen countries located in five continents.

"He is," we read, "universally recognized as the leading authority on money"—a statement which seems to err somewhat on the side of enthusiasm, in view of the fact that this latest exposition of the gospel according to Kemmerer was written to reveal the alleged heretical fallacies of the other leading authorities who are shaping the monetary policy of the present administration. The statement might well be amended to read to the effect that this high priest of the old economic orthodoxy is universally recognized by true believers. In order to know that the gospel is orthodox, one need not read beyond the pathetically reminiscent dedication: "To the memory of Grover Cleveland, a fearless and valiant champion of sound money."

One wonders, even thus early in the volume, if the author can have overlooked the tremendous fact that something of a fatal nature has happened to the old economic system during 40 years of change more rapid and far-reaching on the material plane than the world had experienced in all its previous history. When the volume is closed, one knows, for all the author's obvious knowledge of monetary mechanics, that he has indeed overlooked the fact; that he believes he is still in the same old economic world that Cleveland knew—a world admittedly afflicted, but presumably with a momentary illness to be cured by putting the patient on the good old-fashioned gold standard diet.

He views with genuine alarm, and for all a layman may know, perhaps with good reasons, the present administration's monetary policy. He fears, of course, the danger of a runaway inflation, and argues that a currency presumably backed by gold, but not immediately convertible, is in effect merely a paper standard currency; and that the relation thereof to a gold reserve is no more than the relation of a paper standard currency to any other commodity.

Gold thus held, he argues, has no monetary function. In support of his argument, he shows "how at one time in 1922, during the German inflation, while the notes of the German Reichsbank were rapidly depreciating in value, the gold reserve of the Reichsbank was worth at current exchange rates eight times as much as the total amount of the bank's notes in circulation, and about three times as much as all the notes outstanding plus all the deposits of the Reichsbank, and all the deposits of the large Berlin banks."

The author advocates a prompt return to the strict gold standard, paper to be redeemed "on demand in gold bars of a value of about $8000 each," and the dollar to be stabilized at two-thirds of its value of last November. "The result of such a bold and prompt stabilization," he believes, "would be a revival of business and a strong impetus toward an orderly and enduring economic recovery."

The President's stabilization plan, as announced in his message to Congress on Jan. 15, is discussed without enthusiasm in the concluding pages. Aside from the danger of a runaway inflation that the author fears, it is argued that "a 60-cent dollar would give us ultimately a price level about 72 per cent higher than the level of November, 1933, and 27 per cent higher than that of 1926. A 50-cent dollar would yield ultimately a general price level approximately 111 per cent higher than November, 1933, and 58 per cent higher than that of 1926. . . . Such devaluation," he urges, "would go altogether too far in reducing the burdens of the debtor classes at the expense of the creditor classes, and would be unfair to the creditors."

The irreverent reader might feel moved to wonder, after nearly 200 pages of apparently expert juggling with the money question, if there may not be a joker somewhere. Why, for instance, he might ask, did the economic scheme collapse while on the gold standard, if nothing but a prompt return to that standard is needed to revive us? The author's answer somehow "trickles through the head like water through a sieve."

The economic catastrophe, we read, "was due primarily to a collapse in business confidence and a breakdown of the machinery of circulating bank credit, with resulting substantial reductions in bank deposits and, proportionately, much greater reductions in the velocities at which the deposits circulated." That, we are assured, was "the crux of the situation." There was no "scarcity of circulating media"; but the circulating media just somehow refused to circulate with the velocity of prosperity, and so business men "lost confidence in the situation, and they were afraid of the future value of the dollar in terms of which all contracts looking to the future must be made."

But, the reader may further urge, why did the circulating media refuse to circulate with the proper velocity? Because business was afraid to go ahead? But would not business have gone ahead right merrily had our society as a whole been able to buy and consume what it had produced? And if it was not able to do so, why?

The answer to this fundamental question, which the author, in his economic orthodoxy, characteristically ignores, cannot be given in terms of money alone. It cannot be given in terms of money at all, save as money and credit are manipulated to further the colossal racket that our civilization has become.

Even now, as throughout the "depression," we are assured, "there would appear to be much more than enough circulating media to maintain the commodity price level as high as that of 1926." (If only it would deign to velocitate!)

Always, with these adherents of a dead or dying regime, it is the price level, and never human necessity! Always it is money, the abstract representation, and never the living reality itself. Always the shadow, and never the substance. Always the wrong end of the process—the profit end—receives the first consideration.

Enough circulating media indeed, if the social circulatory system were not so devised as to drain off, in numerous forms of unearned increment, the life blood of the social body! And so long as this obvious fact remains, any amount of circulating media, however prodigally poured into the social body, will drain inevitably in the same way. Doubtless money systems may be better or worse, but surely no system can be better in its effect on human lives than the social scheme it serves.

That this "money doctor of the world" is not above the suspicion of a childlike, if not a childish, naivete, seems to be indicated by his remarks regarding the possible effect of inflation upon the endowments of our great public welfare institutions. "They were built up largely by the gifts of wealthy men," we read; and if the present trend in Government policy continues, "will we have in future the rich men to re-endow these welfare institutions?"

Those who do not catch the unconscious humor in the author's question are referred to the logic of future events for illumination.

MONEY CHANGERS VS. THE NEW DEAL. By Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes. (Ray Long & Richard R. Smith, Inc., New York City.)

THIS "candid analysis of the inflation controversy" should be read in connection with the Kemmerer gospel noted above; and after the humorless pieties of "the world's money doctor," it makes especially delightful reading.

For instance, in considering the grave alarm with which the high priests of the good old "sound money" religion view the Government's inflation policy, Dr. Barnes remembers most irreverently that "in the decade before 1929, there was an inflation of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange alone which amounted to over 75 billion dollars. . . . If the President were to print three billion dollars of paper money, these persons who shot up stock values by a figure 25 times this amount would utter a resounding howl of protest. If anybody is to run printing presses, the money changers wish to be in charge. They are deeply pained to see the presses working on Treasury notes, but they love to see them turning out stock certificates."

The most vocal opponents of the Government policy, Dr. Barnes notes, are the bankers. "Their follies and chicaneries brought about the failure of over 16,000 banks since 1920. . . . These are the men who are now raising their voices for soundness, stability, caution, conservatism, the welfare of widows and orphans."

Dr. Barnes deals with the question, not as a Roosevelt partisan, but as one who wishes to understand. With no sacred doctrine to defend, he is free to consider in a spirit of fairness the administration's efforts toward the achievement of a managed currency—which Dr. Kemmerer does not do; and he is unafflicted with either optimism or pessimism, which, to the realist, are merely forms of intellectual paralysis.

What he has to say about monetary schemes is the more effective in that he knows the fundamental trouble was, and is, the inadequate income of the masses under capitalism.

TELLS HOW CWA AIDS WELFARE OF CHILDREN

A. R. Gephart Says Self Respect Has Returned to Many Missouri Families.

A picture of how CWA and CWS funds were helping to rehabilitate the morale of Missouri's unemployed, and how these funds were aiding more specifically in child welfare, was given at the seventh annual American Legion child welfare conference at Hotel Statler yesterday by A. R. Gephart, field director for the Federal Relief Commission in Missouri.

Gephart said there was "more unselfish conduct in America today" than he had ever seen, including the years of the World War. He has been a professional social worker for more than 20 years.

Gephart said he was skeptical when he first entered the CWA work and feared that the huge funds might pauperize the country. "Some are being pauperized,' he said. "But the masses are maintaining their self-respect and are just as anxious as ever to get a regular job, and they are maintaining their love for their country. "The poor and the unemployed are patient and hopeful when they see what good work the CWA has accomplished already."

Baby Nursed by Dog.

The speaker asserted there was a family in Southern Missouri where, before CWA aid reached it, the baby was being nursed along with the puppies by a female dog.

Another case cited was that of a miner in the lead belt with a wife and eight children who was enabled by $100 of Federal relief funds to acquire a 20-acre plot of ground and a three-room frame house. He was able to raise supplies for the winter and the change came in time to prevent his baby from dying of malnutrition and to give his oldest daughter clothes so she could go to high school.

Many of the cases, he said, were "too dramatic to report; they wouldn't be believed anyway."

Among the direct aids to child welfare which he listed was the possibility that the rural schools of the State may be kept open by Federal funds for the full school year. He said Washington authorities had requested an estimate of the cost of doing this. "In the long run," he added, "child welfare is the primary objective in relief and unemployment work because the children are always the first to suffer."

Institution's "Last Resort."

Charles L. Chute, of New York City, executive director of the National Probation Association, compared the merits of the penal institution and the probation system for juvenile delinquents and said that "more and more the institution is being considered a last resort, because of its expense, the inevitable risk of throwing together many types of delinquents, and the difficulties of adjustment when released."

"It is the rare child which should be sent to such an institution," he said. "Too often we send up neglected, problem children and they come out real delinquents."

There are still many defects in the probation laws, he said, chief of which is that they are unstandardized. He said that judges of juvenile courts should be "qualified to deal with family problems which are primarily social and not judicial."

Miss Alberta Chase, executive secretary of the Missouri Society for Crippled Children, said that there were "thousands of crippled children in Missouri who have never had a diagnosis of their condition or a chance to get proper hospital care." She said the real need was not for more institutions but for funds with which to give the crippled child physical aid and an education in his own home.

planes may seem impressive, but only such a very small percentage of that is effective air power.

A large number are in our territories and possessions, and must remain there. At any given time 15 per cent are being repaired or overhauled. Others are variously at the Air Corps advanced flying school, tactical school, technical school, engineer school and in the engineering division.

In the event of war, these fighting planes could not be drafted. The training, testing, tactics and development activities in which they are engaged would become even more vitally necessary in war time. We would even need, in these preparatory activities, far more than the 250 combatant type planes now so assigned.

And so when we come to measure our instantly effective air power—the thing I have called the "first line of defense" in the air—we find that it consists of 36 attack planes, 70 bombers and 155 pursuit ships—a total of but 261 planes.

These are scattered. They could be assembled at a threatened spot within 48 hours. But even such a complete concentration, which would be dangerous—leaving important enemy objectives unprotected—would mean that we would be far inferior in effective war power to any enemy likely to attack us.

DR. KEMMERER ANALYZES THE GOLD PROBLEM

ment should use these profits as a basis for currency and credit expansion for meeting greatly increased public expenditures—and the political pressure to do so would be heavy—the result would be further great inflation and another breakdown of the gold standard."

Disagreeing with the President's bill, under which the Government takes title to all the gold stocks in the country, Kemmerer says the gold should be retained in the Federal Reserve system. This was the view expressed by nearly all the experts who testified on the bill before the Senate Banking Committee.

Kemmerer's book should be read in full by anyone seeking to understand the opposition to the President's monetary policies and to the general principle of currency inflation. It is possible here to give but a few samples of his argument.

As already told, he is an ardent defender of the gold standard and believes the United States should return to it. With the sole exception of the United States, he writes, every country that has given up the gold standard during the world depression has done so reluctantly and under heavy pressure.

Problem of Future.

"Although far from being a perfect monetary standard," he says, "gold is the best standard with which the world has had any extended experience. The urgent monetary problem of the immediate future is not a national problem of creating a substitute for the gold standard, but rather an international problem of making the gold standard a better standard."

He points to two important respects in which a paper money standard differs from the gold standard. First, the value of a paper money dollar, unlike that of the gold dollar, is not tied to a commodity of high value in the world market. The Government, or the central bank which issues the paper money, determines how much shall be issued. "The sky is the limit" of possible issue and of possible fluctuations in value.

Second, a paper money standard operates within a limited area. This fact is a handicap to international trade.

In a section valuable for reference, whatever one's views on money, he describes the different kinds of money in the United States—eight distinct kinds, in addition to minor coins and to the scarce Treasury notes of 1890. One kind consists of gold certificates, or "yellow backs," issued against deposits at par of gold coin or bullion.

"They have always been looked upon by the public," he writes, "as a form of money partaking of the nature of warehouse receipts. The gold belonged to the owner of the certificate and it 'circulated by proxy' in the form of the certificate.

An "Illegal" Certificate.

"To hold such certificates today, however, is illegal, and even if a person holding them could demand and receive for them the gold they represent, immediately upon its receipt the gold itself could be taken away from him and he would be subject to a penalty equal to twice the value of the gold he received."

Another kind of money is the "greenback," or United States note, the money that constituted our depreciated paper money standard from 1862 to 1879.

"These greenbacks have long been considered by students of money as a weak element in our monetary system, and for this reason there has been much agitation for their complete retirement. Our legislation in the spring of 1933 discontinued their convertibility into gold on demand, and actually authorized the President to increase the volume outstanding up to three billion dollars, a sum equal to about seven times the maximum amount outstanding at any time in their entire history."

Over one-half of our total monetary circulation at the end of 1933 consisted of Federal Reserve notes—our most important kind of paper money. The author writes that recent legislation has weakened these notes, so that "there is now no limit whatsoever short of zero beyond which the Federal Reserve Board cannot, in its discretion, reduce the reserve requirements of the Federal Reserve banks."

As to the Federal Reserve Bank notes, which came into prominence with the legislation of 1933, the author makes the point that "there is no measurable limit" to their possible issue and that all things considered they are probably the weakest link in our monetary chain.

Why Confidence Ebbs.

Concluding his survey of the different kinds of money and the changes they have undergone since the spring of 1933, Kemmerer notes, in fairness, that many of the wide powers over money given the President are permissive and not mandatory. But he adds that "so long as legislation of this kind remains on the statute books, and as the President fails to take a strong stand against exercising the radical powers placed in his hands, there will be lacking that confidence which is necessary for a healthy and enduring recovery."

In another chapter Kemmerer answers the argument that price recovery is being retarded by scarcity of circulating media. As a matter of fact, he says, the total monetary circulation at the end of November, 1933, was 18 per cent larger than for June, 1926, and the net deposits of all the commercial banks (an important item because we do nine-tenths of our business with deposit currency) were about three-fourths of what they were in 1926.

"If the country is doing only about three-fifths of the physical volume of business that it was doing in 1926 and if for doing that business it has 18 per cent more money in circulation and about three-fourths as large a volume of bank deposits, there would appear to be much more than enough circulating media to maintain the commodity price level as high as that of 1926."

The trouble, Kemmerer continues, lies not in any scarcity of money and bank deposits but in the fact that they are circulating very slowly—in the low velocities of money. The all-important reason why we had not been able, in November, 1933, to achieve the desired price level of 1926, was that the people who owned the money and the bank deposits were afraid to go ahead. "They had little confidence in the business situation, and they were afraid of the future value of the dollar, in terms of which all contracts looking to the future must be made."

He asserts in this connection that, in spite of all the artificial stimulants we have employed, the industrial production of the United States in November, 1933, was not so near the pre-depression level as that of a number of other countries, including gold-standard France, Germany, Canada and the United Kingdom.

The silver problem in the United States, Kemmerer writes, is fundamentally political and not economic.

"It is assuming importance today," he continues, "not by reason of any monetary need of the country, but because we have seven states that produce substantial quantities of silver, each of which has two United States Senators. . . . Although these seven states in 1931 produced 95 per cent of our entire silver product, they had less than 3 per cent of our continental population, and in the year 1931—a year in which the value of their silver production was very much larger than in 1932—their entire silver output was worth less than $9,000,000, or was equal to about 1 per cent of the value of our national wheat crop for that year, and about half that of our peanut crop."

Godsend to India.

Just what the President meant by "silver-using countries" in the silver-purchase proclamation of Dec. 21, says Kemmerer, is not clear. "The only silver standard countries in the world today," he comments, "are China, Hongkong and Ethiopia."

The silver prchased under this proclamation, says Kemmerer, will perform no useful monetary function in the United States, but the removal of the competition of this American-produced silver in the world market will help India sell her enormous surplus of monetary silver at better prices. This will prove a "godsend" to India.

As for China, he writes: "It is hard to believe that the proponents of silver in the United States, who have shown such great solicitude for the poor people of China and wept so many crocodile tears in their behalf, should want to adopt a policy that, by raising the value of silver in China and depressing commodity prices, would increase the debt burdens of the Chinese people and, in short, impose upon China 'all the hardships of deflation' from which the silver group propose to relieve the American people by the remonetization of silver."

What it all amounts to, says Kemmerer, is that the Administration is "doing something for silver" by means of a plan "calling for the expenditure of many millions of dollars of Government funds for the payment of a bonus to the producers of silver."

Where Will Silver Go?

The silver purchase plan means the piling up of "a vast supply of dead silver in the United States Treasury" to "hang over the world's silver market like the sword of Damocles, in the way that India's great surplus has been doing recently."

He recites the benefits of the plan to India and Spain, which also has a large supply of surplus silver to dispose of, and asks where the United States, if someday it should desire to get rid of its heaped-up silver, might expect to find "the generous Grandpa Nation that will do for us what we are now doing for them."

"Is it any wonder," he asks, "that the 65 other countries represented at the World Economic Conference, which could not agree on anything else of consequence, should have accepted enthusiastically the silver-purchase proposition submitted by the United States?"

The commodity dollar plan, which provides for changes in the gold content of the dollar from time to time in order to give it a fixed purchasing power, is found objectionable on several grounds, the principal one being that the plan "involves a highly mechanistic theory of the relation of money and bank credit to prices, and in doing so underestimates the great influence of changing human emotions, feelings and prejudices, hopes and fears, on the movements of our commodity price level."

Politics an Obstacle.

Another obstacle to the successful functioning of the plan is political. Since commodity prices are affected with public and class interests, any board at Washington which might try to control the commodity price level would be under tremendous pressure, both from Congress and the public at large.

The plan provides that when the commodity price index number rises above a certain point, the brakes shall be applied by increasing the weight of the gold bullion dollar, and that when the index number falls below this point, the weight of the gold dollar shall be decreased. But Kemmerer points out that the commodity price index number is made up of the prices of individual commodities. The producers of goods whose prices happened to be falling at a time when the general price level was rising would bring political pressure, he warns, against any action by the authorities at Washington to increase the weight of the gold dollar and thereby push down the price level, since this action would tend to drag down still farther the already declining prices of their products.

"All in all," he sums up, "under present-day economic and political conditions in America, a price level anchored to a commodity of universal demand, such as gold—a commodity of which there is always an enormous marketable supply, and of which the annual product is but a petty percentage of the world's accumulated stock—is likely to be much more stable and dependable than a price level controlled by any such mechanism as that of the commodity dollar. Such a dollar may work in a model state of a distant utopian future. It would have hard sledding in the United States of 1934."

In an analysis of the effects of inflation on debtors and creditors, Kemmerer cites the estimate of Evans Clark, in "The Internal Debts of the United States," that the total indebtedness as of 1932 was $285,000,000,000. Of this sum, $134,000,000,000 consisted of long-term debts. This is the figure, he says, with which we are principally concerned in studying the effects of inflation, since most short-term debts are of recent origin and involve no important changes in the value of the dollar between the time the debt is incurred and its maturity.

Farm Debts Lowest.

It is a significant fact, he says, that the smallest item in the classification of long-term debts is farm mortgages ($8,500,000,000), which were just about equal for the entire United States to the real estate mortgages of New York City, or to less than a third of the urban mortgages for the whole country. The largest single class of long-term debts was that of the corporations (railroad, public utility and industrial), which constituted $36,000,000,000, or over a quarter of the total. These debts were owed by the owners of the corporations—the stockholders.

The principal creditors in America on long-time account, Kemmerer points out, are "life insurance companies, building and loan associations, savings banks and other banks that take savings deposits, and our great educational, philanthropic, religious and other welfare institutions."

"What happens to these creditors under inflation?" he asks. "Obviously, if the debtor pays his debts in a cheaper dollar, the creditor receives payment in this same cheaper dollar. The values of bonds and mortgages in terms of purchasing power decline as the value of the dollar in which they are payable depreciates, and with this decline in the value of the dollar, the value of all life insurance policies, building and loan association credits, savings deposits, pensions, annuities, and endowments of public welfare institutions correspondingly decline. If our great public welfare endowments are destroyed or even substantially reduced by inflation, who will replenish them?"

A Moral Argument.

There is a strong moral argument, Kemmerer says, in favor of a return to the old gold parity. Since this is politically impossible, and since continued monetary instability is blocking prosperity, he urged prompt stabilization at 66 2-3 cents.

"The frequently heard talk about waiting until a currency reaches 'its natural level' before stabilization," Kemmerer says, "is a fallacy. It has been my privilege to assist 11 different countries in stabilizing their currencies on a gold basis, and in every one of them there was talk of a 'natural level,' but no one has ever shown, so far as I am aware, just what the natural level of prices is under a depreciated money standard or how it is to be determined.

"In the days of our depreciated greenback standard, when there was much discussion of the time for resuming gold payments, there arose a popular slogan, for which Salmon P. Chase was apparently responsible, that 'the way to resume is to resume.' A slogan which might well be adopted today is: 'The way to stabilize is to stabilize.'"

LOCAL CWA WORKERS PAID $3,970,050

32,500 Men and Women Given Employment in City and County.

Payrolls of the Civil Works Administration in St. Louis and St. Louis County since it was started late in November have amounted to $3,970,050. More than 32,500 men and women now are employed by the CWA. In the city, the payrolls have totalled $3,075,096, and in the county $894,954.

Last week CWA payrolls in the city and county aggregated $476,759. This was about 15 per cent less than the previous week's payrolls of $559,427. Decrease was due to the reduction of working hours by Relief Administrator Hopkins from 30 to 24 a week, to conserve CWA funds until more can be appropriated by Congress.

The week's payroll in the city was $378,707, compared with $439,027 the previous week, while in the county it was $98,052, compared with $120,400 the previous week. There were 24,327 CWA workers in the city and 8311 in the county, about the same number as in the preceding week.

Three representatives of the Board of Education visited Washington last week to determine whether plans for extensive repairs and renovation of public school property could be carried out. This work was started in December, with a large crew of CWA workers, but the board feared it might be curtailed or stopped. Its representatives were assured work would not be stopped, and were urged to submit requests for still more improvements, with the expectation Congress would provide more funds. The board was complimented for its foresight in having ready a detailed survey of work that was needed to improve or modernize schools. Those who visited Washington were Ben Weidle, chairman of the board's Building Committee; Building Commissioner Friton and Philip J. Hickey, handling CWA activities for the board.

Hitler Gains Additional Powers.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—President Von Hindenburg today surrendered his rights to pardon convicted persons and to hire and fire Government employes. The powers were transferred to Chancellor Hitler, in Prussia, and to Nazi governors in other states. Simultaneously Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior, issued a decree providing that treaties between states or with the nation remain untouched.

BYRD PARTY UNLOADING LAST OF ITS SUPPLIES

Flagship About Ready to Start North — Other Vessel Will Remain.

By the Associated Press.

BAY OF WHALES, Antarctica, Feb. 3 (via Mackay Radio).—The second Byrd Antarctic expedition completed today the first phase of operations to equip the winter party—a task hindered by crumbling ice and adverse weather conditions.

Deck officers of the flagship Jacob Ruppert reported that the last of the 450 tons of stores and scientific equipment had been unloaded except for scattered odds and ends and personal gear.

Only the task of transferring 250 tons of coal to the supply ship, the Bear of Oakland, remained. As soon as that is done the flagship will start north for New Zealand, where it will remain a year.

Since its arrival Tuesday night the Bear has been moored alongside the flagship near the bay ice—the first stable berth the flagship has had in nearly two weeks.

The Bear's deck cargo of lumber has been unloaded, and it will discharge the rest of the cargo, amounting to 75 tons, after the flagship's departure.

Both crews have worked feverishly to unload and advance the stores to caches on the east and west barrier heights of the Bay of Whales.

In the belief that a breaking of the bay's ice flooring still threatens, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has mobilized the two crews in the task of transferring the unloaded supplies a reasonably safe distance on a high barrier.

More than 50 tons of supplies remained at an intermediate relay depot a mile south of the ship, although tractors and dog teams have been working the clock around to move it.

Unloading started more than two weeks ago and about half of the expedition's stores are piled in caches between the bay and the winter camp at Little America.

ONE MEAL TODAY IN GERMANY

People Asked to Give for Relief What They Save by Abstention.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 3. — Germans throughout the Reich have been asked to have a single one-course meal tomorrow "as a pledge of indissoluble unity" and turn over the rest of what they usually spend for Sunday meals to a winter relief fund. "Just as believing Christians join in the Lord's supper in the service of their Lord and Savior," an officially inspired statement said, "so will National Socialist Germany celebrate this sacrificial meal as a pledge of the indissoluble unity of the nation."

It will be the fourth time in four months that Germans have been asked to limit the amount they eat and donate the rest to charity. Cavalry officers from France, Sweden, Ireland and Switzerland who are attending a German equestrian tournament, will have occasion to taste a one-course dinner at the home of Defense Minister von Blomberg, who gave them special invitations.

Lloyd George on Craze for National Self-Sufficiency

with their own. And pressure is everywhere increasing for further restrictions. Every interest is clamoring for more, higher and more prohibitive measures for the exclusion of foreign commodities. Autarchy and autocracy go hand in hand, but democratic countries are just as bitten with the frenzy as those which are subject to dictatorship.

There is a craze for self-sufficiency sweeping over the world. It is an atmosphere in which projects for disarmament cannot thrive. France seems to be taking the lead and other nations are eager to follow. The result is a steady decline in international trade. Ships leave the ports of every manufacturing country with light cargoes. The old days when ships were loaded and steadied with the products of mill and factory are gone. When I crossed the Bay of Biscay I had an unpleasant reminder of this development for a light hold means a rolling ship.

Negotiations produce a temporary mitigation of the extreme proposals which are formulated, but they also invariably end in a slight advance on the restrictive status quo. The pig-whisky deal between America and Britain was only a trivial relaxation of the process that has been going on between our two countries. When and where will it stop? It is not between nations.

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 4, 1934.

On With the Dance WITH THE EAST ALMOST Meeting the West

Shan-Kar and His Troupe From India to Appear Here Tuesday Evening at the Odeon, While the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe Will Perform With the Symphony Orchestra on Feb. 23 and 24.

FROM the world-old Orient to the Occident of today range the ballet offerings which are to be seen in St. Louis this month, for a revival of interest in the art of the dance such as the city has not known for years. Tuesday evening of this week of Shan-Kar and his company of Hindu musicians and dancers will be presented by the Civic Music League at the Odeon, to be followed Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening, Feb. 23 and 24, by the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, presented by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, which will offer three different programs of danced symphonies, with the entire St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in the pit.

Worlds apart will be the dance art, the character of the dances and the character of the music at the two differing types of ballet, for the East Indian dances of Shan-Kar derive from primitive religious dance rites, while the danced symphonies of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, and the ballets which surround them, are fundamentally entertainment of a modern and sophisticated character.

The Hindu dances in the thousands of years in which they have developed, have been conventionalized and ritualized into rigorous forms to dramatize the sacred stories of the oldest of mankind's myths. These are accompanied by a strange music—to Western ears—with unusual relationships between sounds and between tone and emotion, which are at first difficult for Western ears to grasp. Curious instruments, parents, most of them, of those in the symphony orchestras of today, play these strange tunes.

SHAN-KAR'S dance-dramas are a combination not only of the dance art of the East, but of the exotic music of India. Shan-Kar, born in India, is seeking to initiate the West into the culture and beauty of the age-old civilization, yet he himself spent many years in the West, grew to manhood in London where his father was in the diplomatic service, studied art with Sir William Rothenstein as his master, and was for a season the dancing partner of the late Anna Pavlowa. He returned to India, organized his company of dancers, and three years ago presented it in Paris and London with success. He was originally scheduled to open the Civic Music League Course last November but met with an accident from which he has not fully recovered.

If Shan-Kar harks back to the beginning of art for his tradition, that of the Monte Carlo Russe is of our own time. Sergei Diaghiliev, a wealthy Russian amateur, conceived the idea of bringing together the Russian artists of the dance, and presenting them in ballets created especially for them. After Diaghiliev's death Col. Vassilly de-Basil, directors of the Russian Opera in Paris, decided to carry on. At Monte Carlo, where the Diaghiliev company had wintered, he found many of the artists of the original Ballet Russe. Also there he found a patron, the Princess Charlotte of Monaco. Around this nucleus he formed his Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, whose maitre de ballet is Leonide Massine.

The visit to St. Louis of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe is the result of the St. Louis Symphony Society's desire to present symphonies here in embodied and visualized form.

Yehudi Menuhin as Symphony Soloist On Odeon Program

Youthful Violinist to Be Heard Friday and Saturday With Orchestra Under the Direction of Conductor Golschmann.

YEHUDI MENUHIN, no longer a boy-wonder, but a maturing young artist ranking among the first violinists, returns to St. Louis this week to make his first appearance as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. He will play the Beethoven Concerto in D minor with the orchestra at the concerts next Friday afternoon and Saturday night at the Odeon.

Menuhin made his first appearance in St. Louis two years ago and as a boy of 15 astonished this city with his instinctive musicianship. This week he appears as soloist on one of the most interesting programs Conductor Golschmann has arranged this season. Opening with Mozart's "Don Giovanni" overture, the Beethoven follows, and the last half of the concert is all Wagnerian. The three selections from the master of Beyreuth to be played are "Bacchanale" from Tannhauser," the Prelude to Act III of "Tristan and Isolde," with Alfred H. Hicks playing the English horn solo, which is one of the memorable passages, and "The Ride of the Valkyries," which was so popular in the recent voting for the orchestra's "Request" program of last week.

The complete program is:

Overture to "Don Giovanni" .....Mozart
Concerto for violin and orchestra in D major, op. 61 ....Beethoven
1. Allegro ma non troppo
2. Larghetto
3. Rondo: Allegro molto
Yehudi Menuhin.
Bacchanale from "Tannhauser" ...Wagner
Prelude to Act 3 "Tristan and Isolde" ....Wagner
(English horn solo. Alfred H. Hicks.)
Ride of the Valkyries from "The Valkyries" ....Wagner

The showings will be open to members of the North Side "Y" and their friends each Friday evening at 7:30. The pictures will also be shown at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Fridays for members of the boys' division of the North Side "Y."

Kay Francis Will Do Du Barry for Movies

Kay Francis as the most glamorous of the royal courtesans of France in the silken eighteenth century—such is the news that comes from Hollywood, where a film story based on the life of the celebrated Madame du Barry is now being written for Miss Francis by Edward Chodorov. It is expected that the picture will go into production within the next three months—probably immediately after "The Key," the next vehicle scheduled for Miss Francis, is completed.

Burton Holmes Carries On.

Burton Holmes will return to the Odeon to begin a new series of his aptly described "Picture Cruises." The "course" is to consist of the usual five Monday evenings and is scheduled to start on Feb. 19. As the topic for his opening night Mr. Holmes has selected the Chicago World's Fair.

Celia Adler to Play At the Odeon Tonight

Young Democrats in A Play at Shubert

The Young Democrats, a club of St. Louis amateur players, will present "Broadway" the gangster drama which was seen here several seasons ago, at the Shubert Theater next Friday and Saturday nights under the direction of Harry R. McClain.

Among those in the leading roles will be Leonard Blumenthal, Al Fleischman, B. G. Reed, Al Gelfand, Dollie Steinlage, Madge Hawe and Marie Barrett.

DeMille's Daughter Joins Picture Cast

Katherine DeMille, young daughter of Cecil B. DeMille, is making her second bid for screen fame in "The Trumpet Blows," starring George Raft with Adolphe Menjou and Frances Drake, which has just gone into production in Hollywood. Miss DeMille plays the role of a Latin American servant girl. It is for this picture that Jose "Pepe" Ortiz, Mexico's ace matador, was brought to Hollywood to teach Raft the intricacies of bull fighting, which is incidental to the romantic theme.

Piatigorsky, 'Cellist, In a Concert Friday

Gregor Piatigorsky, 'cellist, and Anna Hamlin, young soprano, will present a joint recital on Friday evening, in Howard Hall, under the auspices of the Principia Concert and Lecture Course.

With "A Very Remarkable Guy" completed, First National has acquired "Sawdust," an original story by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, for Joe E. Brown's next starring vehicle. "Sawdust" is a circus story and will have Brown in the role of a troupe member, reminiscent of his own trouping under the big tops when a youngster.

Mummers Rehearsing Comedy.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

ALMOST at the start of the new season "By Candlelight," which is at the Ambassador this week, comes along to command attention of the pickers of the "ten best" films of the year. Light and airy in construction and with a basic plot which has served many times before, this little Frenchy farce of a butler and a lady's maid who masquerade as nobility, is so charmingly played by Paul Lukas, Elissa Landi and Nils Asther that it easily steps into the front rank of delightful entertainments. The situations are broad at times and the suggestions of infidelity, both above and below stairs, are pretty persistent, but the lines are smart and clever and the whole thing is immensely enjoyable. Lukas is the butler, a sort of Admirable Crichton fellow in a light vein, and the lovely, Miss Landi is the lady's maid who takes a day or two—and some nights—off for a dance in her mistresses' shoes. These two did not deliberately set out to deceive each other. It was just an accident which caused Elissa to mistake Lukas for the real prince, a role which is safe in the hands of Nils Asther. Innocently enough Miss Landi leads the butler to believe that she is a countess and from then on the trouble, and the fun, is fast and furious. "By Candlelight" was done as a stage play several seasons ago, but it is not the same piece in which Eugenie Leontovitch appeared at the Shubert Theater. In addition to the film offering the Ambassador has brought back Jack Haley, now a movie comedian, to act as master of ceremonies for the stage show for a while and Haley, a very funny entertainer, is getting a royal welcome this week. However, a trained seal, on the same bill, practically steals the show from the star performer.

Bringing Up Father.

LIONEL BARRYMORE is seen at his best in "This Side of Heaven," at Loew's, where he is the old man in a thoughtless family which looks upon him as a nice enough dad, smile when he ventures an opinion based upon some 50 or so years of experience and admit that he is a pretty good meal ticket. But when the crash comes and Papa Lionel is in danger of being sent to jail for stealing $40,000—he didn't do it, incidentally—the family rallies 'round and everything ends happily. Fay Bainter, one of the latest recruits from the failing legit gathered in by Hollywood, does a fine piece of work as the extravagant and somewhat flighty wife and Mae Clark and Mary Carlisle are the daughters of the family. Una Merkel is in it, too, and "This Side of Heaven" is good drama.

ANOTHER sort of family life is pictured at the St. Louis in "Two Alone," a rather sordid play of hard work on an old farm, with little Jean Parker, who made her first hit just a short time ago in "Little Women," really soaring to the dramatic heights as a Cinderella-slavey from an orphan's home who finally finds happiness with a boy from a reform school and a long lost father. The picture however, doesn't matter very much one way or the other with the customers this week, for those rough house comedians, Olsen and Johnson, are on the stage with their musical, more or less, comedy, "Take a Chance," the show in which they appeared early this season, at the American Theater. Well trained in the art of entertaining picture house audiences the two comedians keep the St. Louis audiences in an uproar most of the time.

The Wide Open Spaces.

IF YOU still like the old-fashioned rootin', tootin', shootin' horse operas you will find "The Last Round Up," at the Fox, one of the best of the Westerns, for handsome Randolph Scott makes a great hero, Monte Blue, coming back to the screens after a long absence, is fine as a sometimes soft hearted early border racketeer, and Fuzzy Knight excellent as a two-gun comic horse thief. Most everybody except Scott and Barbara Fritchie—there's a screen name for you—get shot before the film is over, but Randy and Barbara ride away in reel eight to build a home together out where men are men. "The Last Round Up"—the song is introduced effectively a couple of times—is made from Zane Grey's "The Border Legion," and is really a better film than the Fox's No. 1 feature, "Hold That Girl," a typical Jimmy Dunn and Claire Trevor offering of a sob sister on an impossible newspaper and fly cop on an impossible police department.

Grand Hotel on Wheels.

"CROSS COUNTRY CRUISE," at the Missouri, isn't so hot either. Most of the action takes place in a transcontinental bus and the story which begins more or less as a comedy becomes intense meller by the time the passengers, bound from New York to San Francisco begin to know one another. "The Big Shakedown," the Missouri's other picture, shows how Ricardo Cortez and his gang of beer racketeers, turn to counterfeiting well advertised drug staples when the end of prohibition wipes out their regular game and how they are thwarted by honest Charlie Farrell and Bette Davis. Mr. Cortez has one of the hottest finishes ever seen in a film, being toppled over into a tank of some boiling acid which, we learn from Mr. Farrell, who is a struggling young chemist, leaves no trace of anything it destroys.

Ida Lupino Joining Troupe on Location

Ida Lupino, who plays the leading role in "Search for Beauty," has been given the leading feminine role in "Come On Marines," which went into production on location the other day. Miss Lupino is the daughter of Stanley Lupino, English comedian, and the niece of Lupino Lane. In "Come On Marines" she will appear with Richard Arlen, Roscoe Karns, Grace Bradley and Monte Blue.

'Master's Voice' to Present Radio Star

Lanny Ross, "Showboat" radio star, recently brought to Hollywood on a long-term contract and who now is playing the leading romantic role in "Melody in Spring" at that studio, will be featured next in "Her Master's Voice," it is announced.

This is the screen adaptation of Clare Kummer's current Broadway stage play. Elmer Harris, playwright, is writing the screen play.

'Champagne Sec' Star In 'Vanities Murder'

Kitty Carlisle has quit the cast of the Broadway light opera, "Champagne Sec," and has reached Hollywood for the leading feminine role in "Murder at the Vanities," the Earl Carroll-Rufus King thriller.

Kellogg Horses Act.

Eight Songs Written.

Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, authors of "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," have written eight songs for Bing Crosby and Ethel Merman in "We're Not Dressing."

Monte Blue Stays.

Monte Blue, who makes his screen comeback in Paramount's "The Last Round-Up," has been given a featured role in "Come On Marines."

Low Down on the High Ups

A Lot of the Things You Hear About the Movie Stars Make Good Enough Reading, But They Just Aren't True — Some of the Assorted Idiosyncrasies of Hollywood Are Based on a Pretty Solid Foundation—How They Got That Way and Why, Explained.

EVERYBODY knows! That Joe E. Brown might have been a big league baseball hero instead of an actor if he had wished. But it isn't so. Joe himself says: "I've played almost every kind of game—none of them very well!"

That Lyle Talbot's real name is Lyle Hollywood. That isn't true. His real name is Lyle Henderson and his grandmother's maiden name was Hollywood.

That Edward G. Robinson smokes an enormous number of long black cigars. It's a mistake. He smokes cigars, it is true, but while at home he is more often seen with a pipe than a cigar, and he is not infrequently caught puffing at a cigarette.

That Kay Francis is a "clothes-horse" and has an inexhaustible supply of gowns. But Kay's closets are almost as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. What clothes she has are good—but she hasn't many.

That Joan Blondell is not naturally a blonde. Imagine the surprise of those who believed this when Joan let her hair grow out naturally a few weeks ago and it proved to be only a few shades darker than her bleached locks.

THAT Joe E. Brown has the biggest mouth in pictures. Not so. Joe's facial cavern is no larger, by measurement, than the mouth in Edward G. Robinson's face—and almost exactly the same size as that belonging to Dick Powell. It's the shape, not the size, that counts in the movies.

That Richard Barthelmess is retiring by nature and seldom is seen at parties. A good story, but it isn't true. Dick's dress clothes get more wear than the average in Hollywood.

That Barbara Stanwyck is a devotee of the simple life. Perhaps it's a secret, but she has the most formal butler in the whole screen colony.

That Al Jolson met Ruby Keeler while the little Irish girl was dancing in Texas Guinan's night club. Interesting but untrue. Ruby had seen Al there, but she didn't meet him until they both were in Los Angeles.

That Pat O'Brien is the most Irish of all Irish actors in pictures. The story has a good deal of truth in it except that Pat was born in Milwaukee and has never visited the Emerald Isle.

That Warren William doesn't like to be told he looks like John Barrymore. If that is true it is strange he does nothing to make himself look unlike Barrymore.

That Paul Muni was born in Vienna and brought to this country as a youngster. Not so. Muni was born in Chicago—his parents came from Vienna, but all Paul's work has been done in America.

NOW the assorted idiosyncrasies of Hollywood's stars have stirred much speculation and drawn many laughs, but if the truth were known, there is in most of the seemingly odd quirks some underlying reason, whether prompted by practicality or superstition.

For example, much comment has been occasioned by Marlene Dietrich's passion for white flowers—her home and dressing room are always filled with them, and when she sends flowers to a friend they are always white.

Her explanation is surprising, though based on an obvious point. People almost always use or give colored flowers. She always has loved flowers and once was struck by the fact that so few white flowers were seen, yet so many were available. She found white flowers a real novelty, began to get them for herself and now is genuinely fond of them.

W. C. FIELDS' consuming fondness for sleep is not traceable to indolence on his part. He can, and will if not busy before the camera, fall asleep almost instantly at any hour of the day. And it's not an accidental trait. When he was a boy, Fields had a particular aversion for getting up early on cold winter mornings, and he finally ran away from home so he could escape the annoyance.

During the ensuing seven years he seldom had to rise early, but also he seldom had a bed to sleep in. When he finally began to earn a livelihood as a juggler his first luxury was a soft bed. To this day he never has erased the memory of those seven years of discomfort and comfortable sleep is to him a great pleasure.

Dorothy Dell, in Paramount's "The Man Who Broke His Heart," is thoroughly natural herself and consistently agreeable, and she particularly dislikes affected people. It's not just a quirk. When she was a child, the most affected girl in her school once looted her purse and it was impressed upon her reasoning that affectation and dishonesty went hand in hand. She's been suspicious of phoney accents ever since.

GEORGE RAFT, who can't recall ever having believed in Santa Claus, is a firm subscriber to the three on a match superstition. He'll throw his cigaret away if a third person obtains a light on the same match with him. The first time he ever smoked a cigaret, back in New York's "Hell's Kitchen," he chanced to take a third light and one of the trio cautioned him. Raft laughed, and even as he ridiculed the superstition he stepped backward off the curb just in time to be smacked by a taxi.

Charlie Ruggles' passion for donning old clothes and puttering around in his gardens is not an affectation. He spent so many years living in upstairs rooms above his father's drug stores, always in the city, that he now derives his greatest pleasure from fussing about with growing things out of doors.

DEAL FOR PLANT IN NORTHWESTERN INDUSTRIAL AREA

Negotiations About Completed for Eight-Acre Site but Name of Buyer Is Not Disclosed.

BUILDING SOLD AT 3622-24 OLIVE ST.

Two-Story Business Structure Changes Hands — No Announcement of Details Made.

By Berry Moore

Negotiations have been closed with the switch property department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., involving the purchase of a plant, with a site of several acres, in the northwestern industrial district.

George H. Streiff, real estate officer of the bank and trust company, who made the announcement, declined to disclose the name of the purchaser, but said that a substantial earnest money check had been posted. The transaction, it was stated, is scheduled to be concluded with the completion of the examination of the title, which has been ordered.

Several important industrial interests have been casting about in this part of the city for available plants, and speculation is aroused in real estate circles as to the identity of the buyer and the plant involved.

Served by Terminal Line.

The plant is served by the Terminal Railroad belt line and is grouped with those of General Motors, United Drug Co., Kilgen Organ Co., Orchard Paper Co., Bascom Rope Co., Niedringhaus Steel Cartridge Co., Wrought Iron Range Co. Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co. and others on a large scale.

Several offers have been submitted recently for the extensive plant of the Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co., at Union boulevard and Geraldine avenue, skirting the Terminal line. This plant, embracing eight acres, was constructed about 12 years ago, at a reported cost of $1,200,000. Only part of the plant is now occupied by the Bridge & Beach Co., it having been taken over by the bondholders under a $600,000 deed of trust, which, however, had been reduced to $481,500, through pay-offs. One of the largest and most modern of its type in this part of the country, it is suitable to conversion for various purposes.

This entire area was subdivided as an industrial addition with switching facilities, about 15 years ago, under the supervision of the switch property department of the Mercantile Trust Co., of which the late Festus J. Wade was president. It was formerly owned by the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., which used the top soil of the land for the manufacture of brick.

Deal on Olive Near Grand.

A modern two and three story business building at 3622-24 Olive street, just west of Grand boulevard, has been acquired by undisclosed interests, represented by the trust department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. It occupies a lot, 35x152, which was included in the sale. The purchase price was not announced.

Gerhard Sisters' photographic studios are on the second and third floors of the building, with a specially designed lobby entrance from Olive street. The first floor includes three stores.

The property was formerly owned by interests represented by the Wm. J. Abbott Real Estate Co., which had acquired it in 1932 from the Gerhard Sisters, who retained possession of the portion of the building occupied by the studios, under a lease.

The transaction was handled by Edward M. Monahan, assistant trust officer of the Mercantile-Commerce. The Farish-Knapp Real Estate Co. has been appointed co-sales and rental agent for the property.

Adjoining on the east is the Empress Theater. Directly opposite is the lofty Continental Life building. The United Drug Co., with headquarters in New York, recently acquired a long lease of the corner store of the comparatively new building at the northwest corner of Grand boulevard and Olive street, having plans for a pretentious drug store with fountain service. The remainder of the first floor of this building is occupied by the F. W. Woolworth Co. under a long lease. The two-story structure was erected a year or so ago with a foundation for a 13-story building, which is proposed to build as soon as conditions warrant. The site was formerly occupied by the Beers Hotel, razed to make way for the present building.

Factory Building Leased.

The Lambert Novelty Mirror Works, Inc., has leased the large factory building at 3445 Bent avenue, in Southwest St. Louis, owned by the Koken Companies. The Lambert Co., which operates a large factory in New York, has made the lease with plans for a St. Louis branch to serve the Southwest territory. The lease was handled by Eugene L. Wehmeyer of the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co. Negotiations for the lease were started in the old firm of Martin & Breitt, now dissolved.

An apartment building at 5946 Kingsbury boulevard was purchased yesterday by L. Kopolo. It has six suites of five and six rooms. Negotiations were handled by George H. Streiff, real estate officer of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. E. M. Durham III was the former owner.

Negotiations were concluded through J. M. Levi & Co. for a six-family apartment building, with lot 60x100 feet, at the northeast corner of Page boulevard and Hamilton avenue. It is divided into six suites of four rooms each. The premises include a garage for three cars. The purchaser was a client of Harry Fine, real estate agent.

COCHRAN URGING NEW $1,000,000 U.S. HOSPITAL HERE

He and Navy's Surgeon-General to Ask PWA for Funds to Replace Old Marine Building.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis today said that he and Rear Admiral P. S. Rossiter, Surgeon-General of the Navy, would ask the Public Works Administration for $1,000,000 for a new Marine Hospital at St. Louis.

Cochran said the present Marine Hospital, at 3640 Marine avenue, near the South St. Louis river front, was greatly in need of replacement. The original three-story brick structure, now used for housing personnel, was built in 1856, and the frame pavilions now in use for patients are more than 60 years old.

The hospital now houses 110 patients, a capacity number, divided among disabled seamen of merchant vessels, civil employes of the United States, and CWA workers injured in line of duty. It formerly housed overflow patients from the Veterans' Hospital, Jefferson Barracks.

New Building Recommended Many Times But Always Deferred.

A new Marine Hospital building has been recommended several times, but has been deferred in favor of other projects. In 1931, Congressman H. F. Niedringhaus, who then represented the district in which the hospital is located, managed to get the institution included in a list of new construction projects recommended to the Secretary of the Treasury, but it did not get beyond that point.

The hospital is in an out-of-the-way section, near the Mississippi and several blocks south of the Arsenal. Its irregularly shaped grounds are bounded by Marine avenue, Kosciusko, Winnebago and Miami streets.

Congress originally appropriated $7468, in 1842, for the building of the hospital, but this was insufficient, and $30,000 was added for building and grounds before the institution was built in 1856. It was built for the use of sick seamen, boatmen and other navigators," but a few years later, in Civil War days, it was made an army hospital, and temporary wards were added.

In the '70s, the medical authorities in charge of the hospital reported to Washington that the building was infected with "hospital gangrene," and recommended its abandonment. On their recommendation, three wooden buildings were built for temporary use, with the idea of burning them when they, too, should become infected.

IMPROVED PROPERTY FOR SALE

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

The real estate man who made possible the activity of industry and prosperity and common sense to the multitude of big cities and thousands upon thousands of homes of all nationalities and denominations all prospered until the fever of over-speculation overtook the dealing in wildcat stocks and bonds that even crushed the very foundation of all securities, the land itself, the farms, our homes.

It is up to the real estate dealer to bring back prosperity and common sense to the multitude of men and women of today who have the cash and are willing to invest if someone will show them the way. The real estate dealers have always brought activity and prosperity into communities operated by active common sense dealers. No doubt it is up to the real estate dealer today to wake up and start the ball rolling.

Consult us or your real estate agent for a safe, sane, sound investment, which can be had at today's prices. We have some very attractive propositions to offer for sale or exchange and would appreciate your calling at the office and giving us an idea of what you are in the market for or describe to us what you have for sale or exchange. We might be able to assist you.

MODERATE RISE IN WHEAT PRICE ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Feb. 3.—Wheat had an upward range of one cent at week end session. The rise was credited in trade largely to southwest weather comment.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE AS DO THE SECURITIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Broadened general buying led to 1⅝ cents advance in the wheat market today simultaneous with a brisk upturn of securities.

Buying of wheat was based largely on comment of crop deterioration from drought Southwest and West. Word that the grain exchange code would soon be approved at Washington was likewise construed as bullish, and so too were advices that exports of United States wheat would soon be stimulated through Government action.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞-1¼c above yesterday's finish, corn ¼-½c up, oats ⅛-½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Contributing to the upward trend of wheat values was an official forecast indicating that drought conditions Southwest would continue all next week. In this connection, prices for new crop deliveries of wheat showed a tendency to gain on May contracts, which stand for wheat already in bins. Commission house buying of July delivery was especially noticeable. Another strengthening factor was that millers were picking up cash offerings in the Chicago market, and that Eastern speculative interests were reinstating lines of future delivery holdings which recently had been relinquished.

Week-end realizing of profits for buyers caused wheat to recede fractionally at the last, but the market undertone remained firm. Aside from strength shown by securities, wheat traders gave sharp attention to upturns of cotton and silver. Increased notice was also taken of rumors that the administration at Washington would seek ways and means of eliminating 5,000,000 acres more from domestic production of wheat.

Corn and oats prices followed wheat upgrade. Industrial demand here for corn was better.

St. Louis Bran Market.

Cash wheat-feed nominal quotations for carlots: Standard bran, $16.75; pure bran, $16.75@17; grey shorts, $17.25@18; oatfeed, $8.50@9. Less than carlot prices range $1.50@2 per ton higher.

MODERATE RISE IN WHEAT PRICE ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Feb. 3.—Wheat had an upward range of one cent at week end session. The rise was credited in trade largely to southwest weather comment.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE AS DO THE SECURITIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Broadened general buying led to 1⅝ cents advance in the wheat market today simultaneous with a brisk upturn of securities.

Buying of wheat was based largely on comment of crop deterioration from drought Southwest and West. Word that the grain exchange code would soon be approved at Washington was likewise construed as bullish, and so too were advices that exports of United States wheat would soon be stimulated through Government action.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞-1¼c above yesterday's finish, corn ¼-½c up, oats ¼-½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Contributing to the upward trend of wheat values was an official forecast indicating that drought conditions Southwest would continue all next week. In this connection, prices for new crop deliveries of wheat showed a tendency to gain on May contracts, which stand for wheat already in bins. Commission house buying of July delivery was especially noticeable. Another strengthening factor was that millers were picking up cash offerings in the Chicago market, and that Eastern speculative interests were reinstating lines of future delivery holdings which recently had been relinquished.

Week-end realizing of profits for buyers caused wheat to recede fractionally at the last, but the market undertone remained firm. Aside from strength shown by securities, wheat traders gave sharp attention to upturns of cotton and silver. Increased notice was also taken of rumors that the administration at Washington would seek ways and means of eliminating 5,000,000 acres more from domestic production of wheat.

Corn and oats prices followed wheat upgrade. Industrial demand here for corn was better.

St. Louis Bran Market.

Cash wheat-feed nominal quotations for carlots: Standard bran, $16.75; pure bran, $16.75@17; grey shorts, $17.25@18; oatfeed, $8.50@9. Less than carlot prices range $1.50@2 per ton higher.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM DEFEATS VENZKE IN MILLROSE MILE

METCALFE IS VICTOR AFTER LOSING TRIAL HEAT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Making his first appearance of the season on Eastern boards, Glenn Cunningham, famous University of Kansas foot racer, easily defeated his Pennsylvania rival, Gene Venzke, tonight, in the Wanamaker Mile, feature of the Millrose A. A., track and field carnival before 16,000 fans at Madison Square Garden.

The national champion was clocked in the brilliant time of 4 minutes, 11.2 seconds, the fastest he has ever registered indoors, as he pulled away from Venzke on the last lap and won by 8 yards. He failed, however, to dislodge Venzke's world indoor record of 4:10, made two years ago.

The victory was Cunningham's second straight in this event and gave him possession of the Rodman Wanamaker trophy, on which Venzke had one leg.

The stocky, barrel chested Kansan, in a field of five of the country's foremost middle distance stars, proved he is still the king of indoor milers. He made no effort to get the early pace, as first Joe Mangan of Cornell and then Venzke took command of the front running. Then on the back stretch of the ninth lap, Cunningham made his first real move, passed the Penn miler and added steadily to his margin on the last two laps.

Dawson Third.

Venzke hung on gamely but did not quite have the finishing stuff to match his rival, although Gene was clocked in 4:12, his best performance since he was the sensation of the 1932 indoor campaign.

Glen Dawson, after trailing most of the way, came strongly on the last two laps to take third place, 30 yards behind Venzke. Frank Crowley of Manhattan College was fourth and Mangan, who faded quickly after his fast start, was fifth and last.

The Wanamaker mile topped a brilliant program which also was featured by the victory of Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette flier, in the 60-yard dash over Emmett Toppino of New Orleans and the record smashing triumph of John Collier of the Boston A. A., over Johnny Morriss of Abbeyville, La., in the 60-yard high hurdles. Collier was the victor by an eyelash in 7.5 seconds, as the indoor record was broken for the third straight time.

Ben Johnson, Columbia Negro freshman who had beaten Metcalfe in the semifinals, and Earl Widmeyer of Maryland, victor over the Marquette flier in the first trials, finished third and fourth in the sprint final.

Added Starter Wins 600

The Millrose 600-yard race, one of the classic features of the meet, was won by an eleventh hour entry, Milton Sandler of the German American A. C., of New York, after the two favorites, Ivan Fuqua of Indiana and Arnold Adams of Bates, virtually elbowed each other out of the race in an early fight for the lead.

Sandler was invited to make a fourth in this selected field after Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State withdrew two days ago. He ran a heady race, saved his "kick" for the right spot and won by five yards from Bernie McCafferty, Newark A. C., who finished second. His time of 1:14 was not particularly fast for the event, which was won by Adams last year in 1:12.5.

The high jump duel between the indoor and outdoor record holders, George Spitz of New York University and Walter Marty of Fresno (Calif.) State College, ended in a tie at 6 feet 7 inches. They tried for a new world mark with the bar at 6 feet 8¾ inches and each missed once by a thin margin.

Upset in Half Mile

The half mile scratch event developed a mild upset when the former Michigan runner and Olympian, Edwan (Ned) Turner of Rochester, N. Y., started his closing sprint a trifle too late and failed to overtake Donald Fleet of the Boston A. A., in a close finish in which the veteran Eddie Blake of the Newark A. C., was third. Fleet had the pole on the last lap, saved Ground and withstood Turner's rush to win by about two feet in 1:57.4.

The Canadian star, Fred Shaver, of Hamilton, finished sixth in a field of seven.

John W. Follows, stocky little distance runner of the New York A. C., turned in the second fastest two miles ever run by an American, indoors or out, when he negotiated the distance with a sensational finish in 9 minutes, 9.3 seconds. Follows raced the last two laps of the 22-lap route like a sprinter to break the tape 20 yards in front of Ray Sears of Butler University of Indiana, and 60 yards

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Feb. 3.—Wilfred Hiram (Wiffy) Cox won the fifth annual Agua Caliente open golf championship with a 72-hole score of 282 today, to establish a new scoring record for the event and knock a pet golf supposition into the nearest trap.

The Brooklyn pro led the field at the end of the second round, held his position through a gruelling third round and was still out in front by a stroke over Willie Hunter, Culver City (Cal.) pro, when the firing was over for the year on the Mexican front.

An old golf axiom has it that some of the leaders blow in the third round and those who fail to explode in the third crack in the fourth.

Cox ran the scale in winning the $1500 first money. His four rounds moved up a stroke a day, 69-70-71-72, when more than a stroke advance would have been embarrassing.

Hunter Misses Tie by Stroke.

Hunter, who was 41 years old last Monday, was given a handsome birthday present of $1000 for finishing second. The former British star, long a resident in the United States, carried the fight to the last hole, coming to the eighteenth with a chance to tie for the lead by getting a birdie three.

He fired a great iron 22 feet above the cup and was left with a tricky putt against the grain of the green. He studied the line closely, but his ball stopped a scant two feet short.

Hunter, who was tied for the runner-up position in the recent Los Angeles open with Bill Mehlhorn, was a bit rueful.

"Looks like I can get up there, but not quite far enough," he said. "Still, you have to give Wiffy Cox all the credit in the world for getting out in front and staying there."

Cox, with an apology in advance for his apparent egotism, said he was sure he was going to win from the first.

"There wasn't so much pressure as you might think," he said. "A good strong hunch took a lot of the pressure off. I believed I would win because I blew the lead here three years ago. You remember I was in front starting the last round and took a bad eight on the eighth

ST. LOUIS CLUBS TO TRY SEASON WITHOUT RADIO BROADCASTING

There will be no broadcasting of baseball games at Sportsman's Park during the 1934 season, Vice-President L. C. McEvoy of the Browns announced yesterday after a conference between Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and Louis B. Von Weise, president of the Browns.

While no explanation was given with the announcement, it is understood that the two clubs decided on the move as an experiment. For several years there has been a difference of opinion among baseball club owners as to the effect of broadcasting on attendance, and the two St. Louis clubs, which have permitted broadcasting since 1926, agreed to stay off the air for a season.

Opponents of broadcasting have tried from time to time to get the major leagues to act jointly to bar the radio from the ball parks, but in several cities, notably Chicago, the radio was praised as an advertising medium and the Cubs told the other National League clubs that broadcasting would continue at Wrigley Field regardless of any league action. Because of this attitude, the club owners decided to let each city decide its own policy as to broadcasting.

WRAY'S COLUMN

A New Low in Champions.

In this nation of decadent fighters an ageing, punchless former heavyweight seems likely to become heavyweight king.

At least there are critics who think that Tommy Loughran will defeat Primo Carnera when they battle at Miami, Fla., Feb. 22. If he does, it will be because of his opponent's weakness, not Tommy's strength. Loughran is 31 years old, never owned a real wallop, and inclines to the safety-first style.

LOUGHRAN.

Loughran himself thinks he will win. But, although this view on the part of the experts and Tommy himself does not carry any certainty with it, the mere fact that Loughran could be considered a potential victor indicates the state to which heavyweight competition has sunk.

At this writing there isn't a convincing fighter in the class. Carnera, despite his tremendous bulk and comparative youth, does not fill the bill. The others, unless we except Max Baer, have already been nullified in one way or another.

If Carnera Kayoes Tommy.

THERE will be a great deal more heart put into the present ring apathy if Primo lifts Loughran off the floor with an uppercut and finishes him decisively and quickly. That will make everyone believe that the big fellow has at last developed a punch.

Thus far, except for his upper-

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—Lamar Ottsen, St. Louis, Southwestern skating champion, tied Eddie Stundl, Chicago, for the Western championship in the meet in the Stadium here today.

With Ottsen, Mel Dubinsky and Bob Dusseau scoring the points St. Louis finished third with a total of 70 points. The St. Louis girls in Class A, however, failed to score.

Dusseau finished third to Leo Freisinger, sensational Chicago youngster, in the Junior Boys' 880-yard event in which Freisinger set a new world record, negotiating the distance in 1 minute, 22.5 seconds. The old mark was established by James McElroy here last February when McElroy did the distance in 1 minute, 25.8 seconds. Thus Freisinger clipped more than 3 seconds off the old mark.

Freisinger also set a new world record in the Junior Boys' mile and Dusseau also finished third. Freisinger's time was 2 minutes, 51 seconds, while the old mark, established by Wallace Fee, Jr., Chicago, was 3 minutes, 2.6 seconds.

Ottsen owed his tie for first to Mel Dubinsky, in part at least, for his teammate donated the skate-off in the 440-yard event to Ottsen which gave Lamar 40 points the same number scored by Stundl.

The United States team defeated Canada in a relay race of 1½ miles and on the U. S. team were Dubinsky and Ottsen who teamed with Kit Kline and Dorothy Franey to win from Edith Kingsmill, Leila Potter, Herbert Flack and William Logan. The winners' time was 2 minutes, 51.6 seconds.

Three St. Louis men reached the 440 final in Class A out of the seven who qualified and Ottsen and Dubinsky skated a dead heat in the final and were awarded first and second places. Stundl was third.

Ottsen also skated a dead heat with Eddie Schroeder, North American champion, in the first semifinal in the mile race in which Truman Connell and John Bretz fell due to the fact that their skates clicked.

Ottsen was second in the men's two-mile event in which there were 24 entrants. St. Louis qualified five. Ottsen fell with only a quarter lap to go and Stundl finished first but was disqualified which at that point put Ottsen in second place and gave him his chance for the first place tie in the skate off. And he made good.

Ottsen finished third in the mile event which Stundl won and in which Bob Peterson, Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, was second.

Final Standing

Ed Stundl, Chicago	40
Lamar Ottsen, St. Louis	40
Logan, St. John	30
Mel Dubinsky, St. Louis	25
Bob Peterson, Oconomowoc	20

TILDEN WINS FROM VINES IN FOUR-SET MATCH

By the Associated Press.

Penn Rallies In Final Minutes To Defeat Yale

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—Coming from behind in the closing minutes, Pennsylvania's basketball quintet won a spectacular game from Yale tonight, 26 to 22, to deadlock the Bulldogs for first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League race. Each team has won four games and lost one.

The finish was similar to Yale's conquest on its home floor several weeks ago, when they defeated the Quakers. More than 9000 persons saw Captain Francis O'Donnell and his teammates wipe out a 22—17 lead with about four minutes to play. Long shots by Johnny MacDonald, O'Donnell, Bob Freeman and Ken Hashagen turned the trick.

MISSOURI WITHDRAWS FROM MAT GROUP

Missouri has withdrawn from the National Wrestling Association, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Chester L. Brewer, chairman of the State Athletic Association, in announcing the withdrawal, would not give a reason for the sudden split.

LOUGHRAN AND CARNERA START SERIOUS DRILLS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 3.—Both Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran, champion and challenger in the world's heavyweight title fight here Feb. 22, settled down to serious work for the first time today with fight night only a little more than two weeks away.

Still weighing 275 pounds and facing the necessity of getting down below 260 for the fight, the massive Carnera signalized the start of intensive preparation by going on the road for 12 miles this morning. In the afternoon, he worked the equivalent of 10 rounds, four of them in actual boxing with Charley Belanger and Joe Seykra. There were only a scattered handful of people on hand at the Deauville Club, over at Miami Beach, to watch the giant in action.

Up at West Palm Beach, in the ball park where the St. Louis Browns will do their training, Loughran worked temperately, being down to 189 pounds, only four above the limit he has set for himself. The American challenger so far has had only one sparring partner, Jack Pettifer, of England, but several more are expected by Monday.

Billikens Win Over Kirksville Teachers, Who Rout Reserves

By James M. Gould.

Don Faurot, the former Missouri U. athlete who put the Kirksville Teachers on the football map with an undefeated team last year, also knows his basketball. This was made apparent last night when, at the Billiken gym, before 1000 fans, the Teachers gave the St. Louis five the fight of their young lives. The Teachers didn't win, but they didn't lose by much either for the final score was St. Louis 39, Kirksville 35, and Coach Mike Nyikos had to send back his regulars late in the game to stave off a determined Kirksville rally.

Bob Cochran, the Billiken's high scorer for the season, did the honors for his team again last night with 16 points, but this total was equaled by Curtwright, a Kirksville forward, and was only one more than the number of points gained by Captain Towers of the Teachers.

Teachers Wallop Reserves.

Play was fast throughout. The Teachers scored first when Towers caged a set-up but when the Billiken defense began to function and the St. Louisans ran their string to a 10-3 advantage. When, at the 10-minute mark of the first period, the Billikens were sailing along with a comfortable six-point margin Coach Nyikos removed his regulars and sent in his reserves. The Teachers didn't seem to care for this move and they showed their displeasure by playing ring-around-a-rosy with the reserves. When the tumult and the shouting of the first half were over, the Teachers lead by a 21-19 score.

Naturally, the St. Louis regulars were in service when the second period began and they tied the count at 23-23 in the first two minutes. Then, they added four points while Kirksville was scoreless. Once again, Coach Nyikos thought of sending his reserves in but thought better of it as the Teachers rallied so that they were within four points of a tie when 11 minutes of the period had passed.

Billikens Draw Away.

Two more Kirksville points made it even closer and then the Billikens began to draw away establishing their margin at seven points with three minutes to go. In went the St. Louis reserves and up came a Kirksville rally so that the regulars had to be called upon to stop the uprising. This they did and the Billikens ended the game four points to the good.

It was the 11th game of the season for the Billikens and their eighth victory. Indiana, Missouri and the Carbondale Teachers own decisions over Nyikos' team, but they squared accounts with the Tigers in a second game.

The Billikens will meet the strong DePaul College team of Chicago next Tuesday night and, on Saturday, will oppose the even stronger Loyola of Chicago five.

Captain Fred Frost of the Billikens got an extra-strong cheer

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 3.—University of Michigan's mile relay team did the distance in 3:23 tonight to defeat quartets from Ohio State and Illinois in the feature race of the Michigan A. A. U. Track carnival in Yost field house.

Captain Tom Ellerby of Michigan finished 30 feet in front of Ohio State's anchor man, with Illinois Third.

Benny Starr, Michigan's lead-off man, ran second to the first Ohio runner, but Ed Lemen handed the baton to Harvey Smith in first place, and Smith and Ellerby kept it there.

SPENCE BREAKS RECORD IN 100-METER RACE

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 3.—Walter Spence shattered the National Intercollegiate record in the 100-meter free style event tonight as the Rutgers swimming team downed N. Y. U., 38 to 33.

Spence clocked at 58 1-10, bettered by 3½ seconds the mark set for the event by Arthur Breyer of Northwestern in 1924. The 100-meter swim was substituted for the 220-yard free style in tonight's meet to give Spence, swimming his last year in collegiate meets, a crack at

By Herman Wecke.

Defending the championship won last season with a two-game victory over the New York Americans, the Stix, Baer & Fuller soccer team will make its second appearance in this year's national challenge cup competition, when it opposes the Sons of Malta eleven of Detroit, in a second round match at Sportsman's Park, this afternoon. Play starts at 2:30 o'clock, with Robert "Ribby" Murphy, local referee, in charge.

The Detroit team comes here with a fine record, having won 12 consecutive matches, in which the opposition has scored but two goals against 34 for the Maltas. St. Louis fans are acquainted with the Detroit team, since it played here last season and was defeated 7 goals to 1 by the Andersons in the cup series.

There is one outstanding feat in the record of the Michigan team this season that coming in Chicago recently, when the eleven gained a 1 to 0 victory over the Sparta Leaders, second placers in the Windy City League. This same Sparta club held the Stix to a 3 goals to 2 victory in a game in the Windy City earlier in the campaign. In its first cup battle, the Malta team defeated the Swedish-Americans, 2 to 0, in what Detroit writers said was the cleanest match ever played in Detroit.

Only Three New Players.

But three changes have been made in the eleven which was soundly trounced by the Andersons here a year ago in a match in which practically every rule of the competition was violated. These changes show Williamson at fullback and O'Donnell and Henderson on the forward line. All the other athletes were seen in action in the "wild game" at Sportsman's Park last February. Williamson played with the Detroit Libertys a year ago and formerly was a member of the Mascabees of Chicago, while Henderson before joining the Maltas, was a member of the Swedish-Americans.

The Michigan entry complained a bit about being sent to St. Louis for the second successive year, but according to reports from Detroit, the game is not flourishing in that city at the present time.

As a result of the Maltas' victory over Sparta, which ranks as one of the leading clubs in the west, the Stix management will take no chances and as a result, the strongest lineup will be on the field. The athletes, now playing in the second round of this season's series, are still awaiting presentation of the national championship medals won a year ago.

Nolan Back in the Game.

Jimmy Nolan, a fullback, who was out of the team's last game because of injuries, will be in his regular position, with Harry Hebberger moving back to the halfback line to pair with Watson and McPherson.

Alex "Shrimp" McPherson, center forward of the St. Louis Flyers Hockey Club, will kick the opening ball.

Four of the athletes who will be in the lineup of the Stix have received invitations to try out for the United States team which will be sent to Rome, Italy for the world's title tournament next May. They are Billy Gonsalves, Willie McLean and Jimmy Roe, forwards and Bill Lehman, fullback.

The winner of the match will enter the semifinal round in the Western competition.

Two other important second round games are scheduled in the West this afternoon. The Sparta Leaders will oppose the Cleveland Indians at Chicago, with the Slavias of Cleveland playing Curry at Pittsburgh.

Gould Is Named Coach.

James Armstrong, secretary of the United States Football Association, announced yesterday that David L. Gould, of the University of Pennsylvania, had been selected as trainer-coach for the United States eleven which will compete in the world title tournament. He has been at Penn for 20 years.

The United States team will play its first match at Rome, May 24, when it meets the winner of the Central American zone tourney. Nations playing in the Central American series are Cuba, Haiti and Mexico.

In 1930, when the last tourney was played in Uruguay, the United States went to the semifinal round.

Free Fencing School.

A free evening fencing class for men and women will be conducted at Roosevelt High School, under the direction of George Berchek. The first class will be held in the fencing room of the school tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Three More Days Left To Enter Post-Dispatch Church Basket Tourney

With only three more days in which to enter the Greater St. Louis Church Basketball Tournament, sponsored by the Post-Dispatch, most of the teams making up the strong St. Louis Church League have signified their intention of competing in the play which is scheduled to start Feb. 12.

The history of this Church League is one of steady growth. It was formed 25 years ago and then consisted of six clubs, the games being played at the old Y. M. C. A. building at Grand and Finney and at the church gymnasiums. The first board of governors was composed of Allen McLaughlin, Dr. David Todd, Oliver Blackington, H. A. Hemphill and Dr. Helbing. All but McLaughlin, who no longer lives in the city, still are on the board of governors.

From a small group of six teams, the Church League has grown into an organization of 60 with 30 in the senior class, 16 in the juniors, six midget teams and eight girls' teams.

Four Divisions.

Five years ago, the board of governors decided to separate the league into four divisions—Downtown, West End, South Side and North Side—and the games now are being played at Battery A, Bethlehem Hall and Ferguson High gymnasium.

The Tournament Committee of the Greater St. Louis competition has made a change in the plans for girls' competition. There will be two tourneys in one in this division with one league playing under girls' rules and one under boys' rules. This ruling was made because there were so many girls' teams desiring to enter who had never played under boys rules.

Among the entries received yesterday was that of the Fourth Baptist Church team, present champions of the Sunday School league. Twice in the past four years has this team won the championship and it is accorded an excellent chance to be in the running throughout the Post-Dispatch tournament. However, the Baptist team will have plenty of competition as the strength of the Church teams in city and county is of higher average than usual this season.

Many City Entries.

The Tournament Committee is anxious to receive the entries of more teams from County churches. Thus far, the City entries far outnumber those from the County and it is the desire to stress City-County rivalry as much as is consistent with the rules of play.

Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday remain for entry. All entries should be sent to Roy Newsom, Tournament Chairman, care of the Sport Department, Post-Dispatch. Other information regarding the competition may be had by telephoning the Chairman at CEntral 6400 or HIland 3584.

A. A. U. Boxing Tourney Workers Finding Support in Fund Campaign

Business firms of the city have promised their support for the National Senior A. A. U. boxing championships which are to be held at the Arena, April 4, 5 and 6, Benny Kessler, chairman of the boxing Committee of the Western A. A. U., stated at the weekly meeting of officials who are working on plans for the event, at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

As has been told the Western is trying to finance the tournament by the sale of advertising in the program and by the advance sale of tickets. Both projects are going well.

The organization opened a downtown office in the Arcade building in charge of Miss Beatrice Widdicombe, a former employe of the City, and information will be available there at all times.

It has been voted to admit boy scouts to first two days of the tournament for ten cents each.

Kessler and Charles Gevecker, president of the Western will go to Little Rock to attend the Arkansas championships early in March at which time Arkansas' representatives in the Western tournament to be held here March 16 will be chosen.

MORELAND TO MISS TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 3.—Gus Moreland of Dallas, three consecutive years Texas amateur champion and twice a United States Walker Cup choice, will not compete in the twelfth annual $2500 Texas Open, Feb. 8-11, at San Antonio. He said today he would also pass up the $2000 tournament Feb. 15-18, at Galveston.

"Frankly, I must save as much money as possible before I sail for Europe to play as a member of the United States Walker Cup team," Moreland said. "I plan to remain in Europe for several major tournaments which will be expensive."

In the last Texas Open, held in 1932, Moreland finished in a tie with Gene Sarazen for second place.

St. Louis U. High Defeats C. B. C., Ties for Second

St. Louis U. High went into a tie for second place in the Prep League basketball race last night with C. B. C., when it defeated the Brothers, 22—19, at the Billiken Juniors' gymnasium. In the preliminary game between "C" teams of St. Louis and C. B. C., the Brothers won, 21—14.

The Bills rallied in the first and third periods, getting five points and eight in the two. This was enough to give them a comfortable margin over the Brothers. C. B. C. made only one point in the initial period and then went into the second totaled nine. The half found C. B. C. leading, 10—8, after holding St. Louis to three tallies in the second frame.

The third was the effective period for the Bills as they netted two field goals and four free throws for eight points. C. B. C. was not able to loop the basket at all during this time and thus gave the lead over to their opponents at 16—10. The final quarter was comparatively even with the Brothers getting only three points more than St. Louis, the score being 9—6.

Monday night McBride High will meet Western Military Academy in a second round game. McBride at present leads the league with three victories, and Western is last with three losses.

NEW YORK COLLEGE FIVE WINS 16TH IN ROW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3—The powerful City College of New York basketball quintet extended its winning streak to 16 straight games tonight, trouncing Temple University, 33 to 29 before more than 3000 fans.

Moe Goldman, the New Yorkers' tall, brilliant center, turned the contest almost into personal triumph by registering 16 points for his team to pull them ahead after Temple walked off the floor at half time with a 13-12 edge.

TWO MUNICIPAL GROUP TITLES AT STAKE TODAY

Championships in two of the three divisions of the Municipal Soccer League, still open, may be definitely decided with the playing of the matches in the public parks this afternoon. These groups are Fairground No. 4 and the pair at Carondelet Park.

Some exciting soccer should result in each of the groups. At Fairground No. 4, where but four points or two games, separate the four elevens, the Minit Rubs can win the title or at least assure themselves of a tie, if they trim the Park Rats. The Park Rats are tied for second with the Scofields. The Scofields play the Brogans and a victory for the last named, providing the Minits win, will put the team out of the championship race.

The German Sport Club, the defending champion, meets the La Sociedad Espanola eleven in the Carondelet No. 1 feature. These two elevens are separated by only one point and with only one more round remaining after today, the Germans can enter the eliminations with a victory over their rivals. Should the Spanish team win, however, the club will go into first place and leave the title race up in the air until the final match.

Unless there is an unexpected upset, the Carondelet junior race will not be decided until the final game. The Diaz team, leading the German Sport Club, by one point, opposes St. Agatha, while the Germans face the St. Agnes eleven, which has dropped 12 consecutive matches.

Fairground Park No. 2—Clearys vs. Hartmanns; S. Dueker. Kelly Recreations vs. Russells; J. Craddock.

Fairground Park No. 3—Russos vs. Meyers; W. Brady. 506 Markets vs. Doyles; W. Rogles.

Fairground Park No. 5 (Juniors)—Holy Rosary vs. Park Sides; C. Roche. Allen-Buders vs. Fairviews; D. Bernard.

cut of Sharkey, the Man Mountain's punching has been inocuous.

That Tommy Loughran should be conceded a chance to win from Carnera is due to his great safety-first defense and his really good courage and knowledge of boxing. The idea is not that Loughran will be able to hurt Carnera, but that the big fellow will not be able to reach Tommy. It's like going fly-hunting with a 30-30 rifle.

It's a Long, Long Trail.

ALTHOUGH the 31-year-old, 180-pounder is still spry, as he showed in recent bouts, things can't be so happy with him as in the days when he was younger. Fifteen rounds are a long, long trail for ageing props to travel.

The probabilities are that even Tommy's splendid safety-first defense will be strained to the breaking point by 15 rounds of battle. What with having to support 260 pounds of opponent, in the clinches, getting bumped occasionally with that monster fist at the end of a wagon-tongue left arm, and the possibility of being half-decapitated by a ponderous uppercut, life is going to be very wearisome for the dapper Tommy.

Too many years and too much enemy beef should prove too much handicap for Loughran.

But even with a Carnera victory, if it is gained by a mere decision, the heavyweight situation will not be improved much. The public reaction to a 15-round shade on points over Loughran will undoubtedly be a "Ho, Hum," or a yawn.

To awaken the slumber-fight enthusiasm, only a quick knockout by Carnera can serve.

When Primo Met Maloney.

REPORTS from the Sunshine State of Florida indicate that Carnera's second defense of his title since he won it from Sharkey will be better patronized than was at first forecast. The presence in Miami of an unusually large number of tourists has helped the racing meet there and doubtless will react favorably in fight attendance.

Carnera is perhaps not so favorably regarded in Miami. Ringsiders there remember his fight with Jim Maloney—a fight Carnera wanted to sidestep because of broken ribs. After an examination by the commission physicians it was found that Carnera really was injured as described.

But the commission decided that the promoters were so heavily in the red, due to money spent in advance of the promotion, that it was necessary to go through with the match.

Carnera yelped loudly but it did no good. He entered the ring that day with half of his torso in tape and with his right arm virtually useless throughout the fight.

Won With One Hand.

THIS bout gave this writer a very favorable impression of Primo. He fought aggressively and courageously, using only his left hand. After a few preliminary passes with his right he held it glued to his body, protecting the injured ribs.

Using only his left Carnera chased Maloney around the ring, poking at him frequently and landing enough blows, in the opinion of Referee Slim McClelland, to win on points.

This writer agreed with the point score, but Miami did not. Fans razzed Primo and the referee, refusing to give credit to Carnera for a really courageous effort made in the interest of the promoters.

Carnera could have refused to go on that day. The commission threatened to suspend him if he did. But the threat would have been worthless, for the commission's own doctor admitted the fractured ribs.

This, of course, would have given Carnera ground for a damage suit against the commission had it suspended him. Primo and his handlers, instead of withdrawing, elected to go through with the show.

However we may criticise Primo's fighting abilities, he has yet to show any symptoms of white feather. He has been a willing fighter during his career. As champion he already has fought once and before the twelfth month is up, he will have battled twice more for his crown.

Back to the Primitive.

THAT game between the Celtics and the Renaissance basket ball team started something. Notably it revived the debate as to "what's wrong with basketball today?"

Evidently a great number of basketball-minded fans think there is something really responsible for the falling off in attendances at this game, which once was so important that it resulted in the building of the Washington University Field House, especially devoted to that sport.

The following letter seems to voice the fundamental objection of the old guard to the present-day game:

> Did you hear the call of the 8500 the other night at the Coliseum as the whistle shrilled during the Celtics-Renaissance basketball game? "Let 'em play ball." The crowd seemed to like the game of 25 years ago.
> What no basketball crowd likes is to see a popular player ordered off the floor under the four personal fouls rule. It hurts the game—witness what happened in the Washington-St. Louis battle when Center Maysack of the Bears went out. Washington had no first-string reserve center and Maysack's departure meant the death of Washington's chances.
> Now then, wouldn't it be better to leave a man committing four personal fouls in the game and award a point to the other side for each additional infraction committed by such player? Ask John Cash Customer.
> AL. A. McKEMM.

Spectators Disapprove Rule.

IT seems to be the opinion of many among the hardier athletes and also among the spectators that the game has been "sissyfied" by the limitation of each individual to four personal fouls. They believe that there should be unlimited fouls permitted, the corrective remedy for unnecessary roughness still resting with the referee, who can eject any player from the game.

Under the present system it is conceivable that a team limited to five first-class players could be broken up completely by the removal of two or more men under the four-foul rule.

Ordinarily it seems bad policy to permit any team in any game to score points through penalties. We disagree in this respect with the writer of the above note.

But it seems the consensus of players this writer has consulted that the game would be bettered by the removal of the four-foul rule, especially since few personal fouls today are intentional.

hole. That put me out of the picture, for I had 79.

"Well, I did the same thing in the North and South at Pinehurst, N. C., that year, and went back the next season determined to win. I did. I figured if that plan would work in North Carolina it ought to be good in Mexico, too."

Cox Consistent.

Cox played consistent but not spectacular golf throughout.

His 72 today was the same as scored by Hunter, but Wiffy finished 40 minutes ahead of Willie and the Briton knew what he had to do to catch him.

A little putt of no more than two feet slipped past the cup for Hunter on the short fifteenth when he was up for his par three and that wee stroke, as it turned out, was an expensive one.

Asked if he could attribute his success to any particular part of his golf game, Cox said without hesitation:

Denny Shute, British open champion, shot a sparkling 68 in the last round to slip into third place with a total of 258. Shute, who left after the play for Miami, Fla., and his professional duties there, was off to an indifferent start with 75, but he played great golf later.

Ky Laffoon, young Denver pro and exponent of the hole in one, was among the several stars with last day scores of 72 and his 286 gave him fourth place. Tied for fifth at 287 were Leo Diegel, Olin Dutra and Horton Smith. Abe Espinosa continued to play consistent golf by scoring 72 for the fourth time in four days and his 288 gave him a tie for eighth with Paul Runyan, the winner last year.

Runyan started the play with a great 69 in the first round, but never again was able to get under par.

Harry Cooper took tenth place with a four-round total of 289 and there was a four-cornered tie for eleventh among MacDonald Smith, Bobby Cruickshank, Jimmy Thompson and Vic Ghezzi, Rumson, N. J.

Walsh Finishes With a 67.

Frank Walsh, Chicago professional, saved his best for the last and, with a great 67, became the fifth player of the week to share in the new course record. Walsh finished with a total of 290 and fifteenth place. Fay Coleman of Los Angeles, Bill Mehlhorn of Brooklyn, who also scored 67's earlier in the play, and Julius Ackerbloom of Little Rock, Ark., tied for sixteenth with 291.

Johnny Dawson, smiling Chicago boy, won the amateur honors with a total of 296, with Charles Seaver of Los Angeles, runner-up at 297. Dr. Cliff Baker, Portland, Ore., was a stroke back at 298. Dawson has won the amateur prize in the Mexican event every year except in 1931, when Fay Coleman was in front. Coleman returned in 1934 to get in the money as a professional.

The golfing caravan was on the move Eastward tonight, with stops scheduled for Phoenix, Ariz., San Antonio and Galveston, Tex., Tampa, Fla., Augusta, Ga., and Pinehurst, N. C.

The hardest golf course in Old Mexico will not recover for a long time from the shock of the 1934 bombardment. Although par was cut from 72 to 71 by making the 467-yard first hole four instead of five, 32 players succeeded in breaking par.

Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 282, $1500.
Willie Hunter, Culver City, 283, $1000.
Denny Shute, Miami, 285, $800.
Ky Laffoon, Denver, 286, $700.
Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, 287, $500.
Leo Diegel, Philmont, Pa., 287, $500.
Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., 287, $500.
Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 288, $300.
Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 288, $300.
Harry Cooper, Chicago, 289, $200.
MacDonald Smith, Nashville, Tenn., 290, $125.
Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., 290, $125.
Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., 290, $125.
Vic Ghezzi, Rumson, N. J., 290, $125.
Frank Walsh, Chicago, 290, $125.

FLYERS BEGIN ANOTHER HOME STAND OF FOUR GAMES TONIGHT

By W. J. McGoogan

Another string of four games on their home ice starting tonight at the Arena against Oklahoma City gives the St. Louis Flyers a chance to pull themselves out of the rut and back into the race for championship honors in the American Hockey Association.

Tuesday and Thursday nights Tulsa will play here and Oklahoma City will return for a game next Sunday night.

Today the Flyers are in third position, four points behind Oklahoma City and 12 points, or six games, back of the league-leading Kansas City team. Also Tulsa is but two points behind St. Louis.

Thus it would seem that the Flyers are nearly out of it so far as finishing first is concerned, but because of the rules of the league by which the three top teams engage in a round robin series at the end of the schedule for the championship, it means little whether a team finished first or third.

However, that is small comfort to St. Louisans who are accustomed to count as champion the team which finishes the grind of the regular schedule in first place and do not attach so much importance to the commercial playoff series.

Some Good Flyers, Some Bad.

The Flyers have some mighty good players and some mediocre ones. The good ones have managed to carry the club along this season but now, when the four teams have all reached their full strength, it becomes harder for individual stars to count so heavily in a contest.

Kansas City is the class of the circuit. There is little doubt about that, as their winning streak of 11 games at home proves. True, the Greyhounds are not a particularly good gate attraction, for they play defensive hockey. Give them a goal early in the contest and it is almost time to go home, for they pack their blue line with defenders and defy the opposition to score. But that is winning hockey and accounts for the club having won 16 games while losing but eight.

The other three teams are about evenly matched but that powerful Oklahoma City team is coming along in fine style now. They are suffering somewhat from the same ailment as the Flyers—lack of experience playing together.

Value of Experience.

Pete Palangio and Rollie Huard have given several exhibitions this season of what that experience means for they team together nicely and form possibly the best passing combination on the club. Young Gordon Teel, playing on the same line, also is fitting in nicely but the other forward line of Al Hughes, McPherson and Paddon has been handicapped this season by injuries and has not proved the effective scoring machine it should be.

The fact that the Flyers have counted a total of 48 points to their opponents' 46 shows that the team has not been badly outplayed but still they have won only 10 games while losing 13.

The season has approximately six more weeks to go, with the Flyers scheduled to play 11 more games at home and 12 on the road. There is still time for them to snap out of it and land in the playoffs but it will take a consistent winning streak for them to attract the attention they have thus far received from St. Louis fans.

PUCCINELLI SIGNS, BROWNS NOW HAVE 14 UNDER CONTRACT

BIG OUTFIELDER GLAD AT GETTING NEW CHANCE IN MAJOR LEAGUES

By J. Roy Stockton

George Creonte Puccinelli, slugging outfielder purchased from the Cardinal organization, and Thomas George Heath, young catcher from San Antonio, have signed Brownie contracts for 1934, Vice-President L. C. McEvoy announced last night, and now 14 of the St. Louis Americans are in the fold.

"And we don't anticipate any trouble in getting the rest of the boys in line," McEvoy said, as he put the signed contracts in the safe. "The spirit of our players this year is splendid. Listen to what Puccinelli wrote in forwarding his signed contract," and McEvoy read what George had to say.

Granite City Five Beats Collinsville To Tie For Lead

Granite City moved into a first place tie with Collinsville with a 31 to 26 decision over the Kahoks in a Southwestern Illinois Conference basketball game last night at Granite City. Each school has won seven games and lost two.

The Happy Warriors from Granite City moved into an early lead which they increased to a 17 to 8 count at the end of the half, and then held for the remainder of the contest. Behler, center, with 13 points and Jatteff, forward, with 12, accounted for 25 of the Warriors' points. Pointer scored 12 of Collinsville's points.

In other Southwestern games, Wood River turned back East St. Louis, 30 to 24, at East St. Louis and Edwardsville nosed out Belleville, 21 to 20, at Belleville.

RITENOUR HIGH GETS ONLY TWO FIELD GOALS IN 14 TO 12 VICTORY

Kirkwood led for three quarters, 10 to 8, but Ritenour counted six points to two for Kirkwood in the last eight minutes of play. Kolb, with one field goal and four free throws, was high point man for Ritenour, while Berkley produced four of Kirkwood's points.

OKLAHOMA U. KEEPS BIG SIX LEAD BY WINNING FROM MISSOURI

NORMAN, Ok., Feb. 3.—Oklahoma's Sooners remained at the head of the Big Six basketball race tonight by defeating Missouri, 35 to 21, after the Sooners had dropped a 28 to 31 decision to the visitors in a non-conference game last night.

Oklahoma led, 19 to 8, at the half and won after the Missourians had whittled the margin to two points early in the final period.

Every Sooner point was bitterly contested throughout the rough and tumble contest and it was the ability of the Oklahomans to cash in on the free throws that swelled their advantage.

The Sooners netted 15 free throws in 20 attempts while Missouri converted only seven out of 19. Both Jorgensen, guard, and Thompson, forward, were removed from the Missouri lineup late in the game for personal fouls.

Oklahoma took a 6-0 lead at the start of the game, but Blume's four points tied the score at 8-all midway in the first half. It was Browning's accurate free shooting, coupled with the work of Hays and Warren, that enabled the Sooners to pull away to a safe margin.

Munson controlled the tipoffs for Oklahoma throughout most of the game, but while he was out of the lineup early in the second period, Missouri pulled up to within two points of the Sooners. Munson was rushed back into the game to start the final rally.

WEBSTER COLLEGE GIRLS LOSE, 27-23, TO KANSAS CITY CLUB

The Webster College girls' basketball team last night lost to the Cardinals, an independent club from Kansas City, 27 to 23, at the Webster gym before a crowd of 100.

The Cardinals, which formerly played as a Redemptorist parish team at Kansas City led, 13 to 10, at half time.

The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening quarter but Webster tied the score at 6-6. Again in the second half Webster tied the score at 21-all, Elizabeth Wilde shooting the tying goal. Miss Margaret Mullen shot a basket to put Kansas City in the lead, and then Jeanette Moeller got two field goals to make the score 27-21. Near the end of the game Miss Wilde made the last Webster field goal.

College Coaches Favor Keeping Football as It Is

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Rules Committee of the American Football Association today decided that it would press for no major changes in the rules before the National Rules Committee meeting in Atlanta next week, but suggested amplification or clarification of eight divisions of the code.

It was the consensus of the coaches, said a formal statement issued at the close of an all-day session, that the game of college football as now played is satisfactory.

"The present rules have proved satisfactory as regards (public) interest and safety of the players," they said, and suggested only amplification or clarification of the following:

1. The blocked kick rule, which now permits only the defensive team to run with the recovered ball.
2. Eligible men on forward passes.
3. Equipment.
4. Notification of time out.
5. Duties of a field judge on a dead ball.
6. Protection of the forward passer.
7. Position of officials on all plays.
8. Penalty on successive incomplete forward passes.

The loudly-discussed suggestions that got all the publicity before the meeting—elimination of the touchback feature of incomplete passes over the goal line, increasing the sideline zone from 10 to 15 yards, return of the goal posts to the goal line, modification of the "dead ball" rule, and permission of forward passes from any point back of the scrimmage line—failed to muster support sufficient for advocation.

So mild was the committee's statement that even the objectives to be attained by "clarifying and amplifying" the eight rules were not mentioned.

BIRKIE DUE HERE TODAY TO FINISH WORK FOR BOUT WITH STILLMAN

That colorful heavyweight of Hamburg, Germany, known as Hans Birkie, is due in St. Louis today to finish a stiff training program for his 10-round match with Al Stillman at the Coliseum Wednesday night. Scheduled to reach the battleground with the Birkie retinue is Frankie Klick, gifted New Yorker who hopes there will be a new lightweight champion of the world following his fight with Barney Ross in San Francisco next month.

Wednesday's program, headed by the internationally flavored Birkie-Stillman go, and embracing 34 rounds of swat, will be sponsored by the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion. The 24 other chapters will be written by two other heavyweights, Babe Davis of St. Louis, and Scotty Fuller of Columbus, Ind., who clash in the 10-round second preliminary; two welterweights, Joe Red of St. Louis and the seasoned Jackie Purvis of Indianapolis who meet in the 10-round semi-windup and two featherweights, Santos Delgado and Merl Thompson, who trade blows in the four-round opener.

Great Chance for Al.

If Stillman, who is stepping out of the light-heavy class, as he has done repeatedly before with no discredit to himself, wins this match he will have advanced himself to a spot in the sun in the heavyweight division where Birkie is basking. According to the latest rankings, the heavy fisted German is graded in the same group with such men as Ray Impelletiere, Paulino Uzcudun, Larry Gains, Tony Galento, Red Barry and Isidoro Gastanaga.

On the other hand, the German must win to retain his prestige and to augment his campaign for a fight in the future with Max Baer, ranked second to the champion, Primo Carnera. Speaking of Baer, it was with this garrulous fighting gent that Birkie started his American career on the West Coast a couple of years ago. For a year he and Baer were stablemates, according to Matty Herbert, the Teuton's business representative in New York. They had a falling out, as the story goes, then were virtually signed to settle the dispute in the ring but the bout never matured.

Birkie was an interior decorator in Germany when he was seized with the fever of becoming a boxer. His size, weight and punching power soon attracted the foreign-minded fistic fraternity in New York. He was imported and this 23-year-old, blond six-footer promptly proceeded to knock over his first six opponents in the first round. Bombo Chevallier and Jose Santa stayed with the big fellow for the scheduled time in the face of severe battering, whereupon Birkie was summoned to Madison Square Garden for a bout with Steve Hamas, who meets the former champion, Max Schmeling, in the East this month.

Hans' Toughest Fight.

The Teuton considers his bout with spanking Steve as the toughest he has had in America. Losing on points until the last round, Birkie, in a whirlwind finish, sent Hamas crashing to the canvas only to have the final bell clang before the count could be completed.

Returning to the Pacific Coast, Birkie stopped Leo Lomski and then went back to the Garden in New York for two fights with Isidoro Castanaga, the hard punching Spaniard. He lost the first, but won the second. Came the Primo Carnera brawl. The officials thought the present champion won, but not the newspapers and fans. According to accounts of that affair, the German made the Goliath of Genoa turn and run with his slugging tactics.

At this juncture, Birkie took time out to pay a visit to the fatherland. He returned to this country to win from Walter Cobb, James J. Braddock and Red Barry, lost a split decision to Art Lasky, the St. Paul behemoth, and then polished off Charlie Retzlaff and Less Kennedy. Birkie is tentatively signed to meet Lasky in a return match next month in San Francisco. Birkie, who weighs 195 pounds, is married and is expecting a blessed event soon. His bride of little more than a year is an American girl.

MUNICIPAL SOFTBALL LEAGUE PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED TOMORROW

Plans having to do with the formation of the Municipal Softball Association will be discussed at a meeting of interested persons tomorrow night at Sherman Park Community Center.

The tentative opening date has been scheduled for April 15, each team to play 15 games through a schedule that will run to about Aug. 1. This schedule will be followed by eliminations and final championship rounds.

Alfred Fleishman, superintendent of recreation, has said that the entry fee will be between $10 and $15 a team, the fee covering everything except bats, which must be furnished by individual teams. Play will be on 30 of the city's playgrounds and also on fields in Fairground, Sherman, O'Fallon and Forest Parks.

Interested persons have been invited to attend tomorrow night's meeting.

First Minstrel Likely to Be Post-Time Favorite for Derby

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 3.—Forgetting the fillies and equating the ratings of various handicappers, the colt considered most likely to be post-time favorite in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 5 is Mrs. Payne Whitney's First Minstrel.

This is a rather surprising choice on the part of the big pencil and paper men, who have been trying to pull a Derby prospect out of the hat for a flyer in the winter books, considering that First Minstrel won only $5945 as a two-year-old and was not even among the first 15 of last year's juvenile money winners.

Close to First Minstrel in the colt ratings is Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Singing Wood, winner of the Belmont Futurity and $82,950, which gave him honors as the leading two-year-old money winner last year. Both First Minstrel and Singing Wood are by the same sire, Royal Minstrel.

First Minstrel is given the edge over Singing Wood because of the form he disclosed in winning the Junior Championship Stakes and the Sanford Handicap, and his staying qualities evidenced in other races last year in which he was defeated. Both, however, are quoted at 20 to 1 in the early winter books.

Third in the handicap consensus of colts is Chicstraw, George D. Widener's winner of the Pimlico Handicap. Close up in the ratings are High Quest and Cavalcade, both owned by the Brookmeade Stable.

A. B. Gordon's Sir Thomas, a maiden which barely missed recording a startling upset by beating Singing Wood in the Belmont Futurity at long odds, is the sleeper among the ranking colts. That remarkable stretch drive in the Belmont stamps him as a serious threat in distance races if he reaches his top form by Derby day.

Other colts ranked among the first eight of that sex in Derby forecasts are Discovery, owned by Adolphe Pons, and Black Buddy, another of Mrs. Payne Whitney's prospective color-bearers.

Nominations for this year's Derby, which will carry an added purse of $30,000, will close Wednesday. Nominations postmarked as late as midnight Feb. 7 will be accepted.

The umpires will be Ted Baehr, veteran official who has served in numerous international, national and sectional tennis events, Forrest Stuckman, another experienced umpire, and Tietjen, who has also served in a similar capacity on many occasions.

BRENTWOOD HIGH AGAIN VICTOR IN COUNTY TOURNEY

Winning the St. Louis County High School annual basketball tournament is becoming a habit with Brentwood as Coach Dewey Youngblood's lads repeated last year's performance with a 21 to 19 victory over Jennings in the final round of the 1934 event last night at Ferguson.

Similar to Brentwood's exhibition in the semifinal round when it took a commanding lead in the first half against Ferguson, the champions did the same thing against Jennings, with a 13 to 4 lead after the first two periods last night. The margin was secured largely through the efforts of Kenneth "Red" Lyvers, who used his height to good advantage in tipping in shots under the basket. Lyvers had a total of four field goals and one free throw, nine points, in the contest.

Jennings spurted in the third quarter to outscore Brentwood, 11 to 5, making the score going into the final period read 18 to 15, Brentwood up. Then the champions counted three points, or one more than enough for victory, to four for Jennings in the final session.

Although Mike Piazza led Jennings with seven points, the work of Jim Marfia, guard, stood out. Marfia also collected five points.

Ferguson overwhelmed Hancock, 30 to 13, in the consolation preliminary contest. Charles "Piggy" Grimm found the basket for six field goals and two free throws and George Tuthill scored seven points to lead Ferguson's attack, while Rapley with two field goals was high for Hancock.

U. S. L. T. A. WILL HEAR PROTESTS ABOUT DAVIS CUP PLAN THIS WEEK

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 3.—Such high-geared subjects as a national open tennis tournament and revamping of the Davis Cup selection system are due for an airing a week from today at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Meeting in Pittsburgh for the first time, the racquet moguls also will deal with the 1-2-3-4 lineup of kingpin amateurs. It apparently is no secret that Middle Western delegates will raise loud protest against the demotion of George Lott from his former high place.

Matters of policy will be settled at a closed session of the Executive Committee Friday. Advance notices say discussion of "great bearing on the Davis Cup team is expected."

At the opening meeting of the association Saturday, revision of the method of selecting and managing the United States team is certain to come up.

Agitation for open racquet competition fashioned after the practice long in vogue in golf has flourished since Bill Tilden jumped the fence and became leader of the pros. A strong delegation pledged to a national open is expected to make its views known.

Similarly, a faction in accord with recent criticism of handling Davis Cup competition is scheduled to do some talking.

At the election of officers, Walter Merrill Hall of New York will succeed Harry S. Knox of Hoquiam, Wash., as president. Holcombe Ward of New York will become first vice-president; Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City, second vice-president; Ralph W. Westcott of Chicago, secretary, and Lawrence A. Baker of Washington, treasurer.

HICKEY NAMED COACH AT CREIGHTON AFTER ART STARK RESIGNS

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 3.—Athletic Director Arthur Schabinger of Creighton University late today accepted the resignation of Arthur R. Stark as head football coach and announced the selection of Eddie Hickey as his successor.

Stark, head coach the past four year, in recent months has been a years, in recent months has been a faction. In resigning, he spoke of "four happy years' at Creighton and explained merely that he has other plans.

Hickey, graduate of the Creighton Law School and former varsity quarterback, has been, since 1926, coach of all sports at Creighton High School. His football squad last fall won one interstate league championship and tied for another.

Asked if he planned to continue teaching football, Stark said, "Well, it's awfully hard to get out of your blood."

A former star backfield man at Kansas State, Stark was assistant to Dick Hanley at Haskell Institute after his graduation in 1924. He came to Creighton from Chadron (Neb.) State Teachers' College, where he had developed elevens which dominated the State College Athletic Association.

Under him Creighton played 33 games, winning 13, losing 18, and tying two.

MALONE REJECTS PAY CUT; CUBS PUT HIM ON THE MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Perce L. (Pat) Malone, big, right-handed speed ball pitcher for the Chicago Cubs for the past six seasons, today popped up as a holdout and William Walker, the club president, immediately put him on the market for sale or trade.

Walker said that Malone's 1934 contract called for a cut in salary, which Malone, long noted for his temperamental actions, refused. Walker said deals with the St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds were on the fire, and indicated Malone might go to the latter club in some kind of a dicker for Paul Derringer. Derringer, a star with the Cardinals in 1931, was traded to the Reds last year and, although he turned in an earned run average of 3.30, won hard luck honors for the season. He won only seven games while losing 27 with the tail-end Reds.

Malone, until 1932 one of the Cubs' most dependable hurlers, won 10 and lost 14 during the last National League campaign. In six seasons he won 101 games and lost 72.

FRIEDMAN TO COACH CITY COLLEGE ELEVEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Benny Friedman will coach the College of the City of New York's football team next fall, replacing Dr. Harold J. Parker, who has held the post since 1924, excepting for a brief, half season interruption in 1931.

Official announcement of the acquisition of the famous University of Michigan star was made late this afternoon by the City College Alumni Advisory Committee.

Nothing was said in the announcement concerning the terms of Friedman's contract, but he is expected to get a salary of at least $5000 and be signed for one or two years.

Friedman's salary will be paid entirely by the alumni, according to the announcement.

TIME SUPPLY GALLOPS TO VICTORY IN HIALEAH STAKES

FAVORITE BEATS AGRARIAN BY 5 LENGTHS; RACE IS WORTH $2200

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 3.—Mrs. F. A. Carreaud's Time Supply, making his first start as a three-year-old, ran to the form that established him as a promising juvenile last year when he defeated nine others of his age in the $2500 Hialeah Stakes at Hialeah Park today.

It was a popular victory for the colt that last appeared in silks in Maryland last fall for the son of Time Maker was the well backed choice, paying $5.50 for a $2 ticket. He also established himself as a serious contender for the $10,000 Florida Derby, which will be run on the last day of the Miami meeting.

With Jockey Don Meade in the saddle, Time Supply took command soon after the start and traveling the six furlongs in the fast time of 1:11 2-5 hit the finish line five lengths in front of Mrs. F. J. Heller's Agrarian, with Earl Porter up. W. Graham's Open Range, which once raced for W. T. Waggoner of Texas, was third, a length and a half back.

Two veteran campaigners, S. W. Labrot's Springsteel, and A. Kram's Sweeping Light, shared honors with Time Supply in winning the secondary features. Springsteel, which finished last in the Inaugural Handicap, was home first by a length in the Everglades purse, while Sweeing Light, once a top notch performer for Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, unexpectedly accounted for the Long Key Handicap.

Porter, who was suspended for three days for disobedience at the post in the first race, was up on Sweeping Light for his forty-seventh victory of the year. Lightly regarded the five-year-old son of Manna, paid $23.20 after running the mile in 1:37 1-5.

Springsteel, also a five-year-old, stepped his six furlongs in 1:11 to pay backers of the Baltimore sportsman's silks $8.30 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Who's Afraid?

Jimmy Foxx is going to the dogs down in Miami. Naturally Br'er Foxx gets a kick out of watching the dogs chase an electric rabbit.

Incidentally Jimmy, who hasn't yet received a contract, says he is expecting more money this year. Much more. Is this a deliberate attempt to spoil Connie Mack's winter in Florida?

The New York State Athletic Commission has adopted a wrestling code. Like Jacob's code of many colors, it is fearfully and wonderfully made. After strictly prohibiting use of the word "match" in connection with a wrestling show, the commission allowed the following clause to slip into its new code: "—and the match be given to his opponent." That is what you'd call an error of commission rather than omission.

Now that the wrestlers have a code, they ought to sign up with the N. R. A. (No Running Amuck.)

Chairman Phelan says "We have to take this matter of wrestling very seriously." Well, it is nice to know that somebody takes it seriously.

Among the things taboo in the code may be mentioned scratching, striking, gouging, the drop kick, and the deliberate tossing of an opponent out of the ring. Which seems to leave nothing but wrestling for the wrestlers.

But hold! The worst is still to come. The code seeks to break up wrestling troupes, syndicate matchmaking and payment of salaries instead of purses. But let us draw the curtain on this harrowing tale. There is always somebody throwing a monkey-wrench into the monkey business.

"Grange Wants Coaching Berth for Next Season."

Looks like the uppers are all filled but there ought to be some good teams in the lower brackets that could use the fighting spirit of the Galloping Ghost.

"Here's a job," said the whale salesman to Jonah, "with streamlining trouble-free motor and no drafts."—Exchange.

Yep, and a blowout about every 10 miles.

Fair Enough.

WHEN they the enemy would fool
(They've tried it out a score of times)
The Cards adhere to one fixed rule:
In case of doubt, sign Burleigh Grimes.

A blue moon appeared in Ireland in 1927. Which seems to refute the idea that the moon is made out of green cheese.

We wouldn't be surprised to see "Rabbit" Maranville lead the National League in batting this year. There's a guy who can talk to that "rabbit" ball in its own language.

The recent boxing tournament under the auspices of the Post-Dispatch and the City Department of Recreation may have been given by kids but it was no kid-glove affair. The professionals could learn about fighting from them.

It has just been discovered that the effigy of Lord Nelson, which has stood in Westminster Abbey 129 years, is blind in the wrong eye. Of course somebody would bring that up.

Time Supply broke well in motion, quickly ran into a long lead, galloped along in front and won under wraps. Agrarian, away in a tangle, worked his way up on outside and finished very fast. Open Range, mean at the gate, finally was placed on the outside, showed speed and held on well. Herowin, away poorly, closed a big gap and was a fast-going fourth. Chance Line was never able to get going. Happy Go tired chasing the pace. Night's End suffered early interference.

ST. PAUL FIVE'S 3636 SCORE WAS HIGHEST TENPIN TOTAL OF WEEK

Setting an all-time bowling record for, both league and tournament competition, Hamm's quintet, stellar St. Paul (Minn.) lineup crashed through with a sensational 3636 total to top the International Honor Roll for last week. The new high mark was written into bowling as the team connected with games of 1109, 1256 and 1271 in the Twin City Classic League. The former record, 3613, was scored by the De Barrys of the Chicago Classic League last season.

Only one game of the 15 was below the 200 mark. Voges scored 182 in the opening session, but came back to crash the setups for counts of 256 and 254. Ossie Ragogna topped the squad with a sizzling 802 total, the highest three games scored in the league this year. Evans contributed 753, Tom Harkins 713, Billy Metcalf 687 and Voges 691. The St. Paul lineup, considered one of the greatest tournament teams of the country, has been setting a dizzy pace all season. The team is the first to top the International Roll for three consecutive weeks.

Here's the way the new high mark was set:

Metcalf	226	214	247	687
Ragogna	245	257	300	802
Voges	181	256	254	691
Harkins	202	253	258	713
Evans	255	276	212	743
Totals	1109	1256	1271	3636

In setting the pace while the Hamms were establishing a new bowling record, Ragogna led the nation for the best singles series of the week. After games of 245 and 257, the St. Paul kegler connected with a 300 game, the first perfect game in the league and the first 800 mark scored in the Twin City this year.

Paul de Haas, Marquette, Mich., was second high with a 798 total.

The highest individual total on record for women's league competition was also recorded. Rolling with the West End Laundry team in the Tomash Recreation League, Cleveland, O., Joan Radtkin compiled games of 239, 280 and 248 for a sensational 775 total, fourth highest singles shooting of the week. She had but one open frame in the three games. Miss Radtkin finished her first game with two strikes and then pummeled the maples for 10 more. The No. 4 pin stood on a seemingly perfect wallop on the eleventh ball. The Clevelander has been rolling only four years and her score knocked off the Cleveland record for women of 700 shot by Mrs. Tomasch several years ago.

St. Louisans finished well up in the honor list with the Wooster Lamberts pacing the teams with a total of 3266 and Chris Sottrell showing the way in the individual group with a 746 total.

The other matches, resulted in two-game victories for the Grimms and Edwards over the Reis Five and Reds. The team leaders were: Wichman 605, Mill 604, T. Grimm 611 and Gollins 502.

The eight-game scratch classic to be held at Heidel's Recreation next Saturday-Sunday, will accord bowlers an opportunity to test their ability against "heavy wood." There has been so much talk this season about the weight of pins that Heidel has arranged to use pins weighing three pounds, eight ounces, being the heaviest pins prescribed as being regulation under American Bowling Congress rules.

As an inducement to create a bigger tournament, the management at Heidel's has agreed to make a donation to each contestant who scores 1600 or better over the eight-game series.

Squads will be scheduled Saturday at 3 and 8 p. m. while Sunday squads will roll at 3, 7 and 9 p. m.

Entry can be made by phoning Heidel at PRospect 8400.

The early entrants include Jerry C. Ameling, Doc. Filipine, John Gromacki, Larry Jouet, Fred Johnston, Christ. Sottrell, Lou Haar and Cliff De Wees.

There was but one clean sweep in Heidel's Ladies' Scratch League, the Don Andersons taking the Student's Dens into camp with a total of 2729 as against 2466. Ann Johnson paced the Andersons with 628 followed by Lucille Wilson's 593, while Myrtene Eaves' 533 ranked best for the Students. GYRO VICTOR OVER BLUE DAY IN HANDICAP AT NEW ORLEANS

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3.—Gyro, a four-year-old son of Pennant, carrying the silks of Mose Goldblatt, today showed the way to six other smart performers to win the $1500 John L. Dempsey Memorial Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Out of the contention in the early part of the mile race, Gyro closed fast in the stretch to earn the decision by a full length over A. G. Tarn's Blue Day, winner of his two previous starts. Joe Cattarinich's Canadian-owned Pharatime was third.

Pharatime, which has been consistently running either second or third, was the first away from the barrier and for three-quarters of the distance swung along in front with a slight advantage over War Plane. The Canadian horse faded before the stretch drive of Gyro and Blue Day, however, although easily holding the remainder of the field safe.

Backed by a victory over Tatanne, Jefferson Derby winner, the last time out, Gyro paid $7.20 for a $2 mutuel ticket. He ran the distance in 1:39 4-5.

Horsemen Threaten to Quit New Orleans Track.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3.—A flat threat to withdraw their horses from the Fair Grounds track unless purse cuts instituted by the body are restored within a week was flung by horsemen here today.

After conferring with Judge Joseph Murphy, general manager of the Fair Grounds track, owners agreed to remain here through next week on Murphy's promise that he would restore purses to their original status "if business got better."

The Fair Grounds track was forced to slash purses, Murphy explained to the group, because bad weather last week caused the track to suffer financial loss.

Park Development.

Missouri sportsmen who have been frequent users of the State parks will find these places greatly changed when they next visit them. Working under the National Forest Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior, the Civilian Conservation Corps is now busy providing the park development which the State Game and Fish Department has long been forced to delay because of lack of funds. Some of this development has been completed but another year's work, already approved by Washington authorities, will effect an even greater transformation.

Those who had seen the State parks five years ago when practically no development had been done on these wild tracts are today amazed at the size of the projects now underway in the Missouri system. Development of seven parks now in progress includes not only cabins and camp sites but modern hotels and stables as well.

When the program is completed the State will be without its old wilderness parks with outstanding wild attractions, but accommodations being provided will make the improved playgrounds usable by children and the aged as well. What the sportsmen who enjoyed the solitude of the wilderness parks, especially Montauk State Park in Dent County, will have lost, the outdoor lover may gain in the new development, it is pointed out.

Hatchery officials say they expect to keep the trout streams within the parks well stocked with rainbows.

Missouri's State parks are being highly developed with Federal funds under the direction of the National Park Service, but the parks still remain under the charge of Wilbur Buford, State Game and Fish Commissioner, and the improvements will be turned over to his department when the projects are completed.

It is the National Park Service idea that the improvements be maintained and a sinking fund provided for their replacement. This will necessitate making the parks self-supporting as the present available Game and Fish Department park funds, amounting to approximately $100,000 annually, will not be sufficient. An admission charge, therefore, is expected.

Because of the compresensive developments in the parks this spring, it is expected by State and Federal park authorities that the attendance at the parks in 1934 will set a record, and that the number of visitors will increase each year.

Helps to Fishermen.

Uncle Sam, with his many new public helps, hasn't forgotten his long-time beneficiaries, the fishermen, reports from the United States Bureau of Fisheries indicates. Dr. G. B. Herndon, State hatcheries superintendent, has been advised that the Government has planted 248,218 fish in Missouri waters during the last 12 months.

The species and number of each planted by Federal hatchery officials included: Catfish, 1875; trout, 53,260; crappies, 27,325; large mouth bass, 91,281; rock bass, 18,900; sunfish, 53,235; yellow perch, 2340.

Since the State Game and Fish Department's ruling that trout distribution in the future would be almost entirely on State parks the Federal hatchery has been supplying virtually all of the trout used to stock private waters. One of the large Federal trout hatcheries is located at Neosho, but most of the plantings from that place, largely fry, are made in Colorado streams.

Missouri hatchery officials have been making heavy plantings of trout in the streams on State parks in anticipation of the usual large numbers of anglers who put in their appearance on these parks at the season's opening, March 1. More than 30 miles of trout fishing water starts at Montauk State Park in Dent County; seven miles at Roaring River State Park in Barry County and about a mile and a half at Bennett Spring State Park in Dallas and Laclede counties.

Areas on streams at each of these parks will be restricted to fly fishing only, the Game and Fish Department has announced.

Bulletins Find Favor.

Two new bulletins which are finding considerable favor with sportsmen are "Water Areas—How to Create and Maintain Them," and "Small Refuge for Waterfowl." Both bulletins are in the series of 10 bulletins on wildfowl subjects distributed by More Game Birds in America, New York City.

Tourney Dates Set.

The second annual independent basketball tournament will be held at the Granite City Y. M. C. A., Feb. 26, 27, 28 and March 1, 2 and 3. All teams in the Southwestern Illinois and St. Louis districts have been invited to participate. Sixteen teams were entered last year. The "Y" officials are planning on closing the tourney registrations this year as soon as the desired number of teams have sent in their entry blanks.

Ruth Ferriss Becomes Bride Of J. V. B. Jenks

First of Season's Debutantes to Wed Married at Church in Presence of Fashionable Assemblage.

MISS RUTH MACOMBER FERRISS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Theodore Ferriss, 18 Lenox place, the first of the season's debutantes to announce her engagement, became the first bride of the group at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She was married to Jeremiah Van Buren Jenks, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Jenks, of Harbor Beach, Mich.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block in the Church of St. Michael and St. George, which was filled with a fashionable assemblage of St. Louisans and out-of-town guests. The decorations were simple. Palms and ferns were banked in the chancel, and the candle-lit altar held vases of white snapdragon. Pews for the families were inclosed by white satin ribbon tied in large bows.

The bride's attendants, who included members of the debutante set of this season and last, were Miss Mary Boyle, maid of honor, and Miss Jane Bond, Miss Mary Coit Day, Miss Elsie Ford and Mrs. Charles Ilsley of Milwaukee, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaids.

Miss Boyle wore a gown of Delano blue crepe designed with a round neck outlined with a ruff of the material, pleated. Puffs of crepe, not attached to the gown, were worn on the upper arms in lieu of set-in sleeves. The high waist line graduated to normal at the back, where it was trimmed with a band of double pleating. The skirt, made with a short train, was fitted to a low hip line, where at each side there were paneled inserts composed of rows of pleating. She wore a small hat of matching blue straw fabric trimmed with pleating arranged high off the face to give the new wind-blown effect. She carried spring flowers with yellow predominating to contrast with her gown.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike in jonquil yellow crepe, fashioned like that of the maid of honor. They wore blue slippers and their flowers were mainly blue delphinium.

The bride wore the wedding gown of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Sanford Harris, who as Miss Ann Ferriss, was Veiled Prophet Queen of 1931. The material is duchesse satin of a pale cameo tint. The bodice was fashioned with an extremely high neckline, and there were satin sleeves, puffed to the elbow, with long tight cuffs. The gown was molded to the figure by bias seaming, and the skirt flared into a long round train. Over the bodice was worn a bolero of rose point and duchesse lace which had belonged to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Franklin Ferriss, and epaulets of lace covered the upper sleeves. The tulle veil was arranged with a rose point coronet to show her hair, and was held in place at the back by orange blossoms. Panels of the lace continued from each side of the coronet and followed the line of tulle to the waist.

Charles Ilsley was best man for his brother-in-law, and the ushers were Franklin Ferriss, brother of the bride; Joseph Sanford Harris, her brother-in-law; John Scranton of Boston, cousin of the bridegroom, and A. W. Redfield of Chicago.

Following the ceremony a reception, at which the guests were limited to the two families and the wedding party was held at the Ferriss home. The bridal party received the guests before the fireplace at the end of the long living room. Palms and ferns formed a background, and a long, low basket of pastel shaded spring flowers adorned the mantel ledge. White decorations were used in the dining room, where the bridal party was seated for dinner. The centerpiece, a tall crystal vase filled with white snapdragon, freesis, narcissus, and steevia, was surrounded by eight crystal swans containing sweet peas and baby's breath. Vases of similar blossoms were used at each end, and between were silver candelabra filled with white tapers.

The out-of-town guests included the bridegroom's parents, who will spend the remainder of the winter at their home in Southern Pines, S. C.; Mrs. G. G. Scranton of Boston, mother of one of the ushers; Mrs. A. W. Redfield, Chicago, wife of another, and Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Little, also of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis.

Mr. Jenks and his bride will sail from San Francisco for Honolulu on their honeymoon, and will spend the summer in Harbor Beach. Next fall they will go to New York.

The bride attended Mary Institute and was graduated from the John Burroughs School. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball in October. Mr. Jenks is an alumnus of Hills School, Pottstown, Pa., and Yale.

White tie and tails are the rule and dinner is usually for 9 o'clock.

If you want to let people know you're alive you had best start with cocktails at the Park Lane, dine at the Waldorf or Madison or the stately Plaza and turn up at the Mayfair Yacht Club shortly before 3 in time to hear Dwight Fiske sing his most wickedly satirical creations. Gone, so far as Mayfair is concerned, is pot luck on Sunday night with highballs and sandwiches. Mumm's extra dry is the word now, with gold lame and crush hats.

Of all the orchestra leaders in town none possesses the naive charm and youthful ingenuousness of Eddie Duchin, who plays at the Central Park Casino. Boyishly handsome, with a mop of thick black hair, he is as excitable as a nice child over things that please him, whether they be a new score, the compliment of an admirer or the way his tailor has cut the lapels of his new dinner jacket. He knows lots of people who drink and dance at the Casino and sits at the tables of friends, sometimes quite forgetting that his orchestra is waiting on his return. When we beat him in a sleigh race a while ago he said: "Oh, gosh darn, but you are a meany. Or don't you think so yourself?" When he saw himself in a newsreel he said: "Gee, I'm just crazy about me. I guess I must be my type." He never puts on the airs assumed by so many other less successful musicians and as a result is far more popular than most.

Another Vanished Glory.

We reported, some time since, the gayety of the Butler's Ball, which enlisted the cream of New York's pantry and wine cellar chivalry and was one of the most exclusive affairs of the season. Can you imagine anything more dignified than a convocation of butlers? Well, it appears that years ago the most important service hall levee every year used to be the Coachman's Ball.

That, we are told by Paddy Rafferty, of the Plaza cab rank, was something to talk about. You couldn't get a hack anywhere that night for love or money, not even in front of the Hoffman House or the old Waldorf, where all rides cost a dollar, even if one was just crossing the street. And, Lord, what lashings of hot rum punch and claret cup were consumed! All the best families' coachmen and footmen and parlor maids were there, and very grand and elegant it was, too. There's no fun like that any more, says Paddy. There's something called the Chauffeurs' and Old-Timers' Ball, but what respectable horse-cab driver would be out at jollifications with a lot of horseless-carriage pilots? Not Paddy, anyway.

We have at last achieved that superlative honor which, in New York, corresponds to peerages, jeweled crosses and academic honors throughout the rest of the world. We have had a cocktail named for us by Bill Darcy, the barkeep at our hotel. This even beats Manuel Garcia, who lived to a ripe old age and then turned into a good cigar, for we, apparently, have lived a scant threescore years and then, to the justification and delight of many prophets, have turned into an arrangement of rum and bitters. The pathos of the situation, however, lies in the circumstance that it takes five kinds of rum, including the rare Feltons from Medford, to build the decoction, and our friends, discovering it before we did, drank up all the mixings in the bar. No more has been procured to date and our brow is corrugated with woe.

Village Still Lives.

Cynthia White is the last of New York's real Greenwich Villagers. We don't, naturally, mean that there are no more midtown Bohemians, but there are none stemming from the great traditions of the village, from the spacious and Rabelasian era of George Luks and Jim Huneker and the purple days a score or so of years since when George Bellows was immortalizing McSorley's saloon and when a rondeau or ballade might pay for a meal and half bottle of wine in any of half a dozen resorts where MacDougal Street Maecenases patronized poetic indigence. Miss White's father was a heart of corn from the Old Sod and her mother a Hungarian Gypsy. She started life as an English instructor in a Brooklyn public school, but today she is the professional but none the less authentic exploiter of the garret-to-garret hey-hey of the village and entrepreneur of its less inhibited festivals.

Last week she held her first flag raising of the season, the Greenwich Village Ball, at Webster Hall, and it was apparent that at least one of the old traditions of the town obtained despite the New Deal and the mutations of time. The party was, as usual, daffy, a trifle epicene, and patronized by a number of people whose only conceivable occupational disease would be cirrhosis of the liver. There were bands, Nordic, negroid and rhumba; there were costumes elaborate and costumes microscopic; there was whooping and laughing and even dancing, and over it all Miss White presided with a very assured competence and a close eye to the box office. We fought our way to the door along 4 o'clock and rode uptown in the cool night feeling that without Miss White there simply wouldn't be any more Greenwich Village. She's the whole of it.

Social Life in the National Capital

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.

EVERYONE is still talking about the President's birthday ball at the Shoreham on Tuesday night.

For an hour before the ball began the lobby was jammed with people waiting for Mrs. Roosevelt to arrive. Flashlights blazed, cameras clicked, bands played. At last Mrs. Roosevelt arrived. Into the lounge, where the evening festivities focused moved the White House party.

Mrs. Roosevelt had a new gown for the ball, pale peach-colored satin with a sort train. She wore an ornament of emeralds, gloves the same shade as her gown, green slippers and carried a green bag. She wore her favorite diamond necklace. Her wrap was a three-quarter model of ermine.

Mrs. Dall, the blond daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, wore a flame colored crepe frock. It was made with a sort of scarf drapery high in front and forming two long winglike draperies in the back.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson looked unusually well, gowned in black velvet embroidered about the back with steel beads.

Two blocks of traffic snarls on Sixteenth street on Wednesday—it was Mrs. Cordell Hull's first "at home."

Having recently returned with Secretary Hull from South America, Wednesday was the first chance Mrs. Hull had to be "at home." And so callers waited until that day to pay their respects to the Secretary of State's wife.

It was where the Hulls reside, at the Carlton Hotel. A large bowl of pink roses was in the center of a long table, in the small ballroom where Mrs. Hull received.

The State Department seemed to be there en masse. One heard French, Spanish and Italian, many from the diplomatic corps being present.

Republicans seemed to be as thick as bees. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. Ellis Yost, Mrs. Frederick Gillett and Miss Laura Harlan were there.

Mrs. William Phillips assisted Mrs. Hull, looking very smart in a wine colored velvet gown with a hat of the same color trimmed with plumes. Her tall young daughter was also there, Miss Beatrice Phillips.

But two more parties remain on the official program for the White House this season, the Speaker's dinner on Tuesday and the Army and Navy reception on Thursday.

Ash Wednesday this year falls on Feb. 14, St. Valentine's day—and Paulina Longworth's birthday.

February is the month of anniversaries in the Longworth family. Alice Roosevelt Longworth was born on Feb. 12 and was married to Representative Nicholas Longworth on Feb. 17.

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

CIRCUIT COURT JURISDICTION IN ELECTION CONTEST UPHELD

Supreme Judge Rules in Case of Row Over Republican City Committeeship.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3.—The Missouri Supreme Court en banc today ruled that St. Louis Circuit Court had jurisdiction to proceed with a contest by Eugene P. Farris of the election of William G. Kaysing as a member of the Republican City Committee from the Fifteenth Ward.

The Court dismissed a preliminary rule of prohibition it had issued on Kaysing's petition, which had restrained Circuit Judge Ryan from enforcing an order directing the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners to make a recount of the ballots cast for Kaysing and Farris.

A contention by Kaysing that the lower court had no jurisdiction, on the ground Farris' notice of the election contest did not state facts sufficient to confer jurisdiction, was overruled. Judge William F. Frank held the lower court had full jurisdiction and had authority to determine whether the contest notice, or petition, stated a cause of action.

CHANGE IN ELECTRIC RATES IS SOUGHT FOR SCHOOLS

Building Commissioner Hopes to Save About $10,000 a Year by Classification Change.

A change in rate classification, expected to save the Board of Education about $10,000 a year, is being sought from Union Electric Light & Power Co. by Building Commissioner Friton.

Before the company reduced rates Nov. 1 the schools were billed on the residence schedule. Since then the company has proposed a new "multiple residence rate" which would apply to the schools and has offered the alternative of a flat rate of 3 cents a kilowatt hour, Friton said in reply to an inquiry.

Neither alternative has been accepted, Friton added, but he is asking the company to keep the schools on the ordinary residence rate, whereby, he estimates, the average charge would be about 2 cents a kilowatt hour. There is virtually no difference in cost between the multiple residence rate and the 3-cent flat rate, according to Friton, but either would save about $4000 a year. The $10,000 saving under the ordinary residence rate would be in addition to this.

HENRY PU-YI'S FALL AND RISE IN 22 YEARS

Youth Who Lost Manchu Throne Is About to Be Emperor Again.

By the Associated Press.

HSINKING, Manchukuo, Feb. 3.—The progress of Henry Pu-yi from the shaky eminence of the Dragon throne of China to the freshly gilded splendors of the throne of Manchukuo will have required a few days more than 22 years.

It was Feb. 12, 1912, that the frail and frightened 6-year-old boy known as Hsuan Tung, the last Manchu Emperor of China, abdicated at Pekin, his monarchy crumbling before the rise of the new republic.

On March 1 this same youth—he is two years short of 30—will be enthroned here as Emperor of Manchukuo, a State carved out of Manchuria, the homeland of Pu-yi's ancestors.

Returns to Own Land.

The "resolution" of this sovereign, hitherto the helpless pawn on the board of Oriental history, has many unusual aspects. For Pu-yi it is a comeback in a double sense. He has returned to rule the land from which his vigorous, martial forefathers surged southward 300 years ago to establish, in 1644, the dynasty which gave China its most splendid and some of its weakest Emperors.

Pu-yi is a Manchu, not Chinese, and in his own mind and the minds of his Manchu followers there is no sense of unfaithfulness to China, the land from which the Japanese wrested the territory which has become Manchukuo.

The new monarch probably will be given a new imperial name—here they are talking of Hsuan Ho, "Righteous Peace"—and his new throne at Hsinking is expected to combine features of both the great yellow-draped Dragon throne from which he was ousted 22 years ago and the purple-curtained august high seat of the Emperor of Japan.

Third Venture on Throne.

Ritualists skilled in Tokio court ceremonies, many of which were borrowed hundreds of years ago from China, are here to assist in the enthronement of Pu-yi.

That event will mark the third time that this young man has ascended a throne. He was a pig-tailed infant of two and a half when he first was placed on the tottering throne of China in the Forbidden City. His father, Prince Chun, was named Regent.

An old Chinese prophecy said that as the Manchu dynasty had come in with a child—the first Manchu Emperor was 6-year-old Shun Chih—so it would expire. Fulfillment happened Feb. 12, 1912, when the republic under Yuan Shih-kai, forced the boy Emperor's abdication.

When Pu-yi was 11 he was restored by Chang Chun, a war lord of the old administration, but this reign lasted only eight days. At the end of that period republican troops chased Chang's warriors out of Pekin.

Took Two Wives Same Day.

Seven reasonably peaceful years followed, the ex-Emperor and a retinue continuing to live in the Forbidden City. Pu-yi cut off his pigtail, married two wives on the same day, expelled the traditional eunuchs from the household and took up occidental literature under the guidance of an Englishman, Sir Reginald Johnston.

But in October, 1924, the hymn-singing army of Feng Yu-shiang, China's "Christian general," descended on the old capital and thrust Pu-yi, his consorts and household into the streets. After a short, dangerous interval. Pu-yi found asylum in the Japanese legation.

Two years ago he took a steamer to Yingkow and a Japanese train to this city, then Changchun, but since renamed as seat of the Government whose nominal executive Pu-yi has been since March 9, 1932.

ANNE CANNON SMITH SAID TO PLAN ARKANSAS DIVORCE

Former Wife of Late Smith Reynolds Reported on Way to Hot Springs.

By the Associated Press.

CONCORD, N. C., Feb. 3.—The Concord Daily Tribune says that Mrs. Anne Cannon Smith of Charlotte, former wife of the late Smith Reynolds, will establish residence at Hot Springs, Ark., to start divorce proceedings against her present husband, F. Brandon Smith Jr. of Charlotte.

The paper says Mrs. Smith left Concord yesterday for Arkansas, accompanied by her father, Joseph F. Cannon, towel manufacturer. Arkansas law permits a final decree after 90 days' residence in that State.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married at the summer home of her parents at Blowing Rock on May 4, 1932, a few months after she was granted a divorce at Reno, Nev., from Smith Reynolds, tobacco fortune heir, who was mysteriously and fatally wounded at his home at Winston Salem, the same year. Anne Cannon Reynolds, only child of Mrs. Smith, is here with her grandmother, Mrs. Cannon.

SAVINGS BANK AT ST. CHARLES REMOVES RESTRICTIONS

R. F. C. Subscribes for $100,000 of Capital of Union Depository.

Restrictions on withdrawal of deposits from the Union Savings Bank of St. Charles were removed yesterday by authority of the State Finance Commissioner, and the bank went under terms of the Federal deposit insurance law. The restrictions, limiting withdrawals of deposits made before the banking holiday early last year to 5 per cent a month, had been in effect since the holiday.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has subscribed $100,000 of the bank's capital. Gus H. Wilke, cashier, said total capital is $190,000, including some new money subscribed locally. Deposits are about $650,000. J. F. Rauch is president.

DICKMANN ASKED TO VETO ZONING BILL OF ALDERMEN

Measure Would Permit Commercial Building at Nebraska and Potomac.

Mayor Dickmann has been asked by the Zoning Committee of the General Council on Civic Needs to veto a bill passed by the Board of Aldermen which would change the zoning of a lot at the northeast corner of Nebraska avenue and Potomac street so as to permit of erection of a commercial building.

There already is more property zoned for commerce than can be used, W. Scott Hancock, chairman of the committee, wrote to the Mayor. If the integrity of the zoning law is to be preserved, Hancock said, "requests for changes for special zones and for individuals must, as a matter of sound policy, be denied. We, therefore, knowing your expressed attitude and your determination to stamp out spot zoning, respectfully urge that you veto this measure." The Mayor heretofore has vetoed several spot zoning bills.

Hancock, a lawyer, asserted there was a "possibility" the courts would hold spot zoning invalid.

Hobbies

OF PROMINENT ST. LOUISANS

PERSONALITIES

BY MRS. RALPH L. THOMPSON

When someone asked me recently what I considered the most fun in life, I answered quickly, "Companionship." To me there is nothing so stimulating as contact with interesting personalities. In my early life this came through the artists when I dabbled with brush, paints, and pencils. Then the amateur theatre where one tries to portray the personality of another. Later, in club activities, I have found a new source of pleasure in an exchange of ideas which embraces all the arts, the promotion of mutual interests in education, literature, science and civic betterment. I do not find the dull, pompous club-woman of the comic cartoon typical but rather an eager, human seeking for the better things of life. Personalities wherever I find them — that is my hobby.

5000 SCOUTS IN GROUP TO HEAR ROOSEVELT

More than 5000 of the 8000 Boy Scouts in the city will mobilize at the Fox Theater at 10 o'clock Saturday morning to observe the twenty-fourth anniversary of scouting and to listen to a broadcast by President Roosevelt. The President's speech will come over a national chain and will be carried locally by KMOX.

Scout leaders have announced that the President will ask the scouts to "do a national good turn." The identity of this has not been disclosed so that as many scouts as possible will listen to the speech but it is expected that he will ask them to help in connection with the NRA codes or in some phase of relief work.

Head to Be at White House.

Walter W. Head of St. Louis, president of the National Boy Scout Council, and James E. West, national scout executive, will be at the White House when the President speaks.

The six districts of the St. Louis council will meet at six different points within several blocks of the theater and march there in separate parades. They will arrive at the theater at 10 o'clock and be entertained with newsreels and short subjects. At 10:45 o'clock KMOX will pick up their program and broadcast speeches by Mayor Dickmann and Charles Nagel, together with music by the South Side Lions' Club band and scout cheers and songs.

Col. McBride to Speak.

Col. H. D. McBride, scout commissioner, will preside and will speak to the scouts immediately after the President's address, telling them how to carry out the good turn locally.

The mobilization will be the largest single scout gathering of the year outside of the circus. It is part of national scout week which begins Wednesday.

The meeting places for the six districts are as follows: North District at Hadley Vocational School, 3401 Bell avenue; Inter-racial District on the parking lot on Lucas avenue, opposite Missouri Theater; Suburban District on parking lot at 3708 Washington avenue; South District on the circus grounds at Grand and Laclede avenues; West District on parking lot west of World Theater; Central District on Coronado parking lot at Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue.

Troop Notes

Four field commissioners have been appointed for the D Division of the West District. The commissioners and the troops in their charge are as follows: A. E. Cunliff, Troops 136, 13, and 75; Edwin Skinner, Troops 54, 119, 111, and Cub pack 32; J. V. Allison, Troops 7, 128, and 45; Murray Cabell, Troops 137, 93, and Cub pack 44.

Troop 90, Temple Shaare Emeth, will hold a reunion for all its former members together with a troop court of honor on Wednesday, Feb. 21. Dr. Harry Greditzer of the Troop Committee was recently given the Scouters Award from national headquarters.

At the last meeting of Troop 30, Y. M. H. A., a track meet was held with the scouts competing in the following events: Free throw, 50-yard hurdle, 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, broad jump, shot put, push-ups, medley relay, and tug of war. The troop will give an entertainment at the "Y" on Feb. 17.

Troop 115, St. Mary Magdelene's Church, held a father and son banquet together with a troop court of honor last Tuesday at the church hall, Kingshighway boulevard and Sutherland avenue. The following boys were invested into the troop: Charles Bruegger, Warren Meadows, William McCalpin, Joseph Adams, William Deves, Bert Thompson, Gerard Hill, Thomas Duggan, and Eugene Meyer. Awards were as follows: Second class badges to Warren Niebling, Ralph Shafer and John Sullivan; first class badges to Andrew Wurst and George Lenney, who also received six merit badges.

Twenty-six scouts from Troop 232, Blow School, took an overnight hike to Camp Taconic last weekend. Three members of the troop committee accompanied the boys. For Sunday dinner they had chicken cooked by Scoutmaster William J. Newman.

Cub pack 9, Pilgrim Congregational Church, received its charter for 1934 at a meeting last Thursday at the church. Each den then presented an episode out of the life of Abraham Lincoln.

THIS IS THE INTERESTING STORY

This merchandise was stored in Hold Number 2 on the Steamship Albert Ballin, sailing to the United States, December 20th, 1933. While the Steamer was still 800 miles from shore it sprung a leak in Hold Number Two. The merchandise stored was submerged in fifteen feet of water for the length of time it took for the boat to cover this distance and dock in New York City. Upon its arrival we purchased it from the importers and adjusters and had it washed and ironed before shipping to St. Louis.

This is one of those once-in-a-lifetime sales. A fortunate chain of circumstances made it possible for us to purchase the tremendous quantity at almost unbelievable savings—savings which are the reason for low prices quoted here.

Cloths and Napkins are made of fine quality, round thread linen crash with colored woven checks and deep borders in red, green, blue and orange. All are neatly hemmed. Closely woven, assuring wonderful wearing and laundering qualities. Included are bridge, square, oblong dinette and dinner cloths. All napkins are 11x11 inches. Seven great groups:

M'KITTRICK TELLS WHAT HE THINKS SALES TAX MEANS

Attorney - General Gives State Auditor Section-by-Section Interpretation of New Law.

FIRST PAYMENTS ARE DUE FEB. 15

Ruling Does Assume Constitutionality, but Does Not Consider Point. Leaving That to Courts.

BY BOYD F. CARROLL,
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3.—A blanket opinion interpreting the provisions of the new State sales tax law was issued today by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick to State Auditor Forrest Smith, who has charge of enforcement of the act.

The law, which imposes a tax of one-half of one per cent on retail sales of tangible personal property, and on the receipts from several specified services, has been in effect since Jan. 15.

It was passed, on recommendation of Gov. Park, to provide necessary funds to pay the State's share of the cost of unemployment relief, to provide additional funds for the public schools, and to aid in meeting a deficit in operation of the State Government, due to decreasing revenues. This deficit was nearly $2,000,000 for 1933.

First Payments Due Feb. 15.

The firts payment of the tax, for that part of January that the act was in force, is due on Feb. 15. The tax is payable monthly, and taxpayers will be required to make returns and pay the tax for a calendar month, by the fifteenth of the following month.

McKittrick and several assistants who aided him in preparation of the opinion did not pass on the question of its constitutionality, indicating that was a matter for the courts.

In passing on the various provisions they assumed each section was valid, McKittrick said.

The Attorney-General said the tax imposed was not actually a sales tax, but an occupation or privilege tax upon the privilege of selling tangible personal property at retail and furnishing the services which are subject to the levy.

In addition to retail sales of tangible personal property, the tax applies to sales of tickets or admission charges to places of amusement, games and athletic events, sales of electricity, gas, water and sewer service to domestic, industrial and commercial customers; telephone and telegraph service; newspaper advertising and newspaper service; commercial laundry, cleaning and dyeing service; transportation of passengers or freight for hire by railroad, express, bus, truck and all other transportation companies, billboards and other outdoor advertising services.

Many New Questions of Law.

McKittrick said many of the questions presented were new ones, which had not been passed upon by the courts in other states.

The question as to what constitutes "newspaper service" was not passed on. McKittrick said this would be left to the courts.

No explanation of what constitutes such service has been given. Sponsors of the bill and members of the joint conference committee of the two houses which drafted the bill in the form in which it finally was passed, did not agree on what it meant. One explanation was given that the classification had been copied from a sales tax act of another state, but what the service included was not defined.

McKittrick held all newspaper advertising in newspapers published within the State was subject to the tax, irrespective of the source of the advertising or where the contract was executed. He said the tax did not apply to the sale and delivery of newspapers, holding this did not constitute the business of selling tangible personal property at retail.

While commercial laundry, cleaning and dyeing service is subject to the tax, the Attorney-General held the receipts from pressing service were not subject to the tax, as this service is not included in the specific designations of taxable classifications. Under this ruling cleaners will have to segregate their receipts from cleaning and pressing, in making their tax returns.

Other Interpretations.

Among other rulings in the opinion are the following: The tax is on the privilege of selling tangible personal property at retail, and furnishing the services specified, and not on the privilege of using, buying or consuming, and the retailer therefore has no authority to collect the amount of the tax, as a tax, from the purchaser.

Food and sales of meals by restaurants, cafes and others are subject to the tax.

The "gross receipts" subject to the tax are defined as the entire operative income of a business, without any deductions. The sale price was defined as the amount received. The Attorney-General held that in the case of installment payment sales, the interest or financing charge for the extended credit was not to be deemed a part of the selling price.

While pointing out that there was some doubt as to whether municipally-owned utilities were subject to the tax, McKittrick recommended the State Auditor require them to pay the tax, until such time as the point could be passed upon by the courts.

Gasoline not used for motor vehicle fuel is subject to the tax. Gasoline used for motor vehicle fuel is exempt, under a constitutional provision that the present State tax of 2 cents a gallon shall not be increased until after 1938. All lubricating and fuel oil, and grease are subject to the tax.

Printing is included, except when the customer furnishes his own paper stock. This apparently will prevent collecttion of the tax on work done under the State printing contract, held by a Jefferson City company, as the State buys the paper used for its printing and furnishes it to the printer.

Burial Service Taxable.

Burial service is taxable to the extent of the casket and other personal property sold by an undertaker in connection with a funeral.

McKittrick held that sales of admission tickets by churches, public schools, fraternal organizations and similar groups, to amusements, games and athletic events, where the activity is not conducted as a regular business, were not taxable.

As to telephone and telegraph communication, and transportation of passengers or freight for hire, the Attorney-General held the tax applied to these services within the State, but not to interstate communication or transportation.

Goods Shipped Out of State.

Receipts from goods sold to be shipped to a user outside the State are not taxable, but the act applies to sales in Missouri of goods shipped in from other states. McKittrick held the tax could not be levied on transactions strictly in interstate commerce.

Electricity generated outside Missouri and transmitted into the State by transmission lines with a voltage higher than that at which the current is sold to the user, was held to be taxable. Gas brought into the State by pipe lines also was held taxable, if the pressure at which it is delivered in the sale to the user, at his appliances, is different from the pressure at which the gas is sent through the interstate pipe line. Sales of water piped into the States in interstate commerce, and then redistributed to users, were declared taxable.

Nazis Open Attack on Royalists; Determined to Block Any Move to Return Hohenzollerns to Throne

By JOHN ELLIOTT.
(Copyright, 1934.)

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The opinion held in many quarters that National Socialism is a monarchist movement and that Chancellor Hitler is the evangelist preparing the way for a return of a Hohenzollern Prince to the German throne has been shattered. While last year the Nazis annihilated their Socialist and Communist opponents, they have opened the new year with a ferocious attack on the monarchist opposition.

The fact that the Hitlerites have dared openly to declare war on the royalists, who have powerful supporters in the military and junker circles, is itself a significant showing that the Nazi leaders now feel themselves firmly entrenched in power.

The occasion for the opening of the anti-monarchist campaign by the Nazis, which they called "a battle against reaction," was a somewhat tactless letter from former Kaiser Wilhelm sent from Doorn to the Kaiserdank foundation for charitable purposes, in which the Hohenzollern solicited financial aid for the poor in Germany and incidentally made one of his famous obiter dicta remarks, observing that "Germany will never be happy until it has its monarchy back again."

A Tactless Remark.

About the same time the Kyffhaeuser League, an organization claiming some 3,000,000 war veterans as members, held a meeting at the Sportspalast in Berlin, at which some monarchist was rash enough to shout, with Ernst Roehm, Chief of Staff of the Nazi Storm detachments, sitting on the platform, "Tell Hitler to give us our Kaiser back!"

The ex-Kaiser and his adherents must have been surprised by the fury and intensity of the Nazi counter-attack. State Chancellor Artur Goerlitzer, vice-chairman of the Nazi party in Berlin, opened the assault with a speech on the anniversary of the day that Wilhelm I was proclaimed Emperor at Versailles, in which he said that the monarchists were more dangerous than the Communists and would be handled by the Brown Shirts just as roughly.

Walter Darre, Nazi Minister of Agriculture, wrote an article in the Nazi Landpost, in which he charged that German peasants had been twice betrayed by the German Kaisers—first by the Hohenstaufens and then by the Hohenzollerns. "The last Hohenzollern bears the guilt for the collapse of the popular foundations of our Fatherland," Darre wrote. The assertion made by the Cologne branch of the Hohenzollern League, to the effect that the restoration of the monarchy is "the ultimate aim of our leader, Adolf Hitler," aroused the Cologne leader, Nazi Herr Grohe, to fury.

Kaiser Movement Barred.

"There must be no new Kaiser movement," Grohe ordered. "The leader of the German people is Adolf Hitler, and if it is God's will he will be spared us for many years."

The Nazi attack on the monarchists, after being prepared by this verbal barrage, was launched with the same admirable skill as their attack on the Reds. Just as they used the May day to destroy the trades unions, so they took the seventy-fifth birthday of the ex-Kaiser to destroy the last vestiges of German royalism. The final and complete merger of the Steel Helmet League—once the private army of the Royalists—was ordered on that day.

The German press, acting on orders "from above," printed not a word of the ex-Kaiser's birthday celebration at Doorn. The annual meeting of the German Officers' Association at the Berlin Zoo assembly rooms to celebrate the ex-Kaiser's birthday broke up in general disorder when Nazi rowdies broke in and exploded fireworks and hurled stench bombs just after Count Rudiger von der Goltz had called for a "Hoch!" for Wilhelm.

Denunciation by Students.

Even more extraordinary was the hostile demonstration staged against the former German ruler by the Nazi students in Frankfort-am-Main. The student leader, denouncing the "monarchist reactionaries," declared that German youth refused to celebrate the birth of the man who had crossed the German frontier in the country's worst hour of distress. Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm was attacked as "the man who asked the German nation to fight to the last breath of man and horse," and then ran away to Holland by a special train when the nation had ceased to breathe from exhaustion.

Gen. Hermann Goering, Prime Minister of Prussia, observed the first anniversary of Hitler's coming to power by giving a coup de grace to the monarchist government when he asked Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior, to dissolve all the remaining monarchist societies.

Hitler himself, in his Reichstag speech, attacked the monarchist cause. Protesting against the ex-Kaiser's remark that Germany could only be happy under a monarchy, Hitler declared that, with all respect for the value of monarchy and reverence for the great German kings of the past, the question of a revival of the monarchy was not practical politics.

TELLS OF SELLING AUTO TO DILLINGER

Salesmanager Says Outlaw Waited in St. Louis Five Days for New Car.

When John Dillinger, escaped convict and bank robber, accused of murder, was captured last week with three of his henchmen in Tucson, Ariz., and his picture printed in newspapers, employes of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. recognized him as the man to whom they delivered an automobile about a week before.

They remembered he paid cash from a huge roll of $20 bills; that he went to the Automobile Show with one of the salesmen and stood in the lobby of the Mart Building for 15 minutes beside three or four unsuspecting policemen; that he remained in St. Louis five days in order to get the particular sedan he wanted at the conclusion of the show.

"He told us he was Frank Sullivan," John W. Davis, sales manager of the automobile agency, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "There was a woman with him, who he said was Mrs. Sullivan. They had a tiny bulldog and it was the dog that almost brought him to the notice of the police.

Took Dog to Show.

"One of our salesmen, J. C. Jones, accompanied them to the Auto Show, Wednesday night, Jan. 17. Attendants there told them no dogs were permitted. So the woman stayed down in the lobby with the dog while Dillinger went upstairs with Jones. He picked out a $1200 Hudson sedan, a two-tone brown one, and said he wanted his wife to see it before he closed the deal.

"So he went downstairs and held the dog and Jones took the woman upstairs. While he was standing there, the dog broke away, and ran down the lobby between two policemen. Dillinger went after it; finally caught it.

"Then he came out to our office and said he'd buy the car. He counted out the money — all $20 bills, and signed the papers. He said he wanted the car that night. Mr. Frampton said he could not break up the exhibit until the show was over.

"Our customer got mad." He said, "I wouldn't have given you all that money except I was to get the car tonight." His neck began to get red and then his face.

"I said, 'Now Mr. Sullivan, you just stay here a few days and see our city.' I sent them to the Roosevelt Hotel and they stayed. Sunday morning I sent the car over and they left.

Carried Revolver.

"Our service man, who delivered it, noticed that 'Sullivan' had a revolver in a holster under his left arm, but he didn't think so much of that. Thought he was a deputy or something, authorized to carry firearms.

"He certainly was proud of that car. He must have stopped in every town along Highway 66 to show it to garage men. Lots of them are our dealers. They didn't have any 1934 models and they all had them ordered. So after he'd pass, they'd call up or write in or come in, mad at us. He put us in bad with all of them."

Dillinger confirmed his presence in St. Louis at the automobile show, when he passed through here last Tuesday under heavy guard, en route by airplane to Crown Point, Ind., where he is to be tried for the murder of Detective Patrick O'Malley during a bank holdup in East Chicago, Ind., Jan. 15.

POLICEMAN CATCHES SALOON BURGLAR

Geisman heard a noise at the back of the place as he was trying the front door. Running around the building, he saw the fleeing burglar. He caught the burglar after a chase of less than half a block.

The prisoner, 28 years old and unemployed, refused to make a statment although he had the money in his pockets. He was identified by the proprietor as a man who had been in the saloon shortly before closing time. Entrance to the store had been made by removing a sidewalk grating and forcing an inner door.

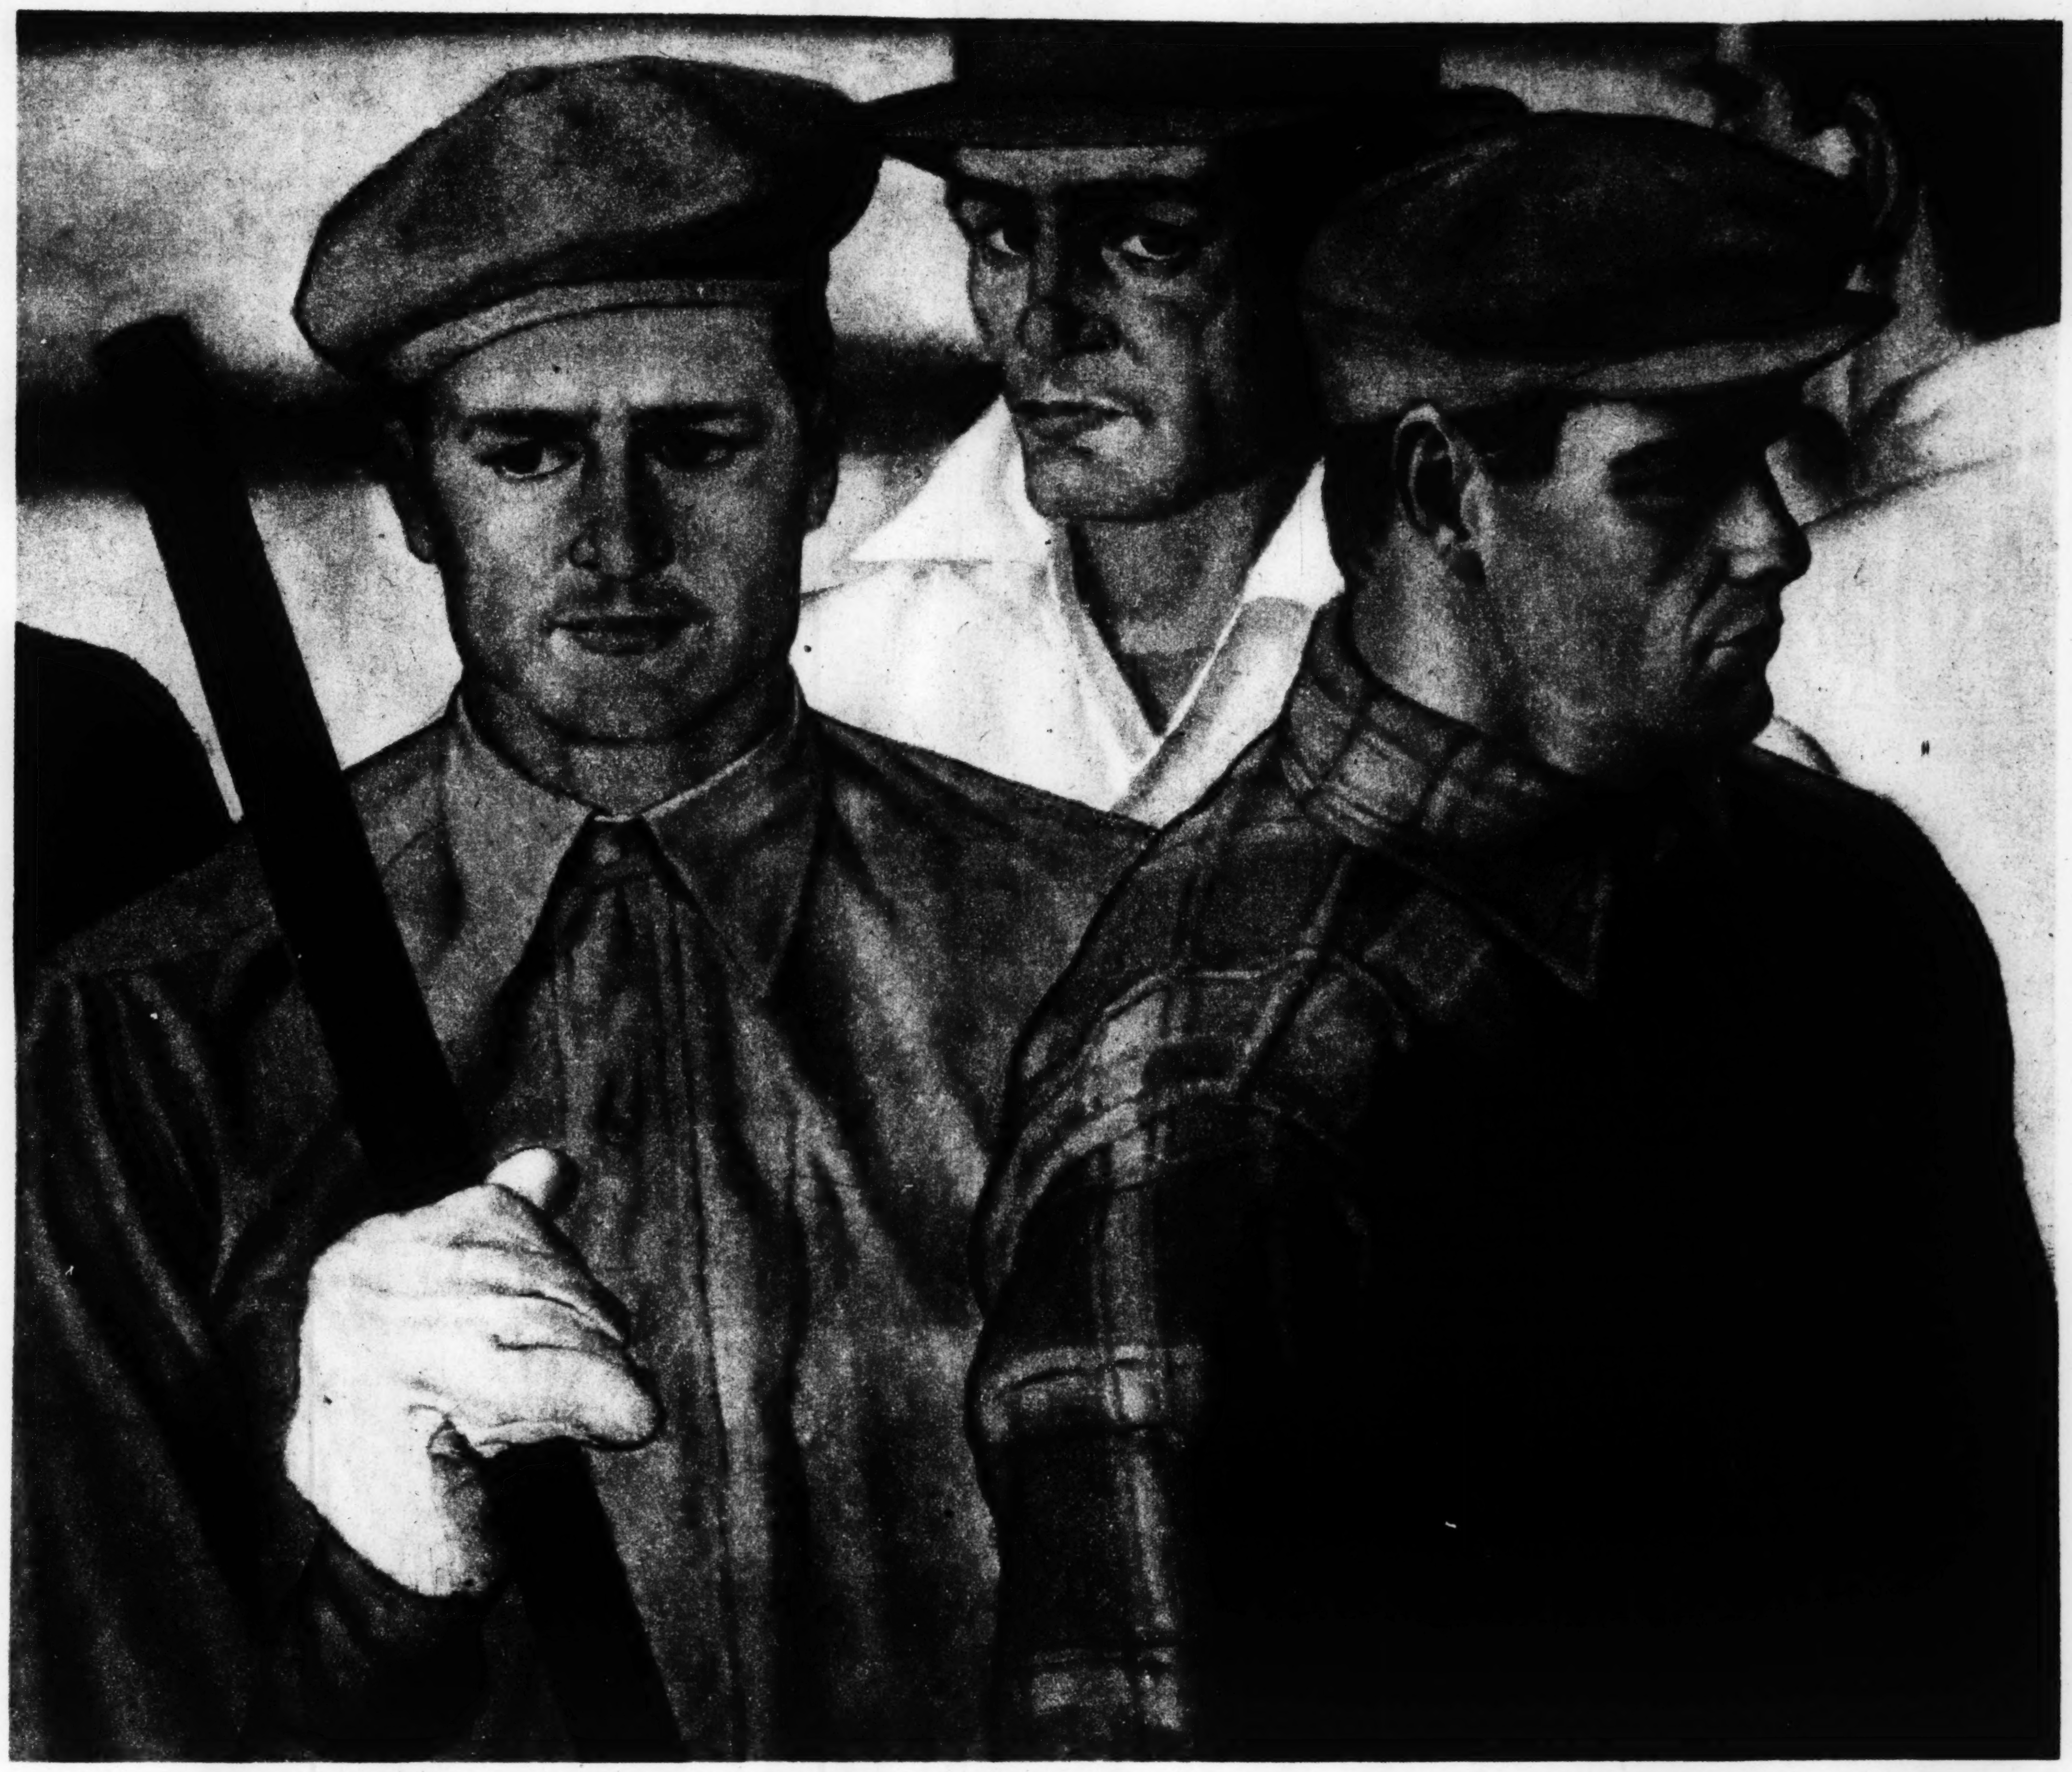
Sunday February 4, 1934—Supplement of the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Magazine

What the CWA Artists Are Producing

First Canvases Turned In by the 29 St. Louis Painters Who Are Now on the Federal Payroll.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



"Workers," by Kenneth Miller.

ARTISTS all over the country are stretching canvases, blending colors, wielding palette knives and brushes with a new hope—for many the first hope in four dreary years of depression. The Federal Government in Washington, specifically the Civil Works Administration, has turned art patron and is commissioning competent and deserving artists from Maine to California.

Here in St. Louis this phase of the CWA program has produced its first crop of canvases from 29 artists who are on the Federal payroll. Three of the first group of paintings are shown on this page, three which are more or less typical of the work that has been done. Typical in that they reproduce aspects of contemporary life in the city around us, and typical, too, in their high level of interest.

In charge of the project is Louis La Beaume, president of the board of the City Art Museum. His province covers the four States of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri and in that territory he has 140 men and women at work. What he has said to them all—and even this has been a suggestion rather than a request—was, "Paint the American scene."

While for the most part these artists are at work on their own individual canvases, several are planning or have already begun murals in public buildings—schools and city. In St. Louis Gisella Loeffler, who has won a wide reputation for her imaginative studies of children, is working on a mural decoration for the dining room of the Elias Michael School for Crippled Children. La Beaume has suggested that murals might well find a place in the new Municipal Auditorium.

All the pictures will be nominally the property of the Government. But La Beaume and the CWA in Washington are not too concerned over what may ultimately happen to them, since the objective is two-fold. That is, on the one hand economic—to distribute purchasing power where it is most needed, and on the other to foster the cultural life of the nation.

For the most part this program has won praise from all sides. Very wisely the CWA has not allowed control of the project to fall into the hands of any school or academy or group. There is room, as the idea has been carried out, for artists of every shade and kind, from the ultra-modern to the conservative.

It is only necessary that their competence—their skill—as painters be approved by an informal jury. The names of the members of this jury, appointed by La Beaume, have been carefully kept secret for the reason that otherwise they would in all probability be besieged by everyone who ever took a high school course in art. The pay is attractive enough—ranging from twenty-five dollars or thirty dollars a week to forty dollars—to keep the chairs in La Beaume's waiting room well filled.

The United States Government is not the first to undertake such a venture. Mexico, after the revolution, commissioned many of her artists, at the wages a good plumber would receive, to cover public buildings with mural paintings. One of the results of that experiment was the discovery of Rivera and Orozco, who are generally recognized today as among the foremost artists in their field. The paintings of these two men have drawn many tourists to Mexico. With several thousand artists at work in the United States—the Government is spending $2,000,000 on this project—there is the hope and the chance of a similar discovery in this country.

The Traditionally Reticent Spanish Girl Sets Out to GET HER MAN

And the "Maids' Club," an Organization of Business and Professional Women, Lays Its Plans in Thorough-Going Fashion.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MADRID.

HERE in Spain kings and parliaments and premiers may fall, but there was one institution—so everyone assumed—that would go on forever. The convention of courtship and marriage, as it has come down virtually unchanged for centuries, was as solid, in its entrenched conservatism, as Spain's rock of Gibraltar.

But now in this department of life, too, a rebellion has occurred. A group of girls here in Madrid have formed an organization, the Maids' Club, which has as its avowed purpose a frontal attack on the male population of the city. No more tactical skirmishing in the old tradition! Go out and get 'em! This last might well be the motto of the new club. And to say that Madrid is shocked is putting it mildly.

For until the present the technique of courtship was almost as rigidly prescribed as though it had been fixed by law. Mama, or a suitable chaperon, took daughter walking in the late afternoon, at that pleasant hour of prolonged sunset. The parade of mamas and daughters, hundreds of them, was one of the sights of Madrid. If a young man was attracted to daughter, he followed mama and daughter to their home. The next step was to get permission to call. And the young man didn't seek that permission unless his intentions were pretty serious. After a series of formal calls he asked mama and papa for daughter's hand. That is the venerable formula.

But the Maids' Club! Their method is something different. The first thing to do, these girls decided, was to get some good publicity in the Spanish press in order to let the marriageable men know of the new order and above all to get their pictures published. This was accomplished in a clever way—by electing themselves beauty queens, one queen representing every Government Ministry, and posing around a table as though they were holding a Cabinet meeting.

The idea went over in a big way, for Spanish men are primarily interested in three things, and the first two of them are politics and womanly beauty. (Bullfighting is the third). Dona Ana Maria was proclaimed "Miss Public Works," because she is a stenographer at the Ministry of Public Works. A rather bellicose little damsel became "Miss War." There was also a "Miss Labor," a "Miss Navy," a "Miss Industry," and so on down the line.

Any Madrid girl under 30 years of age, who is considered attractive, who has a position or a profession, who is "formal" and looking for a husband, is eligible to the Maids' Club, provided she is introduced by a member of the club, and is elected by all the members. For girls from 27 to 30 years old the dues are slightly higher than for the rest, because they are considered "harder to get married." Any member who "captures" a member of the Bachelors' Club, a group of confirmed woman haters, is exempt from paying dues.

"The ruling about having a job or a profession is to convince men that we are independent and that we are not out merely to try to get someone to support us," explained Senorita Guillermina Lopez, secretary. "Of course, the regulation does not apply to girls who are students."

The chief test of whether a girl is "formal" or not seems to be whether she will accompany a man alone after dark, as for example to a show, a dance or a restaurant. Any girl who does this in Spain is considered "informal" and is looked down upon by good society—she has no place in the Maids' Club, which is a "formal" organization.

The purpose of the club, as defined in Article 1 of the Constitution, is to "endeavor by all means possible to help its members contract marriage within two years." Another article makes it obligatory for members to "inculcate a matrimonial sentiment and a profound disrespect toward every enemy of marriage."

And here's optimism in the final article:

"The club will be dissolved when all its members have contracted matrimony. And the funds that may be left in the treasury will be used to defray the expenses of obtaining the divorce of any member dissatisfied with her marital state."

Another objective, as stated in the Constitution, is to "guard the good name and reputation of the members" and to "protect them from any incorrect acts of men."

First of all, the senoritas seek to become acquainted with eligible men, and next to melt the hearts of these eligible men. There is no better way to do this, they have found, than to lure their prey to their lair and entertain it with tea, drinks and dancing. Every Thursday evening all unmarried men have a standing invitation to visit their clubrooms. There is a nominal entrance fee (not exacted of specially invited guests) to help defray the cost of an orchestra and the drinks, and to keep out "bums."

There is something rather agreeable to bachelors, no matter how hardened they may be, about sitting down at a table and being served tea or beer or cocktails by smiling young things with dark southern eyes. And after the drinks, designed to take the men off their guard, comes the music and dancing. The orchestra plays mostly jazz, since the Maids' Club strives for modernity, but there are tangoes, rumbas, and even old-time pasodobles, too.

The war against bachelordom is also waged on other fronts. There are frequent fiestas and hikes to the country to which unmarried men are invited. Discussion of politics with unmarried men is prohibited, since in Spain there is no surer way to start a spat. If one girl becomes attracted to a certain man, her fellow-members aid her in planning her offensive. It is against the rules for one member to steal the sweetheart of another. Long engagements, common in Spain, are frowned upon and combated.

The club is business-like, since most of the members of the executive council are employed, or have been, in business offices. Fines for infringements of the regulations are methodically imposed, according to the gravity of the crime, and dues are collected on the first of every month. Members who violate a rule are sometimes sentenced to such severe punishments as going without lipstick for a specified period, or not dancing at a certain number of parties, in lieu of paying a fine.

Only the most modern girls in Spain, of course, would think of joining the Maids' Club. It is an expression of the new emancipated womanhood, which has been nurtured by the Republic. The more conservative classes find such ideas terribly shocking, for "formal" though the club may be, it is a sweeping departure from the established way of looking for a husband in Spain. The old-fashioned girl combines church-going with a matrimonial mission, for she parades with her mother along the Paseo del Prado or the Castellana in the hope that some wealthy young or old man will see her and become entranced with her charms. Nor would this class of senorita stoop so low as to work, poor

PHOENIX, Arizona.

THE Lost Dutchman mine, hidden somewhere in the fastnesses of Superstition Mountain, 50 miles east of here, is calling again to treasure hunters. It has called so insistently of late and has lured so many amateur prospectors into this formidable region that a local organization has been compelled to organize one of the strangest expeditions ever heard of in the Southwest—an expedition to teach treasure hunters how to hunt.

So, on February 11 and 12, hundreds, maybe a thousand or more—will assemble here for a mass attack on the mystery that has shrouded the lost bonanza for half a century. They will try to find the lost gold mine if possible. If not, they will at least try to learn how to look for a gold mine.

The rising market price of gold and the many, many yarns that have gripped the imaginations of men—backed all too often by tragic truth—are the direct causes of this strange expedition.

Promoting the trip are The Dons, a service club at Phoenix, composed of men who are business and social leaders in the city. Dr. Robert J. Hannelly, professor of mathematics in Phoenix Junior College and president of The Dons, will be in active charge. As early as January 1, Professor Hannelly said, more than 500 persons had signified their intention of going on the expedition, and he confidently expects the number to reach 1000 or more. Telegraph news agencies having carried brief advance dispatches of the forthcoming expedition to all parts of the country, letters from every state have been pouring in to The Dons from men and women whose yearnings for adventure and gold have been stirred.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine will recall an article published in the issue of November 15, 1931, telling something of the legends and facts connected with the famous Lost Dutchman Mine of Superstition Mountain, of the dangers, and of the lives that have been lost in the search for the hidden treasure lode there.

That one article, says Professor Hannelly, has been responsible for nearly 300 letters to the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, the Mayor of Phoenix and even to the Governor of the State, from readers who succumbed to the fascination of the story and acquired "gold fever." Furthermore, at least eight individuals are known to have read it and headed west, each to go on a private gold search. All this before The Dons became interested in the matter at all, Professor Hannelly said, indicates popular response to news of that sort. Now that news of the organized party has been scattered abroad through the Associated Press and similar agencies, the town may be swamped with hopeful women and men.

Two boys down in Texas read that Post-Dispatch article. At once they pooled their meager assets to buy a decrepit car and start for Arizona to find the lost mine. They had no map, no clews, no promises from anybody—just confidence and plenty of time. They might have gone all the way to the awesome old mountain, too, except for the fact that they camped one night in a dry wash, the bed of a floodtime river. Before dawn a mountain freshet fell; water swept down upon them so suddenly as to destroy their camp, wash their car and all their belongings away, barely allowing them to escape with their lives. The two then went into one of the Federal transient camps in Arizona to wait for another grubstake before attacking the mountain again.

A man and his wife came out from St. Louis, purchased packs and miners' outfit, and went into the mountains, and no more has been heard of them. As that was a year ago, they presumably came out and went on back home, probably none the richer save in experience.

"About half of the letters we received stated that the writers would soon be come to Arizona," says Professor Hannelly. "Men have already come from St. Louis, Boston, Chicago and Seattle, and at least one from Canada. Some had read the magazine article, some had seen the brief news items carried by the Associated Press or United Press. Most of them are very serious about finding the gold, too.

"We want to make it clear that our trip, conducted by the Dons, is not in the profound hope of finding the lost mine, but rather to dispel the fanciful legends and yarns and fears that have been built up about it, and to acquaint people with the dangers of prospecting alone. It is astounding how far-reaching an effect a lost-treasure story, true or not, can have on people. This one seems to have gripped many thousands of readers.

"You see, 10 prospectors are known to have lost their lives in the wilds of Superstition Mountain, not counting the 40-odd who were massacred at one time by Apache Indians. One of these deaths occurred as recently as three years ago. The victim was Adolf Ruth, 66 years old, a pensioned Government employe from Washington, D. C., who had come west excited about finding the treasure. Ignoring all advice about the waterless, deceiving mountain and its dangers, he went in alone.

"Apparently, somebody murdered him, probably for the map he carried. His skull, with a hole in it, was found six months later by an archeological party, which also found his body.

"Other men have been murdered on that mountain; but the gravest danger is the fact that inexperienced outdoorsmen can so easily become lost in its maze of pinnacles and canyons and crags. The mountain is an expansive thing, about 20 miles across and 30 or 40 miles long, really a small range. Since it is in the desert, water is scarce indeed. It is very rough and wild, rocky and thorny and brushy — no place for a tenderfoot.

"But a surprising number of persons, lured by the tales of lost gold, keep going in or wanting to go in. Thus we have planned our expedition — to invite all who care to come along, at no profit or cost to anybody, to go on a two-day hike into the place, see why it is dangerous, learn from competent guides and others just how to tackle it alone, what provisions to carry and what sort of rock and soil are likely to contain ore. If any of them find pay dirt as a result of our expedition, well and good, but so far as The Dons are concerned, ours is purely a public service, with only an educational aim in mind."

The fascination of Superstition Mountain dates back almost 100 years, to the time in the 1840s when Don Miguel Peralta, a Mexican grandee and rancher in old Sonora, acquired ownership of a rich gold mine there. Arizona was a part of Mexican Sonora then. Don Miguel's illegitimate son, fleeing from his father's wrath for having attacked his own half-sister, accidentally found the mine, so legend tells. With nuggets from it he was able to buy immunity from punishment, although he himself was drowned in a flooding river soon after.

Don Miguel worked the mine until the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo was signed, in 1848, ceding what is now Arizona to the United States. Then it was that Don Miguel sent 40 men with mules to the distant mountain for a last big grab at the rich yellowish ore. But Apache Indians swooped down and murdered all of these men except two—two boys who, wounded, crawled away.

Old Spanish spur, stirrup and bayonet, believed to be relics of Peralta's lost expedition into Superstition Mountain.

REMAINS of that legendary expedition—which is really somewhat more than legendary—still are found occasionally today. Old Mexican spurs, bayonets, metal pieces of harness, rusted picks and shovels, mementoes of other men who were lured by gold.

Years later, a German named Jacob Walz found the mine by accidentally stumbling upon the two Mexicans who had come back with a friend to work the diggings. Walz murdered all three of them, dropped their bodies in a nearby ravine and covered them with rocks. He confessed this on his deathbed in Phoenix in 1892.

He confessed, too, that he had also murdered three other men who learned the mine's location. One of them was his own nephew. He had sent for the nephew to come from Germany to help him, but the lad, stirred to careless enthusiasm by the sight of such great riches, aroused the old man's suspicions. One day, therefore, Walz put a bullet through the boy's forehead, tied a chain to his neck and dragged him to a shallow grave.

Jacob Walz described these grewsome episodes to his one friend, Dick Holmes of Phoenix, as he lay dying. Holmes later went to the site of the nephew's killing, unearthed the body, found the bullet hole in the skull and even the length of chain around the neck. The skull was exhibited for some years by a physician at Tempe, Arizona.

Walz tried to tell Holmes how to go to the mine, but did not make his directions clear. Holmes spent the remainder of his life in a fruitless search for it, and finally died at his home in Phoenix, in 1930.

Once the skeleton of a woman was found in a cave far up on the slope of Superstition Mountain. No clew ever indicated who or what she was.

Several responsible persons, including at least one present officer in the Phoenix Dons Club, Calvin E. Blaine, a railroad traffic counselor at Phoenix, have been fired upon by unseen persons while hiking or prospecting on Superstition.

"I was just a little way in on the west end of the mountain with a friend," Blaine relates. "We were hunting deer. We had always scoffed at the tales about dangers there, although, of course, we knew better than to go far enough in to get lost or be without adequate provisions.

"For no reason at all, somebody started shooting at us, from the side of a slope across a canyon.

"They seemed to be using high-powered rifles. We fired back, but it didn't do any good, because in all those rocks we couldn't see anybody to shoot at.

"We squatted behind some boulders, and every time we moved into view all afternoon, bullets came zinging at us. We were very scared. Late in the twilight we ventured out and went on down the slope to our car, without being further molested. We reported to the Sheriff, and he sent deputies in, but they could find nothing."

This experience, and others very similar, have been duplicated time and again there, and news of them quite naturally has given rise to many fantastic conjectures and yarns. "They say" that somebody has found the mine and is trying to guard it. "They say" that some crank up there hopes every prospector may have the true map, and tries to take it by murdering those who come in. And no folk tale travels as rapidly, or snowballs into such mountainous size, as those having to do with hidden treasure.

THAT'S why the awesome, bewildering, mysterious old Superstition Mountain of late has come literally to dominate the legends and lore of all Southern Arizona, to intrigue many hundreds of otherwise practical persons. And that is why The Dons have decided to "do something about it."

Greatest fuel was added to the fire of excitement and conjecture, of course, when that last murder was committed there, that of Adolf Ruth, Washingtonian.

Ruth's son, Dr. Erwin C. Ruth, had been in Mexico on business, and there had acquired a map from descendants of the old Peralta family. It reputedly showed the location of the lost mine.

Dr. Ruth did not take it seriously, but his more credulous father did. The elder Ruth took his car and headed for Arizona with the map.

He arrived in June, the beginning of the hot desert summer. He was warned that a lack of water in the mountains, even for one day, would likely cause death, and that no food could be found there save an occasional rare bit of game. And he was told, also, of more sinister dangers there, of men who had been killed.

But he went on in, went alone and

Discovered Near a Minnesota Town, It Has Occupied the Attention of an Historian for 25 Years.

Swedish battle-axes found in Minnesota.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

ALMOST 600 years ago a Norse explorer whose party had somehow wandered down into Minnesota, thousands of miles from home, recorded on a slab of limestone the massacre of 10 of his companions. He wrote in runes, the alphabet of the Nordic priests.

When a book was published two years ago in the remote village of Ephraim, Wisconsin, not very far from where the stone was found, it excited comment in newspapers throughout America. Despite its scholarly language, this book, "The Kensington Stone," showed how its author was attracted by the forgotten Norse explorer, five centuries dead in those unfriendly forests. Hjalmar Rued Holand has lived in a magic, timeless world ever since the runestone entered his life one day in 1907.

Holand is a quiet man, a careful scholar; he has always made a hobby of ancient Scandinavian history. But when he encountered the runestone, 27 years ago, he was just investigating some facts about the modern Norwegian immigrants in Minnesota. It was at that time that he happened to hear of the monolith which lay beside the granary of a farmyard near Kensington, Minnesota. He heard its story.

In the summer of 1898 Olof Ohman, a farmer, was grubbing stumps in an uncleared corner of his land. One tree, an ancient, stunted poplar, was very troublesome. Its roots, he discovered, were tightly grasping a large, flat stone. When he cut them away and went on with his work, Ohman's little boy discovered that the stone was covered with strange writing.

The news of the discovery spread through the neighborhood. Curious neighbors hunted in vain for buried treasure and persuaded Ohman to send the find to scholars who could read its marks. They read, wrote and differed. Their bickering became a matter of interest throughout the reading world and the question they argued has often come up since then. Ohman was accused of forgery. Disgusted with the "lying runestone," he threw it face downward beside his barn. It lay there nine years, "a fair doorstep and a tolerable place to straighten nails." When Hjalmar Holand came along it was almost forgotten.

The spell worked immediately. Holand took the stone away and for 25 years spent almost all his time trying to solve its mystery. (The stone is now on exhibition at Alexandria, Minn.) To decipher the inscription was comparatively simple. "We are 8 Goths (Swedes) and 22 Norwegians," it read, "on an exploration journey from Vinland over the west. We had camp beside two skerries (islets) one day-journey north from this stone. We were out fishing one day. After we came home we found 10 of our men red with blood and dead. Ave Maria. Save from evil. We have 10 of our party by the sea to look after our ships, 14 day-journeys from this island. Year 1362."

The 67 words of dialect which made up this statement may not seem a sufficiently important piece of work for a man to give over his life to. But of the hundreds of runic monoliths, all but two of them found in Europe, this is one of the very longest. Holand, convinced it was no fake, published his views. From then on he bore the burden of querulous accusations of ignorance and misrepresentation. But his enthusiasm and the private joy which rings a continuous melody through his pages, show he has been repaid. Skeptical criticism has failed to trouble his spirit. And he has pieced together a fascinating story, with only a clew to go on. It is somewhat as follows:

Magnus, King of Norway and Sweden, was imbued with the missionary zeal of a crusader. He baptized hordes of Russians. He established settlements. In 1350 the Black Death prevented his resuming his program in Russia. At the same time he heard with horror that his own colonists in Greenland were falling away from the church. So he sent Paul Knutson, eminent Norwegian statesman, to Greenland with some of his foremost nobles, soldiers and priests.

WHEN the missionary band reached Greenland after five years' delay, Knutson must have been chagrined to find the Scandinavians gone. This he might have expected; a merchant had returned some time before, saying that in the western settlement he found "neither Christian nor heathen, only some wild cattle and sheep." Apparently, according to later evidence, the inhabitants had picked up and gone away to live with some Eskimos.

Knutson decided to continue westward. He must find the renegades and reform them. He pushed on to Vinland (probably New England), combed the involuted coast line for several years, and finally decided to circumnavigate America, little suspecting it was America.

Accordingly, he sailed north, turned to follow the southern coast line of Hudson's Bay and arrived at the Nelson River mouth, where the coast swings north, before deciding that he would never sail all around the "island." Perhaps in order to avoid the dreary coastal voyage on the return, Knutson decided to investigate the possibilities of a short cut, by river and portage to the St. Lawrence. Whatever his motives, he left 10 men to guard the small vessels and traveled southward over land with the rest. They came "14 day-journeys" through the wilderness.

Now, a day journey (thagh rese) is not a day's walk. It was a medieval term used by sailors and meant about 75 miles. So that the trip must have taken them down to Kensington, Minnesota. The lake with the two skerries has been identified conclusively by the finding of holes drilled into boulders; presumably for insertion of iron rings used as mooring tackle.

Other interesting corroborative finds appeared from time to time during Holand's investigation: iron weapons, ax-heads and spear points. These he

The Sisters Who Are Bootblacking Their Way Across the United States

HOUSTON, Texas.

IF A THIEF out in San Diego, California, hadn't robbed them, June and Martha Reed would be in Columbia University this winter, but as it is they won't matriculate until next fall. At any rate these two Rockford, Illinois, girls are a "shining" example of ingenuity and perseverance.

Since last June these two young women have shined shoes all the way from Rockford to the Pacific coast, and now are shining right back across the continent to New York.

They have already worked back to Houston, and although they enjoy travel they plan to stay here at least a month. For Houston is a rainy city, and water and mud do stimulate the demand for shines. They probably will hug the gulf coast on into Florida.

June and Martha started adventuring just outside St. Louis, which was the first big city they visited. Or rather, June did. Martha was an interested spectator to this first encounter, which concerned a handsome bus driver who said that St. Louis was his home. The two girl high school graduates were passengers in his vehicle, and he was much attracted by their unique costumes.

"He stared at us, mostly at me, all that day," June tells. "He was nice looking, too, and had on the duckiest uniform, like an army officer!

"After a while we were his only passengers. He began talking to us and learned our story. Sometimes Martha and I put on the tremolo stop—you know, get that quivery note in our voices—because the audience likes it. He liked it, but it got him sentimental. He pulled out to the side of the road on a lonely spot.

"That's the first time I ever had a man park a 24-passenger bus in order to play Romeo. What he had to say was about like this:

" 'Miss June, I make $150 a month and have a little saved. You are a pretty girl and need a home. I'll be good to you and love you. What say you and I get married and stop all this shine racket?' "

June Reed is still single, and if she stays that way until she's 90, nobody can ever say she didn't have a chance. Note one other significant fact: the bus driver included a gentlemanly offer of marriage in his amorous approach. Not all the advances made to June and Martha on their transcontinental shining expedition have been so inclusive.

"I lost all my profits on my man," laments Martha, "and have no fond memories to lock in my heart, either. I'm green-eyed at June, with her handsome bus driver.

"I was shining a man's shoes in Los Angeles. He was sort of sleek looking. In fact, he didn't need a shine. He had a line of patter that rapidly worked into that confidential tone—you know. I shined fast, but he talked faster. All honey-voiced.

"He leaned over and whispered to me, 'You look good, girlie. I'm taking a shine to you.' " Her face was a perfect study in contempt.

"What did I do to him?" she continued. "I lost my profits on that shine. I did plenty!

"I stuck my dauber in the blackest polish I had, sopped it good in black, creamy paste. And before he knew what hit him I had smeared it all over his nose and mouth and eyes and collar and coat and vest and trousers, and I pushed him off my stool and hit him over the head with it."

And when the cop dashed into the guffawing crowd and learned Martha's story, he bawled the man out and made him pay Martha for the shine under threat of arrest.

Martha is 24, and wears her bright red beret cocked over at an angle that hides her right ear but allows a curl to peek out saucily. June is baby sister, age 22. They are orphans. They lived, until they finished high school, with an aunt and uncle in Rockford. Then, as the depression persisted and college got no nearer, they decided to do something about it.

"Everyone asks us why we took to shining shoes," Martha says. "They told us girls don't shine shoes.

"Well, that's what we reasoned. They don't, for a fact. Maybe it's a new field. We put on spotless uniforms, as becoming as we could design. Bright knitted caps, white silk blouses, blue trousers with shiny silver buttons in front."

She went on to tell, ruthlessly, the secrets of their system: how they polish a man's pride and his shoes in the same gesture, how they tell a customer to pay just what he likes, but never give change. Martha and June have hitch-hiked, but they have never raised a thumb on the highway nor crawled into an empty box car.

"Bus drivers are our weakness," Martha explains. "Oh, no, they don't all propose marriage, but they all seem good fellows, big-brotherly, you know. By the time we get through shining their boots and leggings we have usually talked ourselves into a free ride. It's the protective instinct, I guess."

When someone broke into an auto camp in San Diego and stole all their possessions, they talked their way into borrowed ballet dresses, got a one-night vaudeville stand, earned $10 and the disapproval of the audience—and started out again.

They were once arrested, but that ended by their shining shoes for the entire police department. They once made as much as $12.40 in a day, but gave $10 to a distressed fellow artist, a 6-year-old Negro boy, so dirty he could get no trade.

They say they have glorified their art. And in September they expect to reach Columbia University, New York City—still shining. Meanwhile, they are getting a liberal education—free.

Germany's Laws for Sterilizing the Unfit

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

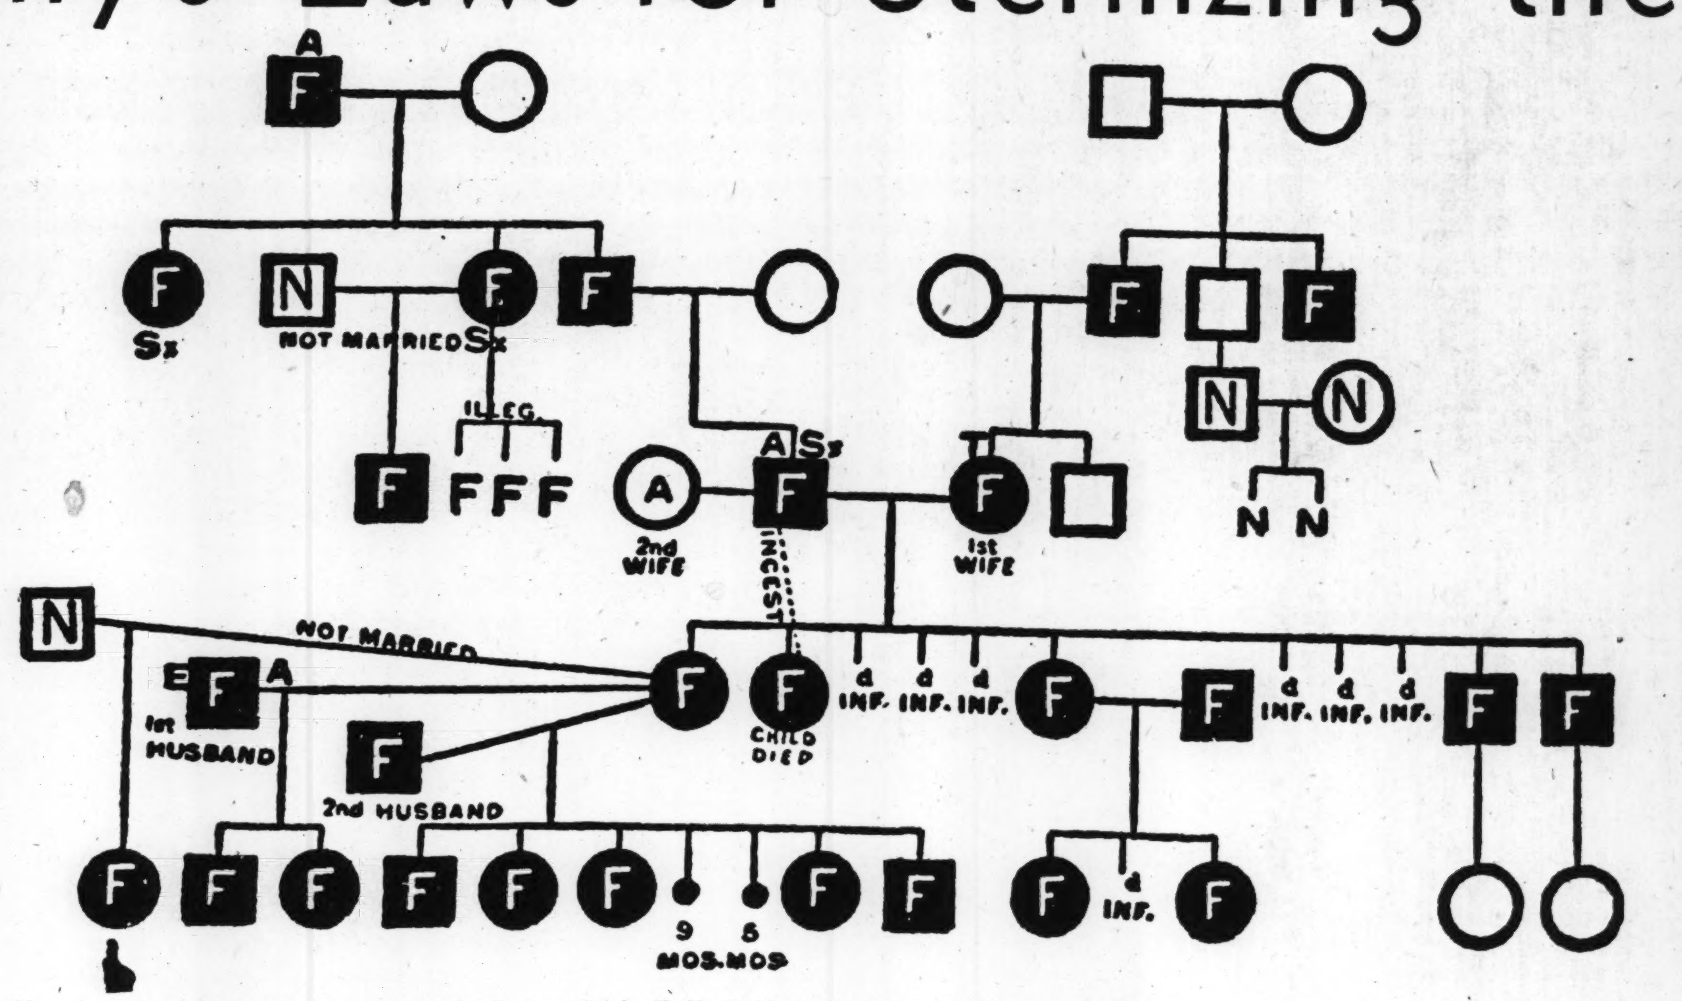

Chart drawn from data on the history of one family, compiled by H. H. Goddard, showing the heredity of feeble-mindedness. The squares represent males, the circles females. The black squares and circles indicate feeble-mindedness; A, the alcoholic; E, the epileptic; d. in f. means "died in infancy."

ON NEW YEAR'S DAY the German Reich inaugurated a set of laws designed to "purify" the entire population, cut the cost of social welfare by several billions of marks and create a race bred only from healthy specimens of Teutonic manhood and womanhood. All who have inherited disease or a tendency to become diseased or a known capacity to transmit disease to coming generations will henceforth be made incapable of bearing or conceiving children. Enforcement of the laws has been delayed until the spring, pending the perfection of the machinery for doing so, but, according to Nazi officials, the Government is determined to go through with them.

Germany is the first large nation to make this experiment in eugenics, which has been urged by some scientists and opposed by other groups for years. The new legislation is therefore the cause of a world-wide dispute.

The sterilization laws are not, however, the first that have been put into effect. Denmark, Switzerland and 27 states in America have somewhat similar legislation on their books. But in the United States, California is the only one which has ever attempted to make them effective. In that State 8504 operations have been legally performed. Only 16,066 have been performed in the entire country.

The German sterilization laws are only part of a program of social legislation more extensive and daring than any ever before attempted. Three of the dominant features are the marriage bonuses, the taxes on celibacy and the sterilization section. But other phases take in unemployment and reforms of many kinds.

The sterilization laws, a relatively small part of this program, are of such world-wide importance because they may help to determine an extremely controversial issue. They are more or less in line with a principle supported by many reputable biologists, based on certain laws of genetics and mathematics. Never before has this principle been subject to such wide possibility of proof.

The immediate cause for the new legislation is traceable to the 1932 census report. This census showed that not only was Germany's population falling off at an alarming rate, but that the urban population, especially among the upper intellectual groups, had almost ceased to reproduce itself. In Berlin, for example, there are only .9 children for each married couple. In other words, as the Vossische Zeitung, a Nazi daily, pointed out, "childless marriages have become almost the rule in Berlin." The Berlin condition, emphasized by the fact that the rural population was also decreasing, brought about comparison with the vital statistics of other countries. It was found that, while Berlin has an annual birth rate of 8 per 1000, New York has 16, London 15, Tokio 20 and Moscow 25. For a nation with aspirations toward military parity, such figures indicate impending calamity.

It is necessary for a nation to have a birth rate of 3.4 per married family in order to maintain the present population, according to the estimates of Director Burgdoerfer of the Reich Statistical Office. Germany has only 2.7, and its birth rate per thousand has fallen more than 50 per cent, from 36 per thousand to 15 per thousand, since 1900. Italy, Poland and the Balkans are increasing, although at an ever declining rate. And Russia adds 3,000,000 to its total population every year.

The new National Socialist administration was faced at once with the necessity of doing something to stem the receding tide of births. At the same time, imbued with notions of "rassenpflege" (race betterment), it decided to achieve a two-fold object by increasing the quality of the population along with the quantity. It is here that eugenic principles and sterilization enter in.

What Is Involved in the Government's Aim to "Purify the Population" and the Plans for Enforcing It.

"THE Eugenic Predicament," by Dr. S. J. Holmes, published some weeks ago, states the case for eugenics in its most up-to-date form. The author is a professor at the University of California, and his book is a review of more than a hundred of the most significant statistical studies made in recent years.

"If brains are not inherited," Dr. Holmes says, "there is small chance of acquiring them . . ." The quality of the human mind has shown no noteworthy improvement since the beginning of historic times, Dr. Holmes adds. Criminals and vagrants, whose rate of reproduction is low, are doing mankind more good by restricting the birth rate of mental defectives than professional men and college-bred business women who practice birth control. Only about 50 per cent of the women who are graduated from American colleges ever marry. The sons of Unitarian ministers have a one to seven chance of getting into Who's Who, while the sons of unskilled laborers have only one chance in 48,000. But most startling of all, perhaps, is Dr. Holmes' statement that one out of every 22 Americans is likely to spend some part of his or her life in a lunatic asylum.

Dr. Wilhelm Frick, German Minister of the Interior.

But to begin at the beginning, the science of eugenics, if, as some question, it is a science, is derived from that branch of biology known as genetics. Dr. Holmes shows how the two are related, and how both tie up with statistics, the study of mathematical probabilities. Genetics, incidentally, was founded by a Catholic abbot, Gregor Mendel, in the nineteenth century.

The inheritance of physical characteristics and mental traits follows certain laws and is the result of a complicated mechanical process which takes place when a male sperm cell unites with a female egg cell. Chromosomes, the thread-like microscopic parts of the two cells, combine and the genes, which are sub-microscopic parts of the chromosomes and contain all the elements which make the offspring exactly what it is to become, also combine. The rules which govern these combinations are so complicated that it is possible that science may never be able to show exactly how they work. Therefore it deals with the total results and recognizes a large amount of pure luck in the combinations. It is possible, nevertheless, to tell what the results will probably be in certain marriages. Thus, if two feeble-minded persons marry, their children are certain to include some feeble-minded ones. And it is possible to predict that a genius who has a large number of children will probably have a descendant eventually who is also a genius—or a near genius. These are all matters of probability.

Dr. Holmes has gone into the subject of degenerate stocks rather intensively. He describes numerous studies made recently, which show that children who are insane, feeble-minded, epileptic, or subject to certain diseases, usually have ancestors who possessed these diseases. He shows that mental defectives tend to marry their own kind and have a great many more children than other sections of the population. He indicates that it is impossible to restrain such persons from having children by legislating against their marriage, since they are extremely promiscuous, sometimes even begetting children in asylums where they are incarcerated.

A STUDY of English pauper families which came out since the publication of Holmes' book tells even more. It shows that many of the people who have in the past depended on charity in England belong to families which have been on village pauper lists for centuries. They often intermarried, had large quantities of offspring, and produced a large percentage of the inmates of prisons and defectives in asylums to the present day.

If the persons who compose such families represented a fixed proportion of the population, there would be no danger in the fact of their existence. But since the upper intellectual groups have had fewer and fewer children during every year of the twentieth century and an increase in the number of defectives has gone on at the same time, especially owing to the improvement in medical science and institutional charities, a very real threat to the future of Western civilization exists, according to Dr. Holmes and other eugenists.

Seen in this light, the statement recently made by German Minister of the Interior Dr. Wilhelm Frick has some basis in scientific findings. "Modern humanitarianism," the Minister proclaimed, which allows the weak and degenerate to propagate their kind is nothing less than cruelty to the nation.

New York State spends almost as much annually on institutions for the insane alone as it spends for public education. Dr. Burgdoerfer says Germany spends $370,000,000 only to house defectives. In Oklahoma the sterilization laws invoked the other day apply to criminals as well as the insane; the number immediately affected is estimated at 2000.

The arguments for eugenic legislations have found willing listeners in several foreign countries, notably Holland and Norway. The latter is now considering legislation similar to that which has been adopted in Germany.

On the other hand, many able thinkers decry the eugenic legislation which has already been enacted and employ their talents to prevent any extension of eugenic principles. In a recent article in the Illustrated London News, G. K. Chesterton sums up this point of view as follows:

"IT IS totally impossible to argue from the fact of physical inheritance, to any sort of result other than the very simplest physical features. . . . All the things worth having, such as health and beauty and happiness and virtue, are all, without exception, things produced by a particular proportion between various things. . . .

"Mental sanity, like bodily beauty, is not a separate positive concrete character that can be carried like a pattern of big bones or a racial coloring or black curly hair. The question about any individual, born of any family, is not whether he inherits elements from that family; as no doubt he does. It is . . . whether 'the elements were so mixed in him' as to produce success or failure by our special standard of spiritual values. . . . The son of a sane man is often mad because he has right scruples in the wrong place. The son of a handsome man is often ugly because he has the right features in the wrong face."

Chesterton omits mention of one of the most forceful arguments of the anti-eugenists. This attacks the foundations of many eugenic data by claiming that some of the most distinguished men would be eliminated from society by restriction of free mating, and that the population groups which have ceased to reproduce themselves are not spiritually the most desirable groups, but the ones which have achieved merely economic success. Proponents of this argument claim that membership in the alumni associations of American colleges, mention in the Social Register or a place in Who's Who, does not signify a propensity to be of any marked value to civilization in general.

The German legislative measures have included sterilization of the manifestly unfit, higher income taxes for bachelors and spinsters than for married couples, and loans to young cou-

A Grand Duke Sees the Living Past Join the Dead

Grand Duke Alexander of Russia has told for Post-Dispatch readers in "Once a Grand Duke" the story of his life, up to and including the World War and the Russian revolution. His present narrative, "Always a Grand Duke," completed just before he died recently, began with his escape from Russia, and his arrival in Paris. Now the former Russian dignitary, once a player in world affairs, becomes a spectator.

In succeeding installments he will give a series of brilliant pictures of a gay, mad world in which he made his way by his undoubted intelligence and by his keen knowledge of human nature.

This is the fifth installment.

The Danish Sisters Who Married Into Empires—Their Majesties, Alexandra of England and Marie of Russia—Grand Duke Alexander Recalls the Reunions at Copenhagen—When Czar Alexander Became Enthusiastic—The Faithful Cossacks—All Told in This, the Fifth Installment of "Always a Grand Duke."

THE Dowagers Alexandra and Marie both lived to be 80. When the elder of the two died, they buried Old England. When the younger followed three years later, the last of Imperial Russia became extinct. Both were Danish by birth and character. Had anyone called them Danish to their faces, both would have been mortally offended. Alexandra was British, more British than the Union Jack. Marie was Russian, more than the bells of Moscow. There is no end to the adaptability of a Danish Princess.

I could never think of them separately. Whenever people asked, "How is your mother-in-law?" I answered almost automatically, "She is fine, she has just received a lovely letter from her sister."

Not before the very end, not until the day when in the Cathedral of Copenhagen I saw her lying in her coffin, did it dawn on me that my poor mother-in-law had never been "fine," and that the 3000-odd letters received by her from her English sister—one each week, for a period of over 60 years—had made her realize on 3000-odd occasions the appalling difference between the two empires.

Dear Sandra

I send you my best thanks for your kind letter & for all your sympathy in the death of my dear Mother. She leaves a blank which can never be filled & the last link with my happy childhood has gone. But she, thank God, is at peace & is spared any further worries or sufferings & her death was a beautiful one, she went peacefully to sleep. I was so pleased to be able to send dear Xenia that little cottage at Frogmore, where she lives with her grandchildren & to help her in any way I could. With kind messages from my Wife

Believe me
George R.I.

King George's letter to Grand Duke Alexander on the death of Queen Alexandra.

Back in the 1860s the choice between the Prince of Wales and the Cesarevich was a toss-up. Both matches were highly desirable from the point of view of the Crown of Denmark. Both Princesses were sweet and attractive. A last-minute change in the plans of the respective Chancelleries could easily have sent Alexandra to St. Petersburg and chaos, and brought Marie to London and harmony. When they parted at the station in Copenhagen, Alexandra envied Marie: the Romanoffs were fantastically rich and there was no Queen Victoria in Russia.

The gods were not to blame: they went out of their way to warn Marie. Her fiance, the Cesarevich Nicholas Alexandrovich, died shortly after her arrival in St. Petersburg. A superstitious person would have rushed back home and tried to marry one of the 50 available heel-clicking German reigning princes. But there was her father, the King of Denmark, who expected his daughters to procure for his country what it had always lacked: a friendly fleet and a friendly army. The Danish Minister in St. Petersburg thought that not all was lost as yet. He rather fancied the new Cesarevich Alexander Alexandrovich. True enough the disappointed Princess hardly reached the elbow of her would-be bridegroom, but that was completely in accordance with the best traditions of the post-card eugenics; towering men and petite women. The reason for Russia's determination to have a Danish Princess on the throne of the Romanoffs remained unknown. Possibly our Minister of Foreign Affairs was anxious to insult the King of Prussia. As matchmakers, Russian diplomats had always been brave warriors.

AND so the marriage took place and my future mother-in-law missed her chance of escape. "It was written in the books," she said, but never complained. Once I suggested, when our funds were scarce and prospects gloomy, that fate had dealt unkindly with her, she thought I was crazy. She would not have swapped lives with her sister Alexandra for all the Rajahs of India and all the diamonds of South Africa.

She felt it was "foreordained" that they should live separated by a dynamite-charged continent for 54 years and by the scruples of democracy for the remaining eight. From 1863 to 1917 it was the sad duty of Marie to remember that not much love existed between the Bear and the Lion, not even in the hysterical three years of their war alliance. From 1917 to 1925 it had been constantly brought to the attention of Her Britannic Majesty that England had nothing to gain by extending too lavish a hospitality to the former Empress of Russia. What Heine said of another race can be applied to the British: "Fuer das Gewesene gibt er nichts." (He cares nothing for the past.)

It was fortunate for Alexandra that the opinions of Downing Street counting for naught in the great beyond; she could afford the luxury of a posthumous gesture: when her will was opened and read, it was discovered she had left most of her jewelry and a bit of money to her 77-year-old sister. She thought that her beloved son George, and daughter-in-law Mary, well provided for and living in surroundings of reasonable comfort, would understand her anxiety to help a despondent exile. They did.

On Christmas eve of 1925 there sat a tiny, prim lady in the writing room of a big house in Hvidore in Denmark. She held in her hands the list of people to whom she used to send a Christmas telegram, and she could not get it into her head that she must scratch out the name that headed the list.

"Even in 1917," she said, "when we were imprisoned by the Bolsheviks, I managed to send my telegram to England. I never failed to do it for 62 years."

The art of white lies may attract ambitious amateurs—witness the pathetic efforts of certain American chief executives—but it takes a craftsman to master its intricacies. Even in the ever-smiling official Europe of yesterday the two royal sisters of Denmark remained unsurpassed. When they went for their morning drive, Alexandra in Hyde Park, Marie along the Nevsky—it seemed that Marx had never written "Capital" and that the world still consisted entirely of their majesties' adoring subjects. Solemnity came to them by inheritance, but radiance through their own tireless efforts. Infinitely patient, they charmed when they wanted to rant, and the age-old system of spreading good cheer achieved the grandeur of a Brahman cult in their case.

"Splendid" and "fine" as used by them in their correspondence were code words denoting a proud refusal to confess even to one's own sister that things were going from bad to worse.

"The morale of the Russian nation is splendid," wrote Marie in the tragic days of the Russo-Japanese War.

"Everything is fine," wrote Alexandra when the protracted visits of King Edward in the South of France became known in St. Petersburg.

They met each spring in Copenhagen. Their reunion would last three weeks. They would embrace, talk of pleasant nothings, sigh over the passing of time, and then they would embrace again and say: "Until next spring."

Never a word about the growing unrest in Russia, never an inkling of the family complications in Buckingham Palace.

"How is everything in Russia?"

"Oh, splendid."

"And Nicky? I hear that his popularity is increasing every day."

"It is, indeed. And how is Bertie?"

"Fine. I am supremely happy."

"I am so glad. And the children?"

"Well, you know, George is to be married soon."

"Dear boy. I still think of him as a baby."

And so on ad infinitum.

Both realized, of course, that Nicky would never make a good Emperor and that the title of "ideal husband" could not be bestowed upon Bertie even by the court sycophants, but it was silently agreed between the two sisters that they should cherish each other's illusions. Contentment, as they understood it, consisted of illusions, while illusions depended on white lies.

LIVING aboard their yachts stationed in the water of neutral Denmark, sufficiently far from the cockpit of European strife, they would spend their happy three weeks in an atmosphere of mutual adoration and mutual encouragement. King Edward himself bowed to the rule that no "politics," nothing pertaining to the Russo-British differences and liable to upset the relations between the two radiant ladies, be mentioned for three weeks. It must have pained him to sit for hours at the dinner table and not conduct an impromptu international conference, but one does not discuss secret treaties at a children's party, least of all in the presence of gray-haired children.

All kinds of children, as well as all ages, were represented at those luncheons and dinners. Nothing short of death could keep their participants from attending the spring reunion in Copenhagen. Even from this distance I can see the following faces: the Prince and Princess of Wales (later King Edward and Queen Alexandra); Emperor Alexander III and Empress Marie; Cesarevich Nicholas Alexandrovich (later Czar Nicholas II); Empress Alexandra Feodorovna; Albert Victor, with poor equipment, thinking that he could go directly to the mine in three or four days. Two cowboys escorted him in to "last water" spring, and there bade him good-by. They were the last ever to see him alive.

Thirty days later, when the elderly prospector hadn't returned, a search was started for him, but no trace was found. It was known that he carried provisions for less than a month. Dr. Ruth, his son, came out from his home in Washington, and even engaged an airplane to join in the hunt, but it, too, was unavailing.

THE hunt continued for a few weeks and then the matter was considered closed. Dr. Ruth was told that he had only one chance in a thousand of seeing his father alive again and went back to Washington.

In December of that same year, O. S. Halseth, Phoenix city archeologist, headed a small party going to Superstition Mountain to study remains of some prehistoric dwellings there.

One morning a dog with this party dashed off to one side and sniffed at a white object under a palo verde tree. The scientist and his associates went over and saw on the ground there a gleaming human skull. Examination revealed a hole in the left temple—a hole of the sort that might have been made by a bullet.

Later, the skull was identified through dental work, as that of Adolf Ruth. That same party, hunting carefully over the countryside, found Ruth's headless torso about half a mile away. All his effects were still there—his pistol unfired, his canteen, his blanket, his miner's hammer, everything except one significant item—the map he had carried was gone!

The fact that the skull was found half a mile from the remainder of the skeleton confuses the murder theory a bit. Evidently the head was dragged off by some animal, probably a coyote. And the dragging might account for the hole in the skull. Some hold to the belief that Ruth was overcome by heat or thirst and died of natural causes, his body falling prey to desert scavengers.

But Sheriff J. R. McFadden and Deputy Sheriff Jeff Adams of Maricopa County both are convinced it was a case of murder, even though after two years they are still unable to find a clew to the killer. "The old man," they say, "was simply bumped off by somebody who wanted that map."

Whether it was murder or death from natural causes, the mystery which old Superstition Mountain has a way of throwing about her tragedies has settled down over this one, and it is doubtful if anyone will ever get to the bottom of it.

A Grand Duke Sees the Living Join the Dead

Duke of Clarence; George, Duke of York (now King George V); Louise, the Princess Royal (later the Duchess of Fife); Victoria, the Princess Royal; Maud, the Princess Royal (later Queen Maud of Norway); Grand Duke George; Grand Duke Michael; Grand Duchess Xenia (later my wife); Grand Duchess Olga; the very youthful Prince "David" (the present Prince of Wales), and his sister Mary (the present Princess Royal) and his brother George (the present Duke of York), myself and my brothers, my sister, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and her two daughters (the present Queen Alexandrine of Denmark, and the present Crown Princess of Germany); Prince Christian and Prince Charles of Denmark (the present King of Denmark and Norway), etc., etc.

We all came to worship at the shrine of the two royal matriarchs who sat at opposite ends of a long table, highly coiffed, erect, solemn, supervising the distribution of "surprises" among the children and smiling at the grown-ups with a benevolent air which always said: "You see how easy it is to forget the existence of diplomatic chancelleries when you deal with your kin. Blood is thicker than secret treaties."

WHATEVER they uttered, in so many words or with smiles, never sounded platitudinous. Both possessed that rare sincerity of purpose which enabled them to quote hackneyed proverbs in a way thoroughly unoffensive, even to a cynical pair of ears. When putting her hand on the sleeve of her massive brother-in-law, Emperor Alexander III, Alexandra would suggest that unselfishness should govern the relations between the great Powers, he nodded and said: "You are right," almost enthusiastically. He would have knocked down anyone else for a piece of similar advice.

It took the World War to scratch the spring reunion in Copenhagen off the calendar of European royalty. When I boarded the yacht of Queen Alexandra for the first time in my life, in the spring of 1924, after 10 years of absence, I wished I had not come. It was one thing to know that the majority of those who had sat at the long table were dead; it was another thing to see the emptiness of the dining room and listen to the stillness of the yacht.

"Just like old times," said my mother-in-law, and smiled heroically. Nothing but the presence of the two radiant ladies suggested the old days. King George, Queen Mary and their children were detained in London. The Crown Princess of Germany was still considered our "enemy" and naturally could not attend. The children of my sister-in-law, Grand Duchess Olga, sat in the places formerly occupied by their late cousins, daughters of their late Uncle Nicky.

It is difficult to realize that both sisters were only 80 when they died. They outlived so many epochs, empires and policies that it seems they must have been well over 200.

When they first left their native Denmark, Disraeli was a struggling upstart and the best European strategists were predicting the victory of General Robert E. Lee.

On the day of Marie's death Winston Churchill was publishing a fourth volume of his memoirs and the American bankers were struggling with the problem of European reparations.

Until the very end they talked of King George as if he were still a boy ("Always forgets to put on his warm overcoat") and the mention of Bismarck's name invariably brought a frown to their beautiful faces ("You know those Prussian Junkers always bluffing").

Queen Alexandra died on November 20, 1925. In answer to my letter of condolence King George wrote:

DOWAGER-QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

"Dear Sandro: 'I send you my best thanks for your kind letter and for all your sympathy in the death of my poor mother. She leaves a blank which can never be filled and the last link with my happy childhood has gone. But she, thank God, is at peace and is spared any further worries or sufferings and her death was a beautiful one, she went peacefully to sleep. I was so pleased to be able to lend dear Xenia that little cottage at Frogmore, where she lives with her grandchildren, and to help her in any way I could. With kind message from my wife, believe me, Your affectionate cousin,

"GEORGE R. I."

Sympathetic as I was with King George, I was naturally more concerned about my mother-in-law. I knew it was her turn now and that nothing her daughters or I could do would make up for the absence of her sister. To King George his mother symbolized "the last link" with his happy childhood. For my mother-in-law, her sister was the one and only link with life. She loved her daughters and she was extremely fond of her grandchildren, but she always said they could do without her. Since 1918 her world consisted of Alexandra. It was empty and deserted now. She was impatient to go.

She lived for three years more, but aside from following her usual routine she evidenced no interest in what was happening around her. She never acknowledged letters coming from Paris and telling her of the clash between the supporters of Cyril and the champions of the old Grand Duke Nicholas. There was only one Emperor of Russia so far as she was concerned—her son Nicky. She was satisfied that he was still alive. At least she said so. All the others were ridiculous or obnoxious, or both. She felt it beneath her dignity to take sides, to issue manifestoes, to participate in sham battles. Only once did she register protest and then her voice broke. It happened when she learned of the claims of that strange Polish girl in New York who insisted that she was Grand Duchess Anastasia, the youngest daughter of the Czar. "What do they think?" she exclaimed. "That I would sit here in Hvidore and not rush to my granddaughter's side?" I tried to explain to her that there was no way of fighting American passion for freaks and impostors, but she was mortally offended.

In the early fall of 1928 she became ill and on October 12 of that year I received a telegram from my wife asking me to start for Denmark at once. She was dead by the time I arrived. The news of her death stirred the imagination of the Danish people and she was given a state funeral. She herself would have, no doubt, preferred to be buried next to her sister, but that was impossible. Alexandra belonged to England. Marie belonged to the Empire that was no more. So she was to stay in the country of her birth, among people whom she considered strangers.

The funeral over, I spent a few hours shaking hands and chatting with my European reigning cousins, some of whom I had not seen since 1914. It was a pity, they said, that the "inordinate pride" of the deceased kept them from coming to her aid in her last 10 years. "Quite so," I agreed. It is bad form to call a King a liar at a funeral.

Back in Hvidore I found her two stalwart Cossack guards. They sat on the steps of the big house, staring into space, inconsolable, haggard. What were they to do now? All their lives, both before and after the revolution, they depended on the Empress. They were the only two of her formerly large bodyguard who remained faithful to her through the miseries of 1917-1918.

"Don't worry," I said. "I know that Her Majesty made a provision for you in her will."

"It's not that," said the younger of the two, a bearded giant of 6 feet 4.

"What is it then?"

"Sort of lonesome without Her Majesty," he said shyly.

A Stone Tells of a Visit Six Centuries Ago

took to Europe to compare with medieval weapons there. He is perfectly satisfied that the Minnesota relics are genuine.

No reference to the return of the Knudson expedition to Norway has been found, with the possible exception of one statement relating to Eskimo kayaks which hung in a European cathedral as memorials. The account which Holand gives of the subsequent expedition, or a part of the expedition, is therefore a piece of scholarly detective work. His final chapter is like the conclusion of a well-knit detective story.

Ethnologists had long been puzzled over the existence of a tribe of Indians, the Mandans, whose customs and racial characteristics were strikingly different from those of any other tribe.

THE Mandans' huts were similar to Swedish cottages, their features nordic, their hair often blond and their eyes blue. Mandan religion was also suggestive of Christian influences. They believed that their first ancestor was a white man, born of an immaculate conception, who came to Minnesota in a great canoe. Biblical stories, including the fable of the ark and the flood, were part of their traditional folk lore. These facts were established by a few explorers in modern times, especially by George Catlin and Prince Maximilian Wied-Neuwied, who explored the section in 1832 and made careful records and drawings of the Mandans. When he happened to find these accounts and studied them, Holand finally concluded that the Mandans became weak after wars in the fourteenth century and made friends with the Scandinavians. Members of the expedition must have married Indian women, leaving a heritage of race and tradition to the offspring of the tribe.

And what happened to the Mandans? Holand ends his account with one of the most colossal understatements ever used as the period to a quarter-century of intensive research. The dramatic finale of his tale is relegated to a footnote.

"Only five or six years after Catlin visited them," he says, "the entire nation of 'the 'kind and gentlemanly Mandans' was exterminated by a plague of smallpox. See Çatlin's pathetic account of the tragedy and heroism of their last lays. . . ."

Germany's Laws to Sterilize the Unfit

The sterilization law provides that "anyone who is hereditarily ailing may be made barren by surgical operation, if, in the experience of medical science, it is with great probability to be expected that his progeny will suffer from severe bodily or mental hereditary disorders. Hereditarily ailing in the sense of this law is anyone who suffers from congenital feeble-mindedness, schizophrenia (split personality), periodic insanity, inherited epilepsy, Huntington's chorea, inherited blindness, inherited deafness, severe inherited physical malformation."

The proposal for sterilization may come from the person to be sterilized, from that person's legal representative, from an official doctor, attached to the Government by special provision of law, or from the head of an institution in which the person is confined.

Eugenic courts are set up to handle these cases, which may be referred to Eugenic Courts of Appeal. Each of the lower eugenic courts includes a chairman who is a Magistrate, an official doctor and another registered doctor who is a specialist in eugenics.

The operation for sterilization, which is safe, painless and is claimed not to interfere with the patient's normal impulses, but only the reproductive capacity, must be performed in a hospital and by a registered surgeon. The operation may be performed without the consent of the person who is being sterilized and by police force, but not without a certificate from an official doctor. No doctor attached to a court is privileged to operate in these cases.

All persons concerned in the proceedings and the carrying out of the court decrees are bound to secrecy. The law is more rigid than that proposed for Norway. In order that no stigma may be attached, there are no provisions for sterilization of criminals.

THE potential effect of this social program is readily apparent. It is estimated that 400,000 operations will be performed immediately. If all hereditary unfit are eliminated from the population at once, however, only 11 per cent of the bad stock will be cut out during the first year, according to Government estimates. Unless the laws are perpetually in operation, the unfit will never become extinct. Meanwhile, the Government will spend $6,800,000 for operations. A potential saving of $132,000,000 annually will be realized, it is said, as a compensation for this investment.

The stimulation of larger families will serve to increase the birth rate for the middle class in the economic scale. In other words, the birth rate for "undesirables" will be reduced to a minimum and the birth rate for classes which have produced professional, financial and political leaders and artistic geniuses in the past will be raised—if the program is successful.

There is no reason to think that anyone expects a race of supermen to issue from this progressive legislation. It will merely, its proponents maintain, serve to correct a population ratio which has gotten out of joint during the last 30 years.

The Spanish Girl and 'Her Man'

though the family may be. A woman, according to the Spanish custom and tradition now being violated, is a virtual prisoner in her home and church.

Nor does the Club de los Solteros (Bachelors' Club) find favor among those who cling to Spain's traditional social ideals, one of which stresses the necessity of marriage. This club, through its very revolutionary nature, has attracted considerable attention since its organization, just two years ago. It has a board of strategy to protect its members from "the evils of matrimony," much as the "brain trust" of the Maids' Club with the opposite objective in view.

Article 1 of the bachelors' constitution defines the aims of the organization as follows: "to defend man from the dangers of matrimony which can result in the embitterment of life, and to provide for him, instead, as much diversion as possible. To guard the good name of those who constitute the club, punishing, as the case may demand, every infraction of this Constitution; and to seek to inculcate in all the members an anti-matrimonial sentiment, which is the primary objective of the club."

The idea of starting the club came from Barcelona, where thirteen years ago a Bachelors' Club was formed.

The youngest member of the Madrid Bachelors' Club is 22, and the oldest is 51. There are students, bank clerks, mechanics, newspapermen, salesmen and policemen in the club, as well as two bullfighters, Francisco Rabadan and Vicente Samperio.

The regulations do not prohibit members from having dates with girls, but woe to him who has several dates with the same girl. The penalty for this and other crimes is decided by the club court, before which the accused must stand trial. Nor is there much chance for offenders to escape, for the organization has a keen espionage system.

The gravest offense, of course, is marriage, which costs the culprit a fine of 150 pesetas and a gala supper for the entire club of 160 members. First, however, the club attempts by vigorous persuasion to induce the guilty person to renounce his matrimonial plans. Naturally, any person incurring matrimony is automatically expelled from the club, and should he refuse to pay his penalty his name is engraved in glaring letters in the clubrooms as a "traitor to the club." Upon joining the organization a person must give his word of honor that he does not have a sweetheart, that he has not had one for two years, and that he will abide by the club regulations.

UNDER the constitution of the Bachelors' Club, politics and religion are taboo as topics of conversation. Which leaves bullfighting and women to talk about, and paradoxically enough the latter subject is the most popular one.

The dues are only one peseta (about 12 cents in American money) a week. Occasionally donations come from some well-to-do person who sympathizes with the aims of the club—one such person recently donated a loving cup. Small fines fatten the treasury considerably, but there is seldom occasion to impose heavy fines. Recently a 150-peseta fine failed to materialize—so members boast—when, after an all-night session, a young man was prevailed upon to repent and call off his intended marriage.

While both the Maids' Club and the Bachelors' Club are startling innovations in Spanish life, they are significant of the fundamental changes that are taking place, particularly in the status of women. The restriction of women to the home and the church has been almost Oriental in its severity. But changes are coming fast and furious and the inception of the Maids' Club may be as indicative of what is happening as the fact that Spanish women now have the vote.

THE PLAY BEGINS

HOKUS POKUS—Don't tell me I hear someone singing? I wonder who he is? (He gets up and looks out of the window.) Gosh, I would never have believed it. He's singing to a charming young lady. Hm-m-m. It looks like I went to bed too early. (He rushes back and dresses and starts for the door.) I don't think they want any company, but I do. Hm-m. Wait until she sees me do my stuff. (He goes out and next we find him standing before Cleo Cluck. Mice Stro is singing to her.)

HOKUS POKUS—Ah! Good evening, fair one. Quite a show. I wonder if you would like to see me do my magic act?

CLEO CLUCK—I'm not interested in magic.

MICE STRO—Music is what we're interested in. You can take your magic elsewhere.

HOKUS POKUS—Music, is it? Hm-m-m. Then music it shall be. (He gently sets his hat in the snow and waving his wand, says some magic words, and out of the hat jump the Melody Mice, who start playing, while one of them climbs in the tree and sings. (Mice Stro is amazed, while Cleo Cluck becomes alarmed.)

CLEO CLUCK—(Frightened.) Go away! Help! They'll bite me. (She jumps down and grabs Mice Stro by the arm and they leave. The Melody Mice, tumbling in the deep snow, follow them.)

CLEO CLUCK—(To the Melody Mice.) Leave us alone, will you? (Then to Mice Stro.) Imagine a man with all those baby mice in his hat. He must be crazy.

"Her face was covered with Pimples"

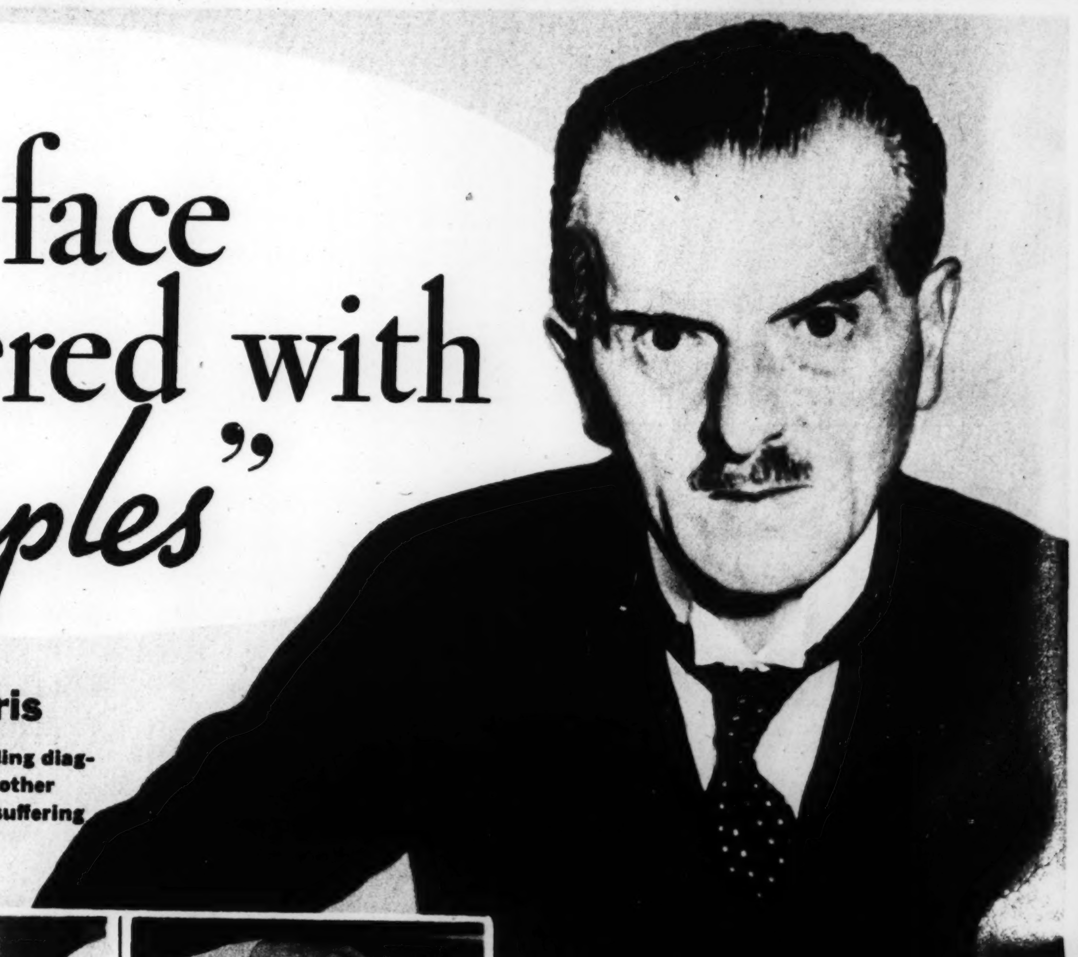
reports DR. ANTOINE of Paris

A "case history." From the records of one of France's leading diagnosticians, Dr. Edouard Antoine, who numbers a king and other royalty among his patients! If you or anyone you know is suffering from skin trouble, read what this eminent doctor says . . .



Dr. Antoine is connected with the Hopital de la Glacière, noted Paris hospital. He is a Chevalier of the French Legion of Honor.

"THE PATIENT," states Dr. Antoine, "—age 25—had for years suffered from eruptions on the face. Had employed ointments, lotions, etc.—without result . . .

"EXAMINATION SHOWED she had a bad condition of the intestines . . . constipation . . . which she had treated by means of purgatives. Obviously her auto-intoxication was the cause of her bad skin . . .

"I FORBADE CATHARTICS and prescribed yeast. It quickly brought about the desired result." (Note, above, chart showing intestines, where yeast works.)

"SKIN TROUBLES," says Dr. Antoine, "—like bad breath, coated tongue, loss of energy—are danger signals." Signs, usually, of sluggish intestines!

"In my opinion," he adds, "eating yeast is the most effective way to combat this evil. Skin disorders such as pimples and furunculosis (boils) respond to yeast's purifying effect."

Fleischmann's Yeast, you know, is not a medicine but a food—possessing very amazing properties.

Added to the diet—3 cakes a day—it actually stimulates and strengthens the intestines. It also softens the wastes that collect in the body daily, helping you get rid of them more easily.

Then, as yeast acts to expel the harmful poisons that form in your system, you notice you feel so much more energetic. Your digestion improves—you eat better. AND—most gratifying result of all—you observe such an improvement in your skin!

It clears. Freshens. Takes on color. Becomes softer, smoother . . . simply because you have done the sensible thing and corrected the real bodily cause of your skin trouble. Honestly, is there any medicine, any cosmetic you know that will do this?

You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at grocers, restaurants and soda fountains and each cake is rich in the vitamins, B, G and D. Just eat it before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or dissolved in a third of a glass of water. Start the treatment today!

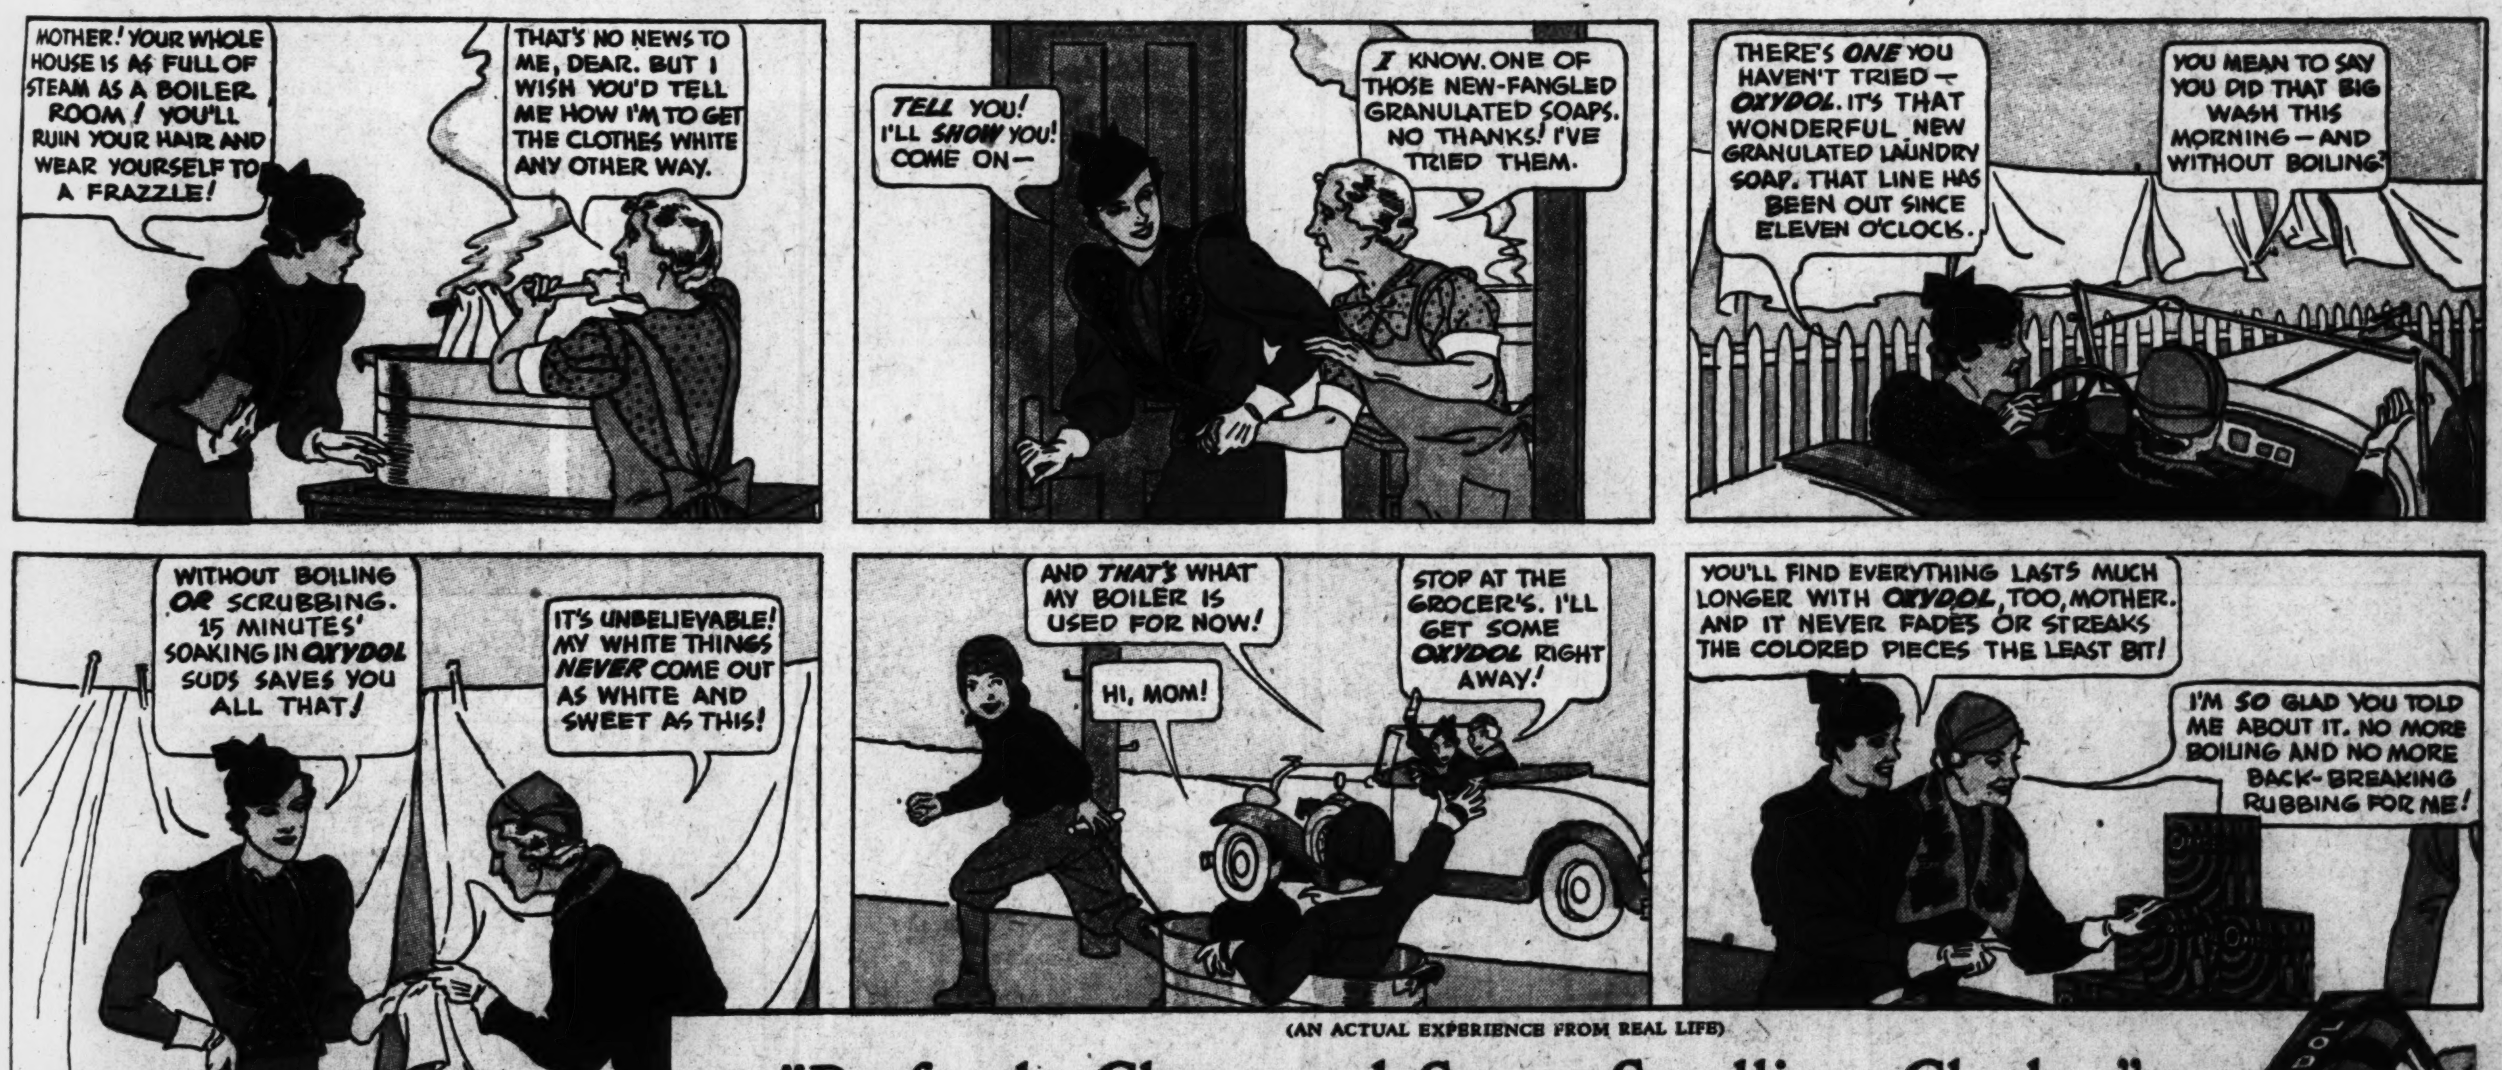
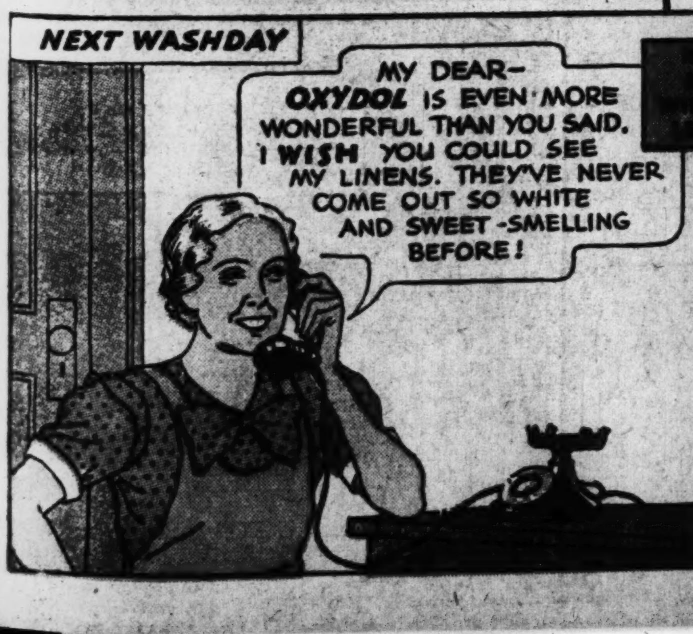
DAUGHTER RESCUES MOTHER

FROM THE WASHDAY BUGBEAR



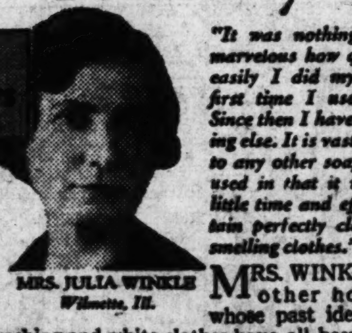
MOTHER! YOUR WHOLE HOUSE IS AS FULL OF STEAM AS A BOILER ROOM! YOU'LL RUIN YOUR HAIR AND WEAR YOURSELF TO A FRAZZLE!
THAT'S NO NEWS TO ME, DEAR. BUT I WISH YOU'D TELL ME HOW I'M TO GET THE CLOTHES WHITE ANY OTHER WAY.
TELL YOU! I'LL SHOW YOU! COME ON—
I KNOW. ONE OF THOSE NEW-FANGLED GRANULATED SOAPS. NO THANKS! I'VE TRIED THEM.
THERE'S ONE YOU HAVEN'T TRIED — OXYDOL. IT'S THAT WONDERFUL NEW GRANULATED LAUNDRY SOAP. THAT LINE HAS BEEN OUT SINCE ELEVEN O'CLOCK.
YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU DID THAT BIG WASH THIS MORNING — AND WITHOUT BOILING?
WITHOUT BOILING OR SCRUBBING. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING IN OXYDOL SUDS SAVES YOU ALL THAT!
IT'S UNBELIEVABLE! MY WHITE THINGS NEVER COME OUT AS WHITE AND SWEET AS THIS!
AND THAT'S WHAT MY BOILER IS USED FOR NOW!
HI, MOM!
STOP AT THE GROCER'S. I'LL GET SOME OXYDOL RIGHT AWAY!
YOU'LL FIND EVERYTHING LASTS MUCH LONGER WITH OXYDOL, TOO, MOTHER. AND IT NEVER FADES OR STREAKS THE COLORED PIECES THE LEAST BIT!
I'M SO GLAD YOU TOLD ME ABOUT IT. NO MORE BOILING AND NO MORE BACK-BREAKING RUBBING FOR ME!

(AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE FROM REAL LIFE)



NEXT WASHDAY
MY DEAR— OXYDOL IS EVEN MORE WONDERFUL THAN YOU SAID. I WISH YOU COULD SEE MY LINENS. THEY'VE NEVER COME OUT SO WHITE AND SWEET-SMELLING BEFORE!
READ MRS. WINKLE'S LETTER

"Perfectly Clean and Sweet-Smelling Clothes"



MRS. JULIA WINKLE
Wilmette, Ill.

"It was nothing short of marvelous how quickly and easily I did my wash the first time I used Oxydol. Since then I have used nothing else. It is vastly superior to any other soap I've ever used in that it requires so little time and effort to obtain perfectly clean, sweet-smelling clothes."

MRS. WINKLE is another housewife whose past ideas of fast washing and white clothes have all been changed by this new laundry soap discovery.

Why don't YOU try it? No matter what soap is your present favorite, try this latest scientific discovery.

OXYDOL is made by the same people who make famous Ivory. It's the latest, improved laundry soap invention of Procter & Gamble experts. And does these things no other soap can do or has ever done.

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, and thus saves many hours of labor.

Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

Yet it cannot fade or injure either color or fabric. Special elements are so blended in it as to protect colors against fading. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL SOAKS dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

The new, improved OXYDOL will make thick "soft water suds" in any water, hard or soft. Without added "softener" or washing preparations. This is why:

It is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold.

Water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists. And the OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of softener to fit it.

You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Which means at least twice as much "soap action" as from old-style soaps.

We knew it had to be better to win women from older ways. So we made it better, and now we urge you to try the new, improved OXYDOL in your own home. We promise you'll save hours of labor. You'll get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, without scrubbing or boiling.

You'll have no more fading colors; no "soap streaks" after ironing; no soap-bitten, red hands And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. 19-J, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL today from your own grocer.

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES?
HEROES OF THE TIMBERLINE!
"ANDY" ANDERSON'S IDEA WAS TO BAND TOGETHER THE SUPER MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS OF HOOD RIVER TO PROMOTE TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP, AND SAVE LIVES IN THE PEAKS OF THE CASCADES! SO— A FAMOUS BAND OF CRAG CLIMBERS WAS FORMED.
WON'T DAD BE SURPRISED, WHEN HE HEARS THAT WE CLIMBED CLEAR UP HERE!
WE'VE NEVER BEEN THIS FAR UP ON THE MOUNTAIN BEFORE!
IT'S BEGINNING TO SNOW— AND WE'VE LOST THE TRAIL!
I'M ALL IN, BUN!
WE GOTTA KEEP GOING. LET'S PRETEND WERE ANDY ANDERSON LOOKING FOR TWO LOST BOYS.
HELP! BUN, I'M SLIPPING.
ME, TOO— GOSH— AN AVALANCHE!
ARE YOU ALL RIGHT, BILLY?
YES, LUCKY THIS SNOWDRIFT WAS HERE, BUT WE'RE STUCK IN AN AWFUL CREVASSE!
AND IN THE MEANTIME!
DAD, I'M ALMOST FRANTIC! OUR BOYS ARE SOMEWHERE OUT IN THAT BLIZZARD!
I'M GOING TO CALL ANDY TO GET HIS CRAG CLIMBERS ON THE JOB.
IS THAT YOU, ANDY? MY BOYS ARE LOST UP ON MT. HOOD.
MY GANG IS READY TO GO— DON'T WORRY. WE'LL FIND THEM!
THE CRAG CLIMBERS SWING INTO ACTION
COME ON, GANG! WE MUST FIND THOSE BOYS!
WE'LL GET 'EM, ANDY!
HURRAH! HERE'S A FOOTPRINT IN THE SNOW!
HURRY, MEN!
LET'S LOOK INTO THIS CREVASSE.
I HEAR SOMETHING DOWN THERE
HELLO!
IT'S THEM— HURRAY!
NOW TO GET THEM OUT!
HELLO!
BOYS, I'M GOING DOWN!
O.K.—YOU CAN DO IT, ANDY!
STEADY, MEN!
EAGER HANDS LOWER ANDY DOWN TO WHERE THE BOYS ARE TRAPPED.
ARE YOU ALL RIGHT, BOYS?
WERE PRETTY COLD AND HUNGRY, BUT WE KNEW YOU WOULD FIND US.
UP YOU COME, LAD!
WE FOUND THEM JUST IN TIME!
HERE WE ARE, DADDY AND MOM!
WE CAN'T THANK YOU AND YOUR MEN ENOUGH, ANDY ANDERSON.
MY BOYS! SAFE AND SOUND!
ANDY, YOU DID A WONDERFUL JOB THERE IN THAT CREVASSE. HAVE A CAMEL?
OH BOY! WILL I! I FINISHED MY LAST PACK UP THERE ON THE MOUNTAIN.
I'VE SMOKED CAMELS HOUR AFTER HOUR DURING MANY A THRILLING RESCUE! THEY ARE MILD— AND YET RICH IN FLAVOR—THE LAST ONE TASTES AS GOOD AS THE FIRST AND CAMELS NEVER RUFFLE MY NERVES.

CAMEL
A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID ON THE SUBJECT OF TOBACCO QUALITY—TO AVOID CONFUSION, REMEMBER THIS—CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND. THAT IS CONCLUSIVE. SMOKERS DO CARE ABOUT MILDNESS—ABOUT RICH FLAVOR—ABOUT THEIR NERVES—TURN TO CAMELS FOR STEADY SMOKING.
